CURTISS CUT SHORT IN SECOND FLIGHT

Air Currents Cause Him to Land After Being Up Only Forty-five Seconds.

WRIGHT READY FOR TRIP

Buys a Life Preserver in Anticipation of a Plunge Into the Hudson on His Way Up River.

Glenn H. Curtiss made his first effort yesterday since last Wednesday morning to get into the air at Governors Island, and succeeded in making a flight of forty-five seconds. He traveled less than half a mile, making a wide semi-circular turn on the west shore of the island.

It was late in the afternoon when his machine was wheeled out of its shed. Taking it to the edge of the sea wall Mr. Curtiss pointed the aeroplane toward the officers' quarters, and at 5:50 o'clock set the motor going. After running over a hundred feet in the soft sand the machine rose gracefully, attaining an altitude of fifty feet. Mr. Curtiss began immediately making a long turn, carrying him back to the sea wall directly opposite the Statue of Liberty.

Mr. Curtiss evidently considered it too late to attempt a call upon Miss Liberty, for instead of going out over the water as the spectators had expected, he turned sharply. Just then his machine tilted to the left at an angle of about thirty degrees, and immediately fell over to the right at about the same angle. At that moment it sounded to the watchers as though the motor stopped, but it quickly began to hum again. The front plane was sharply deflected, and the machine came down quickly, making a good landing about 100 feet from the water's edge.

Mr. Curtiss explained his sudden landing by saying he found conditions aloft which he did not like; the wind was gusty, "a boiling current of air," as he defined it, and for that reason he did not care to venture over the water. By the time the machine was wheeled back to its original starting place it was too dark to do anything more.

The prediction was freely made by the army officers that indications pointed to excellent flying conditions to-day. With this expectation Mr. Curtiss remained on the island last night. Late to-day he will go to his factory in Hammondsport. Wilbur Wright did not visit the island yesterday. In preparation for his long distance flight up the Hudson over the battleship fleet which will take place to-day if the wind does not blow stronger than eight or ten miles an hour, Mr. Wright has purchased a life belt to use if, by any chance, he should drop into the water.

LATHAM UP 580 FEET.

Excels Rougier's Record at Johannisthal, but Is Disqualified.

JOHANNISTHAL, Oct. 3. — Aviation week was brought to an end to-day before a very large crowd, which was compensated for the disappointments of the preceding days by a sensational flight after sunset by Hubert Latham.

All day long Latham had been dogged by misfortune. First his motor went wrong, then the accumulators became deranged and the ignition was defective. At length after three failures he made an easy start, but it was two minutes before sunset and, although he reached a height officially estimated at 580 feet, 20 feet higher than Rougier's record of yesterday, he was disqualified. The height reached by Latham was little more than a third that attained by Orville Wright yesterday near Potsdam; 1,600 feet.

Latham rose immediately to a great height and flew repeatedly around the field. He hovered above the tribunes with absolute stability amid great enthusiasm on the part of the spectators. When he reached his highest altitude he stopped the engine and glided down so swiftly that he appeared to fall fully 300 feet, while everybody held his breath. At this point he started his motor again and made a safe and easy landing.

Hundreds of spectators leaped the barriers and invaded the field, carrying Latham shoulder high to the stand, where he was the object of uproarious demonstrations. Latham estimated that he ascended between 600 and 1,000 feet, but the officials signalled 580.

Following are the results of the competitions as announced by the officials:

Long-distance contest, $10,000 and City of Berlin Cup, won by Rougier, 120 kilometers, (74.6 miles;) Latham, second, $3,750, 82½ kilometers; Farman, third, $1,250, 65 kilometers.

Durability contest, won by Rougier, 2:38:18 2-5; Farman, second, 1:31:18 3-5; Latham, third, 1:21:42 3-5.

Speed event, 20 kilometers, (about 12½ miles,) won by Latham, $3,250. Time—0:18:46 4-5; Farnam second, $500. Time—0:20:09 2-5; Baron Decaters, third. Time—0:22:17.

Height prize, won by Rougier, $2,500, 500 feet; Latham, second, $1,250, 352 feet.

No prizes were given in the durability competition, as no competitor stayed longer in the air than Rougier, the winner of the distance prize. The prize of $2,500 for the passenger-carrying contest also was unawarded, as Rougier was the only competitor to fulfill the conditions.

Although some interesting flights took place to-day, they did not affect the final results. Farman flew for two hours, and Rougier made several ascensions for height.

The aviation company has seized the aeroplanes of the Chilean aviators, Besa and Edwards, alleging failure to fulfill contracts.

BIG BALLOON RACE ON.

Contestants for Gordon Bennett Cup Start from Zurich.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Oct. 3.—A beautiful, sunny Autumn day, following yesterday's discouraging downpour, made the start in the international balloon race for the Gordon Bennett Cup to-day a great success from every standpoint. More than 200,000 persons watched the seventeen balloons soar skyward and disappear on the horizon.

The wishes of the balloonists, as voiced by the American entrant, Edgar W. Mix of Columbus, Ohio, were realized in a measure, for the southwest wind which was blowing at the start seemed certain to carry them toward Russia instead of to the sea, and thus a genuine test of

AUTOIST THROWN INTO TREE.

Unconscious Across a Limb After Motor Crash—Another's Ribs Broken.

Many of those who were walking to the Church of the Holy Spirit, at Twenty-second Avenue and Eighty-second Street, Brooklyn, yesterday morning saw an automobile, in which were six young men, go by them in Twenty-second Avenue, and run into a large tree at Eighty-third Street. They saw the occupants thrown into the air as the machine crumpled up.

Policeman Coffey of the Bath Beach Station, who had also seen the accident, telephoned for the reserves and for an ambulance from the Coney Island Hospital. The police found Prescott McKinney of 158 Bay Twenty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, the owner and driver of the car, lying out to the front and side of the car unconscious. He had been thrown against the tree, the shock breaking two of his ribs, and injuring him internally.

Murray Hennessy, a Coney Island hotel proprietor, was also unconscious. Two of his ribs had been broken in the fall, and he had suffered concussion of the brain. He was taken home by friends.

Charles Dieterich of Benson Avenue and Twenty-second Avenue, Brooklyn, a bank clerk, was unconscious, though no bones had been broken. Gerald O'Connor of Benson and Bay Twenty-fourth Avenues, Brooklyn, a hotel man, and John Roth of Benson and Eighteenth Avenues, Brooklyn, a special policeman, were stunned and bruised when thrown from the automobile.

These three were attended by Dr. Robert F. Ives of Twenty-second Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, and Dr. Plunkitt of the Coney Island Hospital. They were only slightly injured. As soon as they recovered consciousness they asked what had become of Reginald Boyd, a special policeman who had been with them.

Then followed a search by the policemen and the sympathizing churchgoers. After some time one of the searchers heard a groan from the branches of the tree against which the automobile had destroyed itself. Reginald Boyd was found hanging across a big limb, unconscious. He was brought down to the ground and his bruises were treated. He was not badly hurt.

KILLED BY HIS OWN ERROR.

Dr. Ludwig Kohn Drank Carbolic Acid, Mistaking It for Medicine.

Before starting on his round of professional visits yesterday afternoon Dr. Ludwig Kohn of 107 West 120th Street, formerly an east side physician, told his family that he was going to take some strontium bromide for nervous trouble, from which he had been suffering. After he went to his study to take the medicine the members of the household heard him fall, groaning, to the floor.

Rushing into the study, members of the family found Dr. Kohn unconscious. His lips were burned and a broken bottle containing carbolic acid was in his hand. On the shelf above the washstand, in front of which he lay, was the bottle of strontium bromide, which he was in the habit of taking for his nervous trouble.

The bromide was mixed with syrup and water, and Dr. Kohn was accustomed to drink it out of the bottle. The solution was exactly the same color as the carbolic acid. The family and Coroner believe that Dr. Kohn mistook the two bottles, as they stood side by side on the shelf, and swallowed the acid without realizing what it was. Dr. David Friedman of 197 Lenox Avenue was called in. But before he arrived Dr. Kohn was dead.

Until he moved to Harlem two years ago Dr. Kohn had one of the largest practices on the east side. His office was at Fourth Street and Avenue C. The story is told of him that on some occasions during his office hours the line of waiting tenement patients extended down the steps and into the street. Much of this work never brought him in a penny.

He was born in Germany and was educated at the University of Vienna, having been graduated at the age of 21. Immediately after his graduation he came to this country. He leaves a widow and several children. He was a member of the German Medical Society and the East Side Physicians' Club.

WILL DANCE IN STREETS.

St. Louis Arranges Open-Air Floor for Carnival Visitors.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—Open-air dancing every night except Veiled Prophet's night at the Court of Honor between Olive Street and Washington Avenue is the newest feature of the St. Louis Centennial Association's programme of the free events for the visitors in the city this week.

A band of thirty-five pieces will furnish the music. The grand march will begin at 7 o'clock. From that time until 11 o'clock there will be round and square dances. One of the features will be the old-fashioned quadrille. On Saturday night there will be a confetti ball.

The entire street for three blocks will be used for dancing. Each afternoon the Street Department will have a large force of men sweep and prepare the dancing floor. A squad of police has been instructed to keep the street clear and maintain order.

Centennial week was inaugurated here to-day by the blowing of whistles, ringing of church bells, and services in the churches. This afternoon 15,000 children assembled in the Coliseum and sang patriotic and religious songs. Twenty thousand Catholic children gathered at the same time for services at the statue of St. Louis in Forest Park, where Archbishop John J. Glennon made an address.

Many who did not attend the religious services flocked to the levee to inspect the torpedo boat flotilla, and the aero grounds drew thousands, who viewed the airships and balloons which are ready for to-morrow's races.

STARVING TO DEATH.

Brooklyn Man Falls in the Street—Weak Heart Ended Him.

A man who said he was Eldridge Halowood, a printer, living somewhere in Adams Street, Brooklyn, fell to the sidewalk at Crescent Street and Jamaica Avenue, East New York, last night, and to those who saw him it appeared as though he was starving. He was emaciated and barely able to talk.

While an ambulance was on the way, persons who crowded around assisted him as best they could. One woman bent over him and gave to him a glass of coffee obtained at a restaurant.

The man was taken to Bradford Street Hospital, where he died two hours later. The doctors at the hospital said that heart trouble and the lack of nourishment caused death.

WELL DIGGER BURIED IN SIXTY-FOOT HOLE

SIDE BRACES GAVE WAY

And In Poured the Sand Upon Him—May Be Dead Already, but Digging Party Works All Night.

SAYVILLE, L. I., Oct. 3.—John Coffen, 22 years of age, who lived with his father on a farm two miles north of Central Islip, is buried under many feet of earth and sand on his father's farm. To-night rescuers are working at full pressure to dig him out, and some five hundred waited most of to-day to help in the work. It is almost hopeless, for only two or three can labor at a time. At best the man cannot be reached in less than another day. The chances are that he is dead already.

In the evening a large fire was built near the scene of the rescue work, to light the operations and warm coffee for the workers. The sandy nature of the soil makes careful work necessary, lest there be another cave-in, which will bury the workers.

Coffen and his father a year ago started to sink a well which would supply the farm they have been clearing with a fresh and reliable supply of water. At that time the well had been sunk to a depth of sixty feet. The hole ran through the soft and shifting sand which forms the main part of Long Island. Layers of clay and mold were encountered, but practically the entire distance was through sand. The sides of the well had been held in place by boards, cross-braced. Father and son worked at the digging, taking turns.

One dug while the other hoisted out the sand. The sheathing was to be temporary, but was well braced. The plan was to sink the well to a depth where there could not fail to be a supply of water in the dryest season, then sink a well pipe some feet further down, and then fill in around the pipe as it was carried up section on section to the top. In this way a pipe well can be sunk without drilling.

This Summer proving dry and the flow of water not being as abundant as the father and son hoped, this Fall they set about finishing the well. They went down another thirty feet and there found a steady flowing stream. Yesterday they began the work of inserting the pipe. The pipe was surrounded at the bottom by rubble stone and then the younger man proceeded to put sections of pipe above.

He had thirty feet of pipe in the well and was at the sixty-foot level at 9 o'clock this morning, adjusting the next length when the sides caved in. What caused the trouble cannot be learned, but the break appears to have started just about where work ceased last year and was resumed this Fall. It is thought Coffen, by standing on a cross brace, loosened it and caused it to drop, letting a piece of sheathing fall. Anyway, the well filled up to above the sixty-foot level and under the sand which slid into the well the young man is buried. The father above, waiting for a signal to lower more pipe, soon realized something was wrong. When he saw the sand sliding into the excavation he called on his neighbors for help. Efforts were made to stay the flow of sand, but the well filled to the level of the break in the sheathing and steps were taken at once to dig the young man out.

Men came from every direction and offered their services. Well diggers made an examination and declared the only way to do was to sink a new shaft alongside the old one, sheathing as it progressed, and thus reach the level of weakened sheathing and then work down until the body was found.

Constable Schwartz of Central Islip organized the men and work started. Sheathing had to be obtained and made ready and the cross braces made. These are being inserted as the sand is taken out of the new shaft.

The work is slow, because the best results are obtained by having two men working below, and they can only work as fast as the men above can haul out the sand in buckets.

MADE A 12-HOUR SPEECH.

Ex-Judge Dewey Starts Boom for Governor on Boston Common.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Boston Common, for many years the scene of the efforts of exponents of many and varied creeds and beliefs, probably never saw a more extraordinary feat than to-day, when, for twelve hours, with but one intermission of twenty-five minutes for breakfast, ex-Judge Henry P. Dewey, who has announced himself as the "Theocratic" candidate for Governor, talked continuously upon the "established religion of the State."

Judge Dewey attracted much attention on the bench of the municipal court some years ago by orginial interpretations of the law; four years ago he ran for Mayor of Boston and caused comment by appearing upon the platform attired in evening dress; this year he sued the Good Government Association for $76,000,000 for alleged slander regarding his intentions during the campaign, but lost the verdict.

At 6 o'clock this morning Judge Dewey took his stand upon the slope at the west of the soldiers' monument. The audience consisted of his brother and one newspaper man. Shortly after a policeman arrived. The audience was small up to 8:45, when the speaker took a twenty-five-minute recess and had breakfast at a nearby hotel.

Returning to the Common at 9:10, Judge Dewey again took up his argument, with a larger audience, and talked without a break until 6 P. M. The audience gradually increased until some 300 to 600 people were present.

The speaker declared that the people of the country, especially the lawyers and judiciary, had departed from the right spirit of the Constitution and Bill of Rights of Massachusetts, which distinctly acknowledged a supreme Being. He said:

"The recognized laws of God, the theocratic, unwritten laws, the eternal verities," were being ignored in the practice of the day.

At the close Judge Dewey declared he felt no inconvenience from having talked continuously for twelve hours, with the possible exception of being a little stiff from having stood so long in one spot.

To-day and to-morrow are the first days of registration. If you do not register you cannot vote at the Nov. 2 election. A full list of places of registration in New York City will be found elsewhere in this issue of The New York Times.

GOVERNOR ADVISES KILLING.

Shoot Down Night Riders, Says Willson to Kentuckians.

Special to The New York Times.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 3.—Fight the enemy with his own fire is the method that Gov. Willson is advising the independent growers of tobacco in Kentucky to adopt in their struggles against the Night Riders. Piles of letters are stacked on his desk, the Governor says, from tobacco growers asking him whether they must pool their tobacco, or whether they will receive protection from the militia if they do not pool it.

"Organize liberty leagues and kill the nocturnal invaders," is the advice that the Governor gives. In a statement to-day Gov. Willson says that no man should pool his tobacco unless he wants to, and that he will pardon any man who resorts to arms to protect his home. The situation is intense and the crisis for the independents or the organization men will be reached within the next few days.

It is declared in some quarters that the statement given out will mean the failure of the pool. Bloodshed is now feared. The Governor says in the statement:

"You will remember that I have made public addresses to our people asking them to defend their homes, and assured them that if they did defend their homes and were careful not to make a mistake and kill any innocent person, but simply necessary defense of their lives, liberty, and property, they would not need any lawyer. I have never withdrawn that proclamation. It is my most serious conviction of my duty. It was made with full knowledge of its serious character, and it is my set purpose to keep the faith under that proclamation.

"If men's interest in a business plan to form a combination to raise the price on their crops, which is entirely proper and wise, if lawfully carried on, is so great that they will form a pool that falls into lawlessness why should not self-respecting, free Kentuckians form a liberty or freedom pool, a thousand times more serious and earnest than any pool for money profit, and why should they not fight for their liberties when the law is behind them, and the State Government is with them?"

Gov. Willson leaves for Boston to-morrow.

ROOSEVELT SAILOR BEATEN.

One of Peary's Men Attacked for Refusing to Tell of His Trip.

John Cody of St. John's, N. F., a sailor on the Roosevelt, Commander Peary's exploring ship, was attacked near the Recreation Pier, at which the Peary ship is moored, at the foot of Twenty-fourth Street and the East River, last night. He is in Bellevue Hospital, suffering with a possible fracture of the skull.

Cody, with two other members of the Roosevelt crew, was returning to the pier after having been to see the city. As the three passed Avenue A, going east in Twenty-fourth Street, three men stepped up to them and asked them several questions about the recent trip to the north region. Acting under orders, Cody and his companions told their questioners that they could not talk of the trip with any one, whereupon the three men set upon Cody and beat him. His friends were attacked when they attempted to aid their comrade.

The cries of Cody and his companions attracted the attention of Policeman Lurane of the East Twenty-second Street Station. He was too late to capture the three thugs.

MUCH LESS COAL MINED.

Decline of 34,600,000 tons in Pennsylvania Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 3.—A decline of over 34,600,000 tons in the production of soft coal in Pennsylvania as compared with 1907 is a feature of the annual report on coal mining in Pennsylvania sent to Gov. Edwin S. Stuart by James E. Roderick, State Chief of Mines.

Regarding production Mr. Roderick reports that the 1908 output was 111,937,375 tons, against 149,539,047 net tons in 1907. He notes that while the tonnage of soft coal fell off last year, that of the anthracite mines leaped from 83,543,243 to 86,056,412 tons, a record breaker, due to the fact that anthracite is a household necessity and is not much affected by financial depressions. He also remarks upon the increase of demand for steam sizes of that coal, which a few years ago were considered of little value.

The bituminous coal tonnage was mined in 1,301 of the 1,462 mines in the State, 152,536 men being employed inside and 29,304 outside; the anthracite in 684 mines, employing 124,233 men inside and 50,270 outside.

MRS. REA'S JEWELS STOLEN.

At Least $15,000 Worth Taken from Her Room While She Slept.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 3.—A detective agency to-night announced that the home of Mrs. Henry R. Rea, wife of one of the Pittsburg steel manufacturers, and a niece of United States Senator George T. Oliver, had been robbed of diamonds valued at $40,000. The Rea family, however, assert that the missing jewels are not worth more than $15,000. The Rea home is in Sewickley Heights, the fashionable suburb of Pittsburg.

The detectives say that some nights ago Mrs. Rea attended a reception. She came home about midnight, and she and her maid both recollect putting the diamonds in cases which stood on Mrs. Rea's dressing case. In the morning the jewels were gone.

The detectives find evidence that a buggy was driven to a lane back of the Rea residence, which stands by itself on a high hill, and from there the thieves evidently climbed in through upper windows and looted the sleeping rooms. A large reward has been offered for the return of part of the jewels, as they had been in the family for many generations. One of the brooches stolen was a present to Mrs. Rea from Senator Oliver.

COOK WILL SUBMIT DATA IN AMERICA

Scientific Bodies Here Can Have Evidence That Goes to Copenhagen.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook to-night modified his previous attitude as to the production of his evidence that he reached the north pole. He said it must first go to the University of Copenhagen, but he would be willing to submit it also to any recognized American scientific bodies and have the conclusions rendered simultaneously.

Dr. Cook made his statement at a reception tendered to him by the Washington corps of correspondents at the National Press Club to-night, following his lecture at the National Theatre. He had been asked if he would be willing to put his case before an American scientific jury.

"No, I cannot agree to withhold from the University of Copenhagen my proofs until they have been examined and passed upon by American societies," he said. "My word is pledged, and I have no inclination to break it, whether the authorities of the University of Copenhagen will consent or not.

"The whole affair can easily be settled. I am willing to submit to scientific societies in America the same proof which I will submit to the University of Copenhagen. Any recognized scientific society will be supplied.

"If it can be arranged, and I will undertake to do so, to have the verdict of the University of Copenhagen, upon the proofs I will submit, withheld until the American scientific societies are ready to make public the verdicts they have reached. I can see no objection to having the findings of these different juries made public simultaneously. It seems to me that would be best."

Dr. Cook arrived in Washington not long before the time scheduled for his lecture. No committee of citizens or representatives of scientific societies was at the Union Station to meet him, but the large train shed was jammed with several thousand persons. Through the crowd the police, with some difficulty, opened a way to a waiting automobile.

Before Dr. Cook found shelter in it from the enthusiasm of the people he narrowly escaped a vigorous clubbing by a policeman, who failed to recognize him and who, angry over a punch in the back which somebody gave him, was dissuaded from using force upon Dr. Cook only by commands shouted by his Lieutenant. Reaching his hotel, Dr. Cook quickly dressed for the lecture, and while dinner was being served in his room received newspaper reporters.

Sir Alfred Keogh, Surgeon General of the British Army, who is stopping at the same hotel, created the only incident of diversion. Arriving at the hotel in advance of Dr. Cook, Sir Alfred approached the entrance and the waiting throng gave him a royal reception. He fell at once into the spirit of the situation and encouraged the delusion by responding to the hearty greeting by raising his hat. Finally he raised his walking stick and invited the enthusiasts to take a look at the north pole. At this point the real idol appeared upon the scene, and Sir Alfred was forgotten.

At the lecture Dr. Cook was not introduced by one of the Washington scientists, as was at first planned, the introductory speech being made by W. F. Gude, President of the Chamber of Commerce. Prof. Willis L. Moore, President of the National Geographic Society, declined to preside, as he did not wish to commit the organization. Every available seat was occupied and standing room capacity was taxed.

For the most part Dr. Cook covered ground he has already made familiar. He particularly won the crowd by his friendly references to the work done by his rival, Commander Peary. In his own efforts, he said, he had availed himself freely of the knowledge gained by Peary in his long and careful study of the problem presented to seekers after the pole.

At the hotel Dr. Cook replied to many questions.

"I do not intend to make an attack on the south pole," said Dr. Cook, in reply to an inquiry. "I do not know that I will again go into the frozen north. Certainly I will not for the purpose of again visiting the pole. My object has been accomplished so far as polar explorations go. The conquest of the south pole does not present the difficulties of the north. The presence of large bodies of land in the antarctic in comparatively close proximity to the pole permit the establishment of stations, which simplify the problem."

"I have not seen Mr. Whitney since his return," he also said. "I am going West from Washington, and do not expect to see him in the immediate future."

Among the guests at the Press Club were Representative Roberts of Massachusetts, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Reynolds, Secretary Mosely of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, Director John Barrett of the Bureau of American Republics, and Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the Government's pure food expert.

When Dr. Cook was introduced to Dr. Wiley, the latter at once began to ply the explorer with questions.

"Now I want you to tell me what 'pemmican' is?" demanded Dr. Wiley, who appeared more interested in what the explorer had to eat on his polar dash than in the discovery of the pole.

Dr. Cook explained that "pemmican" consisted of strips of meat, without the fat, dried in the sun and pounded together with melted fat and often dried vegetables.

Dr. Wiley shook his head and said: "Well, if that's the case, I guess we'll have to push the prosecutions under the Pure Food law to the North Pole."

COOK CALLS ON HARVEY.

Merely Social, Says Publisher—Report of Deal on Book.

Special to The New York Times.

DEAL BEACH, N. J., Oct. 3.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook dropped into Deal Beach this morning to call on Col. George Harvey of Harper & Brothers, who is confined to his home as the result of a recent automobile accident.

Col. Harvey's automobile met the doctor at the station, and later conveyed him to Trenton, where he caught an express train for Washington.

Col. Harvey said to-night that Dr. Cook's visit was purely a social one, they being old friends. Reports had it that the conference had for its subject the sale of Dr. Cook's book rights, for which he is said to have been offered $250,000.

COOK'S GUIDE IN SEATTLE.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 3.—Edward Burrill, guide to Dr. Frederick Cook in the expedition to Mount McKinley, arrived here yesterday from Montana.

He denied to-day that he was going to New York to meet Dr. Cook.

NO DOUBT, SAYS BRIDGMAN.

Promises Convincing Evidence That Only One White Man Reached Pole.

Special to The New York Times.

DOBBS FERRY, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The Peary-Cook controversy was brought unexpectedly into a Hudson-Fulton celebration meeting in the Rev. J. M. Trout's Presbyterian Church here to-night, when Edgar Mayhew Bacon, author of the Henry Hudson biography, and Herbert L. Bridgman of the Peary Arctic Club met on the same platform. Mr. Bacon was down to speak on the subject of the influence of the Netherlands on the United States, and in the course of his speech remarked that the religious influence of Massachusetts on this country had been greatly exaggerated.

Mr. Bridgman was born in Massachusetts, and prefaced his remarks on Robert Fulton with a vigorous defense of his native State. Then, meaning to cast oil on the troubled waters, the Rev. Mr. Trout, after Mr. Bridgman had sat down, said that the two preceding speakers' dispute about Massachusetts against New York reminded him of the Peary-Cook controversy. Mr. Bridgman jumped up immediately.

"There is no occasion for any difference of opinion in that controversy," he said. "The north pole has been seen by only one white man. In a very few days every member of this audience will be in no doubt whatever about it."

PEARY IN A COLLISION.

Helps Steer and Reassures Passengers When Steamers Meet.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 3.—Commander Robert E. Peary, Mrs. Peary, and forty other passengers were on the harbor steamer Aucosisco this afternoon when her sister craft, the Merryconeag, crashed into her off Peak's Island, Casco Bay. Commander and Mrs. Peary were in the pilot house of the Aucosisco with Capt. Morrill, when, the Merryconeag, coming out of Trefethen's Landing, suddenly failed to answer her wheel and struck her full in the bow.

The rail and boards of the lower deck of the Aucosisco were torn away for five feet, and the frightened passengers crowded for the rear. Commander Peary stood by to help Capt. Morrill with the wheel, and then stepped to the deck and helped reassure the passengers.

Luckily, the boats were not at full speed, and both were able to continue after minor repairs had been made. The Aucosisco took Commander and Mrs. Peary to South Harpswell, and from there they went by motor boat to Eagle Island.

POPE'S ILLNESS RECURS.

Physicians Order Complete Rest and Audiences Are Suspended.

ROME, Oct. 3.—For several days the Pope has been ill, but he continued to see visitors, hoping to overcome what he considered a slight indisposition.

Yesterday he received in audience one of the Archbishops, who noticed that he appeared tired and languid. After the audience was ended the symptoms became aggravated, there being considerable pain and swelling in the leg, which indicated a recurrence of gout.

Although the attack is slight the Pope's physicians have insisted upon complete rest and audiences have been suspended.

B. & O. READY FOR STRIKE.

Railroad Brings in 450 Strikebreakers to Its St. George, S. I., Yards.

Six passenger cars containing 450 men arrived in the Baltimore & Ohio yards at St. George, Staten Island, early yesterday morning and are side tracked there. The men are living aboard the cars. They are strike breakers ready to go to work on the freight trains of the Baltimore & Ohio and the passenger trains of the Staten Island Railroad in case the local employes on them quit work.

The trains were running last night without a break, and it is not believed the strikebreakers will be needed.

The railroad officials say that Conductor Barton, who was discharged because he gave information to the counsel of a man suing the company, will not be reinstated. The employes have threatened to strike unless he is. The new men held in readiness are all railroaders of experience and mostly regular employes of the road gathered at other yards.

MARY GARDEN A NUN?

Declaration of Present Intentions—Due to Decide Three Years Hence.

Miss Mary Garden has written to a friend in New York to the effect that when she retires from the stage in two or three years, she intends to take the veil and enter a convent. At present, while she is singing at the Opera in Paris, she is devoting her spare time to religious studies, being sure that she will end in a retreat.

Prince Mavrocordato is still said to be very attentive to the singer, but Miss Garden still says she has decided never to marry.

There are many incidents in Miss Garden's life not unlike those in George Moore's heroine, Evelyn Innes, herself an opera singer. Miss Innes, it will be remembered, after a successful career on the stage and a series of love affairs, took the veil, and became Sister Teresa.

Recently Miss Garden said that she thought her career on the stage would end in about three years. Then apparently it will be marriage or the veil.

SCORES APPENDIX OPERATIONS

Dr. Page of Boston Says They Are Criminal and Law Should Forbid Them

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 3.—"An operation for appendicitis should be called a criminal operation, and as such should be prohibited by law," declares Dr. Charles E. Page, one of Boston's best-known physicians.

"I have been following the records of appendicitis operations ever since the craze for appendectomy started," says Dr. Page, "and I confidently believe that the day is coming when the people will finally realize that the cutting of the appendix is a criminal operation.

"As for the widely proclaimed benefits and saving of life by operations to cut the appendix, it seems hardly necessary to cite the long list of deaths following the operation. Only recently we have had the striking instances of Clyde Fitch, the great playwright, and Gov. Johnson of Minnesota. The surgeons cut off Gov. Johnson's appendix a year or so ago; they operated on him a second time, and on the third operation he fell a victim to mistaken modern theories. I have kept track of the appendectory deaths for twenty years, and the list is appalling."

CANNON'S IRE ROUSED BY PARSONS' CHARGE

HE DENIES ANY COMPACT

"Parsons—Why He's the Fellow Who Struck Hands with Hearst"—Calls for Names.

Special to The New York Times.

DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 3.—"Humph," growled Speaker Cannon—only that was not the word he used—"if Parsons is looking for a scrap he'll have plenty of chances for it."

Sitting in his library to-day, the Speaker read for the first time the complete statement issued by Congressman Herbert Parsons of New York containing a declaration that the re-election of the Speaker of the House had been due to treason by "up-State" New York Republicans.

He read it with a running comment, in which the word "lie" was muttered. After he had completed it he started to recite the history of the New York representative's life from memory, adding a few conclusions as to his own idea of the Easterner's causes for an outburst. It was by no means a delicate intimation that "political exigency" had played a part in it or that Mr. Parsons might feel the least bit dissatisfied with his committee assignments.

For good measure he added a word or two—more, in fact, than he previously had uttered on that subject—in reference to Congressman Fowler.

"I don't make an hullabaloo about such things," he explained. "When I first used to go hunting as a boy along the Wabash I saw one kind of an animal that I never had seen before, and kicked at it. I was weeks in recovering.

"I was weeks in recovering," repeated the Speaker, "and since that time I never have kicked at that kind of an animal—in private life or in politics.

"Why," he said, "do you know I don't believe I really know half the members of Congress outside their seats? There are only 400 of them, but if they should file right into this room now I don't believe I could call half their names."

He Remembers Parsons.

This paved the way for a question whether he remembered Congressman Parsons. The Speaker explained that he remembered him, and that he would remember him. A brief excerpt of what the New Yorker had to say had been read to him the evening before.

"I said to the young man who brought it to me," he related, "'I have no knowledge or information of the matter to which the dispatch refers,' and I'll say that to you."

He was shown the complete statement as it was published. That was when he said something that didn't sound like "humph."

"'Says Speaker's Job Was Saved,'" he read. "Why, the Speaker's job wasn't in danger. The danger was in the rules that might be passed—whether the La Follettes and their followers, Champ Clark and the Bryan Democrat-Populists, should make the rules. The resolution named Champ"—and there was a suggestion that the "Ch" had been replaced by an "sc" on his tongue—"whether Champ Clark, five insurgents, and then—then five Republicans should constitute the Committee on Rules.

"We had to have a rule to give so many days to the tariff and then dispose of it. If we hadn't we would have been talking there yet. Why in the Senate—that little body—they kept it three months. Look what we would have done to it.

"'The Speaker's job saved' now! I was elected by a Republican majority—as I recollect it—with 27 or 28 votes to spare. I should have had 46, but the La Follette fellows wouldn't come into caucus. Yes, when the question came up La Follette, and, yes, yes, Cummins, went in to lead their forces.

"And the insurgents scattered their votes. They didn't dare centre their votes on Clark, but scattered them here and there.

Troubles of His Own.

"They knew that all the Southern Democrats were Bryan Populists. The wheels are moving down in Louisiana and Georgia, and men like Broussard and Ransdell and Hardwick and Brantley are not Bryan Populists."

He resumed reading the article, muttering the words of the Parsons statement.

"I don't know anything about their affairs down there," he declared, "and if there was such a deal I knew nothing about it.

"I've got troubles of my own here in my own district trying to take care of things without taking a hand in their troubles in New York.

"I don't believe I ever heard of this legislation about signature registration until now, and I don't understand it. It seems to me I have read in the papers that the Republicans have nominated a man to run for Mayor of New York, and that the Democrats some time ago nominated a man named Gaynor; but I don't know whether they are going to have an election this Fall. Is it this Fall or next Spring?

"Of course, I don't know what political exigency forced Parsons to make this statement. If I knew more about what was going on down there I might see the necessity for it. If Parsons is looking for a scrap he'll have plenty of chances for it."

He paused and sat upright in his chair. He banged his fist on the table.

"Treason? "Parsons!" he exclaimed. "Why, he's the fellow who struck hands with Hearst down there—you remember when it was Hearst against Hughes?"

He was silent for a moment as he sat back in his chair. "U-m-m," he muttered. "Committee assignments."

"What was that?" he was asked.

"Well, may be Mr. Parsons has been thinking about his committee assignments."

"Was there something about his committees he didn't like?" he was asked.

"Didn't he get what he wanted?"

"I remember something that I guess I won't mention."

He continued the newspaper clipping, including the exoneration of Timothy L. Woodruff and Vice President Sherman.

"Why does not he say what he means?" he demanded. "If there was a deal with the Tammany forces why doesn't he say who was in it? Why doesn't he give the names? I don't know anything about it and I might be glad to know."

The name of Congressman Littauer of Gloversville, N. Y., came up during the parting stage of the conversation, with an insinuation that the Parsons attack might have been directed against that staunch defender of the tariff, but the Speaker waved the question aside.

RAINES AND MALBY RAIL AT PARSONS

Up-State Republicans Enraged at His Charge That They Were in League with Tammany.

LIGHT ON THINGS AT ALBANY

Defeat of the Parsons Election Reform Bills May Be Explained Through This Controversy.

Bitter recrimination from some influential up-State Republican leaders followed yesterday on the charge made by Congressman Herbert Parsons, Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee, that up-State Republicans had entered into a deal with Tammany Hall to defeat election reforms Mr. Parsons was anxious to have the last Legislature pass in return for Democratic aid to maintain the sway of Speaker Cannon in the House of Representatives when that was in danger at the organization of Congress for the extraordinary tariff session.

Senator John Raines, majority leader of the State Senate, and Congressman George R. Malby, who is a former State Senator and has kept closely in touch with the Republican State machine on trips to Washington, both spoke about Mr. Parsons's attack with as much anger as though they had felt that they were personally included in his blanket indictment of party treason against up-State leaders in the machine.

After listening to the talk of these two powerful up-State leaders, it is difficult to get away from the impression that for some time to come Mr. Parsons will be the centre of a storm within the Republican Party in this State. Regarding the possible extent of the trouble that seems to be brewing it would be folly to venture a prediction.

In many up-State counties there is in progress at this time a separation of the Republican goats from the sheep over the direct primary and other issues. Should Mr. Parsons, in view of his present isolation from the machine, be compelled to take sides, it may be safely predicted that he would land with the reform element in the party, which in some localities is preparing to try conclusions with the regulars. Mr. Parsons has a pretty strong organization solidly behind him, too.

There were denials, and then more denials, that there had been a deal of any kind from Republicans who took exception to Mr. Parsons's accusations. But there were some further disclosures, too, and these shed considerable light on certain things that happened at Albany during the last two months of the legislative session.

It was learned yesterday from a well-informed source that the defeat of Mr. Parsons's proposed election reforms had a twofold purpose—first, to pay for favors received by Speaker Cannon from the New York Democrats, and, secondly, to punish Mr. Parsons for voting with the Republican insurgents against the Cannon rules. Mr. Parsons was the only Representative from this State who showed such a degree of independence. There was but one other from the East, Mr. Gardner of Massachusetts.

When Mr. Parsons cast his vote Speaker Cannon used up a lot of picturesquely Cannonesque language over it—language, it is needless to say, which would look as much out of place in print as a playing card in a prayer book. Parsons, it was learned, was haled before the Speaker and told that if he intended to vote against the rules he ought to have served notice on the Republican organization, and that if it had been suspected beforehand that he was that sort of an individual he would never have had a chance to come to Congress at all.

Then all hands began to round up the Democrats. A certain man who was supposed to have a pull with Controller Metz was sent after Senator McCarren.

The Brooklyn Senator and everybody else who has been mentioned have denied that there was any sort of a deal. But the Republicans who represented Mr. Parsons's bailiwick in the Senate and some of the Republican Assemblymen from New York County who had been holding aloof from the House machine had it taken out of them when they were seeking to have measures passed for the benefit of their constituents in the city.

The opposition, as a rule, was marshaled by Senator Grady, the minority leader. It required much parliamentary finesse to get away with the contract without disclosing the deal. Majority Leader Raines, who never was quite as good at that as is Grady, sometimes felt satisfied to act as lieutenant to the minority leader.

There were other considerations besides the defeat of Mr. Parsons's election reforms. There were men in Albany in the latter days of the legislative session who were well aware that a blanket agreement existed in accordance with which a bi-partisan combine could be marshaled and put on the trail of any measure which the bosses of either side opposed. This has been denied, but the facts bear out the affirmative assertions of those who knew what was going on.

Senator Raines, who has been in the city to attend the Hudson-Fulton Celebration, said just before his departure that he had read Mr. Parsons's attack and that there wasn't the slightest foundation for his statement. He was boiling with indignation.

"Parsons seems to be looking for trouble—an unwise thing to do for a man so young and inexperienced in politics," said the veteran leader of the Senate grimly. "His imagination is running away with him. I know, and any sensible person must know, that the up-State Republicans couldn't think of forming any sort of a combine with the representatives of Tammany Hall."

Minority Leader Grady spoke with cutting irony about Mr. Parsons's statement.

"Parsons is seeing in the distance that arctic storm which will break on Nov. 2," said Mr. Grady. "The young man is making a straight line for his igloo like a wise Eskimo."

Congressman George H. Malby said it was untrue that any deal existed.

"It is foolish of Parsons to talk of these things—I mean to make such suggestions; it doesn't help the party any," said Mr. Malby. I was through that fight, and if there had been any deal I should have known. Those bills beat themselves."

"It looks to me," Mr. Malby went on, "as though Parsons was getting ready to prepare excuses for his quadrennial defeat due to his failure to look after his organization. Two years ago he made an alliance with Hearst and went down to defeat, as he ought to. Much as I regret it, much as all Republicans must regret it, it would seem that he fears the same result this year. But he shouldn't let anybody know. The Republican ticket down here is so good that it will probably win in spite of Parsons.

"Taft took office on March 4. On March 15 Congress convened. It was absolutely essential if he were to carry out his tariff programme that he should have the aid of the Republican organization in the House, that the Republicans should organize that branch of Congress, not a handful of insurgents, and that the rules should be continued.

"For some reason Parsons voted against the rules. He and Gardner of Massachusetts stood together among the Representatives from the East. I think Parsons even voted against the modified rules which were introduced by Mr. Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, one of the most brilliant parliamentarians in Congress.

"Fitzgerald and thirty-four other Democrats, for good and sufficient reason, saw wisdom in voting with the Republican organization."

The bills the defeat of which gave rise to the Parsons attack were introduced in the Assembly by Artemus Ward, Jr., of the Twenty-fifth Assembly District. They were defeated in the Senate by from ten to twelve votes. The vote zig-zagged across party lines in the fashion usual when a measure had been singled out for slaughter by Senators Raines and Grady.

"I worked as hard for those bills as did ever a member of the Legislature for any bill of his," said Mr. Ward to a TIMES reporter yesterday. "I was told that it would be no use by persons who ought to know. I don't care to discuss Mr. Parsons's statement. He generally knows what he is talking about, though."

BANNARD CAMPAIGN TO OPEN THIS WEEK

Battle Will Begin While the Fusion Ticket Is Being Completed.

MESSAGE FROM BUTLER

President of Columbia and Other Prominent Men Offer Their Congratulations.

Otto T. Bannard, the Fusion nominee for Mayor, spent his first Sunday as a candidate quietly at home. His headquarters in the Fifth Avenue Building was closed.

This week will see the Fusion ticket completed, the various Republican county and borough conventions, which have not yet been held, all being scheduled for dates prior to next Saturday. Mr. Bannard will begin his speaking campaign this week, together with the other Fusion nominees already on the ticket.

Several letters from prominent persons indorsing Mr. Bannard's candidacy were given out for publication this morning before the Bannard headquarters closed on Saturday night. Among them was this one from President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University:

Columbia University,
In the City of New York,
President's Room,
September 23, 1909.

Mr. Otto T. Bannard,
New York Trust Company,
26 Broad Street, New York:

My dear Mr. Bannard: I take this first opportunity of offering you my sincere and hearty congratulations upon your nomination for the Mayoralty, as the representative of the anti-Tammany forces in this community. Whatever I can do to promote your election will be eagerly done, for there are few men, in my opinion, can compare with you for the office for which you have been named. It would be an undisguised blessing to this community were it to have you as its executive head for the next four years.

Sincerely yours,
NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER.

Seth Low wrote:

My dear Mr. Bannard: I have learned with great pleasure of your nomination. I hasten to send you my congratulations, and to express my earnest hope for your success. Just now, and for a week or two, I am overwhelmed with my duties as Chairman of the Reception Committee of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission. Before the campaign ends, however, I hope I may have an opportunity, on some fitting occasion, to express upon the platform the reasons why I think you deserve the support of our fellow-citizens.

Again, with best wishes, I am
Yours sincerely,
SETH LOW.

John Harsen Rhoades also sent a note of congratulation to the Fusion candidate.

The Bronx Central Committee of the Citizens' Union met yesterday afternoon and indorsed Douglas Mathewson, the Republican candidate for Borough President, with the proviso that if it should be found desirable to slate an independent Democrat for that nomination, it should go to ex-Park Commissioner Joseph I. Berry of the Bronx. The Central Committee also indorsed the entire fusion ticket as it stands at present.

For the purpose of introducing Mr. Bannard to the Republican voters of the east side, a dinner of nearly 100 covers will be given to-night in his honor at Lorber's restaurant, 274 Grand Street. Besides many east siders, the guests will include State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff, Judge Charles H. Murray of the Court of Claims, Secretary of State Koenig, Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum, County Chairman Herbert Parsons, ex-Judge Charles S. Whitman, Supreme Court Justice Blanchard, and Judge Otto A. Rosalsky.

AN APPEAL FOR GAYNOR.

Ex-Assemblyman Kempner Urges the German-Americans to Support Him.

Ex-Assemblyman Otto Kempner has announced that he will issue a call shortly to what he characterizes as the liberal voters, particularly among German-Americans, to rally to the support of Justice Gaynor.

A short time ago he wrote to Theodore Sutro, President of the United German Societies of the City of New York and of the German-American Alliance of the State of New York, urging him to take up the cause, and says that he has a promise from him that the matter will be brought before the Board of Managers of the United Societies at an early date.

In his letter to Mr. Sutro, Mr. Kempner says of Justice Gaynor:

"He is a person of exceptional moral courage, whose public record denotes the possession of rare and sterling qualities. His individuality is characterized by a strong sense of justice, and a broad-minded appreciation of popular rights. These personal traits have found expression in his career as a jurist and have made him known as the champion of the people."

He goes on to emphasize Justice Gaynor's "personal liberty" views as a reason why German-Americans should vote fusion conferrees for turning Gaynor ment.

PASTOR TALKS OF ELECTION.

Dr. Burrell Blames the Good People for Municipal Sins.

The Rev. Dr. David James Burrell, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, spoke last night of the coming election, and asked: "What sort of a Mayor do we want?"

"This town is not above criticism," Dr. Burrell said. "Robbery is our municipal sin. We are being blackmailed night and day, systematically. Yet we do not care. There are enough good people in this city to put an end to it, if they would only take the trouble. The trouble is, they do not like to be troubled.

"We want a Mayor who has a clean record, who is above private or public scandal, a man who is a friend of law and order. We can have such a man if we want him, and if we do not get a good Mayor it is our own fault."

MAN WITH FLEET DROWNED.

Painter on Submarine Tender Is Thrown from a Launch.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Samuel E. Herman of Corona, L. I., a third-class painter on the tender Castine of the submarine fleet, was drowned this afternoon.

Herman was lifting an anchor to a launch when the launch swerved, throwing him into the water. A seaman plunged after him, but Herman did not again come to the surface. The body has not been recovered.

Named Boy for Cook.

Explorer Cook has a great admirer in Long Island City as was demonstrated yesterday when at the last moment of the christening of his son John H. Thiry of 181 Academy Street, in that city, he decided that the name should be James Henry Cook Thiry. Mr. Thiry is 87 years old. He has been identified with educational affairs for fifty years.

Nonogenarian Killed on the Stairs.

Mrs. Regina Braun, who was in her ninetieth year was killed early yesterday morning by falling down the steps leading to the basement dining room in her home at 52 Division Avenue, Williamsburg. Her neck was broken. She lived with an invalid daughter.

In Music Also, Marvelous Progress Has Been Made

JUST as the flying machine waited for the development of the gas engine to make it practical, so the piano awaited the PIANOLA to make piano-playing available to everyone.

The Weber Grand Pianola Piano

Today any untrained lover of music may purchase the most distinguished of modern pianofortes—the Weber Grand. Almost immediately upon coming into possession of this superb instrument he may play all of the masterpieces of music, in a manner to win the applause of critical musicians.

Into the Weber Grand Piano Has Been Built a New Model of the PIANOLA

Following the immense popular success of the Upright PIANOLA PIANO it was inevitable that the Grand Piano with its superiority of tone-quality and action, must eventually be changed to meet the universal demand for instruments that everyone can play. Coincident with the discovery of a way to adapt the PIANOLA to the Grand, has come a startling development in the PIANOLA itself:—

The Full Scale PIANOLA With Its Striking Improvements

The PIANOLA used in the Weber Grand PIANOLA PIANO plays the full-scale of the piano, or 88 notes. Thus the extreme notes of the piano—the deepest bass and highest treble may be utilized with telling effect.

As in earlier models of the PIANOLA, the METROSTYLE—without which musicians refuse to approve any Piano-player—is present to insure an artistic interpretation. The THEMODIST also, an exclusive device belonging to the PIANOLA, is likewise here to emphasize the dominating themes and give cantabile effects such as accomplished pianists produce.

Besides these indispensable features of the PIANOLA are two new devices that give an

Added Refinement to the PIANOLA'S Playing

These features are the Graduated Accompaniment and the New Sustaining Pedal Device.

The Graduated Accompaniment enables the performer to vary the volume of the accompaniment—to make it rise and fall with the flow of melody. The Sustaining Pedal Device enables even those wholly devoid of musical skill, to use the piano's sustaining pedal in the manner of highly trained pianists.

Progress in public appreciation of music has in recent years been rapid. It is undoubted that the extensive popularity of the PIANOLA and PIANOLA Piano has contributed largely to this result. In developing the PIANOLA and in extending its use to include the Grand, the manufacturers of the Weber Grand PIANOLA Piano have made an additional contribution to music-culture as momentous in its way as the invention of the PIANOLA itself.

HEARST LEADERS SAY HE WILL RUN AGAIN

Heads of the Independence League Meet to Decide That Body's Future Action.

OPPOSED TO BOTH TICKETS

Gehring Declares Hearst League Will Try to Enlist Support of All Independent Voters.

After a conference with William Randolph Hearst yesterday afternoon, Charles E. Gehring, Chairman of the New York County Committee of the Indepenrence League, announced last night that it was not improbable that the founder of the League would enter the Mayoralty fight at the head of an independent ticket. Mr. Gehring would not make a definite statement, but implied that Mr. Hearst had signified his willingness to enter the field again this year.

In reply to the direct question as to whether Mr. Hearst would run or not, Mr. Gehring replied: "You will have to ask Mr. Hearst about that."

"But did he not indicate his intentions in any way?" he was asked.

"Well, I believe to-night as I did last Spring that Mr. Hearst will not shirk his duty," Mr. Ghring answered.

From statements by Mr. Gehring and other leaders of the league who were about The Hermitage last night, where the conference was held, it was clear that the majority of the organization consider it Mr. Hearst's duty to make the fight this year a three-cornered one. Mr. Gehring admitted that the leaders of the league were urging their leader to take up the standard again. He also declared that the league would not indorse either Justice Gaynor or Mr. Bannard.

When asked when the postponed City Convention of the league would be held, Mr. Gehring replied: "I cannot say at this time. The convention has been postponed indefinitely, and the date will not be set for a day or two."

"Will the League hold a City Convention at all?" he was asked.

"I would rather not answer that. All I can say just now is that the League still exists. Whether its organization is stolen by Woodruff or Murphy or McCarren or Cannon or Taft, we will not give up without a fight. We do not sympathize with either of the nominations already made. The League, and, I believe, the large body of independent voters in the city will not stand for either Mr. Bannard or Judge Gaynor. These nominations are just another example of the contention that has always been made by the League, that an understanding exists between Tammany Hall and the Republican State organization."

"Then you consider the things Mr. Parsons had to say yesterday more of an admission than an accusation?" he was asked.

"I leave that for any one to judge," replied Mr. Gehring.

At the conference which was held at the Hermitage last night there were present all the important leaders of the league, including former Assemblyman Charles A. Allen, John J. Hopper, and Melville G. Palliser.

"I have been busy for the last two days; up all night last night and at it again all day to-day," said Mr. Gehring, "talking with men of all parties and with all sorts of affiliations. I have conferred with nearly every real independent movement in the city and I am convinced that the sentiment is against both Justice Gaynor and Mr. Bannard. I cannot tell you yet just what we will do. We want to do what the independent voters of the city think best. Our position this Fall will be independent rather than independence."

A disinterested Democrat, who is more or less impressed with the power of the Independence League despite its position at the present time, declared when he was told of Mr. Gehring's intimations, "That means that Hearst will run, and it is the best way out of it for him and his organization, although it may cost him a lot of money. Every vote that he will poll will be a vote out of the Gaynor column.

"From Mr. Gehring's hesitancy in fixing the date for the league City Convention I would say as a guess that they intend to let the Tammany delegates take the convention and indorse the Democratic ticket if they please. Then Hearst and the men that Gehring seems to think he can bring into line behind him can nominate by petition, change their emblem, and take a separate column. With Hearst at the head of the ticket and the familiar Independence or so-called radical names in the column, no one who wished to vote it would mistake it, even if the old emblem of the scales was over a Gaynor column."

A man who knows Mr. Hearst's attitude said last night:

"Hearst has stood firm for the last few months in his declaration that he would not run again for office. I know, however, that he cares more for the league and what it stands for than for almost anything else in the world. If they are able to convince him that it would be for the best for him to enter the fight, he will do it, and put up the battle of his life."

TAMMANY NOMINEES IN DOUBT.

Cloughen Thought to be the Candidate for Borough President.

With the Tammany county and borough conventions scheduled for to-morrow night, the several nominees are not yet decided upon. The most important of the offices, and the one most strongly coveted, is that of Borough President of Manhattan. This seems to be about the only place on the subsidiary tickets that has been decided upon.

It looks very much as if John Cloughen, the present Commissioner of Public Works of Manhattan, would get the nomination. Borough President Ahearn is understood to have withdrawn from the field.

Sheriff Foley, who was mentioned strongly for the place and is one of the most influential leaders in Tammany has practically withdrawn from the field. Fire Commissioner Hayes, who has also been pressed for the nomination, declares that he is not a candidate.

The question of who shall go on the ticket for Sheriff has not yet been decided. There are many candidates. The most prominent are County Clerk Dooling, P. J. Conway, President of the Irish-American Athletic Club, and Eugene J. McGuire, one of the Bronx Tammany leaders.

James J. Hagen, one of the most popular and powerful leaders in the hall; William J. Wright, now the leader of Isaac A. Hopper's and Justice Hendricks's district, and William Sohmer, Treasurer of the Tammany Society, want the nomination for County Clerk.

Justice Truax will undoubtedly be renominated for the Supreme Court Bench. The nominations for the other two vacancies seem to lie between George F. Roesch, Herman Joseph and Benjamin Hoffman, members of the City and Municipal Court benches, and Former Corporation Counsel Delany. Joseph's selection is believed to be the most certain of them all.

CAMPAIGN MUSEUM READY.

Committee of 100 Will Attempt Thus to Prove Tammany Misrule.

The alleged misrule of Tammany will be put on exhibition to-day in the new free-for-all Civic Museum which will be opened under the auspices of the Committee of One Hundred at Union Square West and Sixteenth Street. The museum will be the biggest thing in its line ever attempted for campaign purposes. It bristles with striking exhibits and will have a "Chamber of Horrors" attachment in the cellar.

This will be a reproduction of one of New York's 101,117 dark tenement house rooms. There will be the wretched furniture of a poor family, but besides there will be exhibits and statistical tables to show the ravages of preventable disease in congested sections of the city through neglect of duty by one city department or another.

On a table in the Chamber will be a papier-maché turkey; in a tiny crib a large doll.

"Do you want the baby or the turkey?" says a placard. "Tammany says never mind the baby. It's dead; here's a turkey instead—53,870 children under five years died in this city last year from preventable diseases."

"I reckon that will make some people wake up to what the Sullivan free turkey feeds cost in human life," said Henry Moskowitz, a member of the Committee of One Hundred, who will act as director of the museum.

Another exhibit is a huge tank filled with water, from which jagged make-believe miniature rocks rise. It is plain that the steamer "New York," which is seeking to navigate the treacherous water of the tank, will have a hard time of it. "Tammany's policy: Eat, drink, and make merry; after us the deluge," says a placard. On the tank there is also this placard: "In the midst of Life we are in Debt."

The so-called "History of Tammany Hall," in terse paragraphs, furnishes another exhibit. Around a placard bearing in red letters the inscription "The Tammany Patronage Trust" is a series of placards containing lists of officeholders and the salary paid to them grouped by districts.

"Tammany Giveth Her Beloved Sleep" is the caption for a cartoon showing some $50 a day Condemnation Commissioners peacefully asleep around a table.

The museum will be kept open from 9 in the morning to 10 at night. There will be guides in attendance always, and in the near future there will be speakers to add their appeal to that of the exhibits.

It is intended to duplicate some of the exhibits and open similar museums in various parts of the city, adapting the exhibits to the character of the locality.

CURTISS CUT SHORT IN SECOND FLIGHT

the endurance of the balloons and the skill of the pilots, instead of premature descents to avoid plunges into the ocean, as in the past, is expected to result. The wind was light in the valley, but was about twelve miles an hour at a hight of 4,000 feet.

Perfect organization made it possible to carry out the programme without a hitch. The sole disappointment was the receipt of a dispatch from Count Zeppelin saying that he would be unable to visit the grounds with his airship, Zeppelin III. This was partly offset by the ascension of the Parseval, which went through a variety of evolutions, to the great delight of the cheering spectators.

Not less than 25,000 persons circulated in the inclosure, and at least 175,000 were grouped about the natural mountain amphitheatre and witnessed the departure of the contestants.

The Italian balloon, piloted by Signor Piacenza, was the first to leave, the others following at five-minute intervals.

Mr. Mix was elated at the prospects as he made a final inspection of his balloon, America II.

"It will be the greatest race on record," he said, "and a real long-distance contest, in which the best balloon will win. If the southwester holds it will drive us over Southern Russia. We are carrying provisions for three days, but are discarding our mountain garments."

The band played "America" as Mix and his companion climbed into the basket. All the Americans present joined in hearty cheers as the balloon gracefully ascended and disappeared like the others in the direction of Vienna. America's chances for victory are placed high, even by the competitors.

As the Swiss balloons ascended the mountain sides rang with the Swiss national anthem, which continued until the last balloon had disappeared over the mountain tops in the glow of the setting sun.

Following is a list of the starters by countries and pilots:

America—Edgar W. Mix; Austria-Hungary—Dr. Anton Schlein; Belgium—Leon De Brockere, Georges Geerls; France—Alfred Leblanc, Emile Dubonnet, Maurice Bienaime; Germany—Capt. von Abercron, Dr. Brockelmann, Paul Heckel; England—Frank McLean; Italy—Guido Piacenza, Capt. Frassinotti; Spain—Alberto Oettli; Switzerland—V. De Beauclair, Capt. Messner, Col. Schaeck.

The Spanish balloon Montana, piloted by the Marquis Salvetiera; the Belgian balloon Henriette, in command of M. Vleminex, and the Italian Ruwenzori, piloted by Signor Usuelli, were entered, but did not start.

FLEW ABOVE RAIN CLOUDS.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Oct. 3.—The balloon Springfield, after a morning trip of four and a half hours from here landed in the meadow of Edward E. Merriam in Willimantic, Conn., at 9 o'clock to-day.

The balloon was piloted by William Vansleet of Pittsfield and carried as passengers Waldo Johnstone and F. Ambrose Clark of Cooperstown, N. Y. The distance traveled is 77 miles in an air line.

The voyagers struck heavy rain clouds at the start and had to ascend to 7,000 feet to go above them. The clouds eventually broke away and the greater part of the journey was made at 2,000 feet. The landing was rough owing to a strong ground current which prevailed.

MEXICAN INVENTS AIRSHIP.

Claims That It Will Excel All Other Machines in Speed.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 3.—Prof. Stampa, the son of a Mexican millionaire and a member of the Faculty of the School of Mines, has invented an airship which he claims will exceed all other machines in speed. Six successful flights were made with the model yesterday.

Orders have been placed in Paris for the building of two large machines.

At a meeting of the Aviation Committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce yesterday a resolution to this effect was adopted, and copies will be sent to President Taft, the Secretaries of the War and Navy Departments, and other District and Federal officials.

SOCIALIST LEAGUE SEES A NEW ARCADIA

OURS A CHRISTIAN NATION?

Two Clergymen Tell the Gathering at Carnegie Hall That We Are Anti-Christian.

The New York Fellowship of the Christian Socialist League of America had a mass meeting yesterday at Carnegie Hall which the Socialists called a Hudson-Fulton meeting. The aim was to have the speakers show how the co-operative commonwealth could be brought to pass, and thus to meet the oft-repeated objection of non-Socialists that the ideas of the party may be beautiful but that they are impracticable. For that purpose Carl D. Thompson of Milwaukee, a Wisconsin Socialist Senator, was brought on to deliver the principal speech.

The meeting, however, was not a little devoted to the Irish and the suffragettes. Just before the speaking began, at 3 o'clock, there was a shout from outside the main doors, whereupon a green banner appeared at the head of the principal aisle. The banner was that of Irish Socialists of New York. Behind it came a long line of men.

The banner was set up at the back of the stage. Though only one of the three speakers, Mr. Thompson, had spoken when 5 o'clock came, Secretary John D. Long of the Socialist League, who presided, said that the time limit of the meeting expired at 5:30 o'clock, and that the Irish Socialists desired to present a banner to the National Progressive Woman's Suffrage Union of New York before the doors closed.

Whereupon the Rev. Alexander Irvine and the Rev. Charles P. Fagnani of the Union Theological Seminary, the other two speakers scheduled for the afternoon, gave place to Stephen Marion Reynolds of Terra Haute, Ind., who turned over the banner to little Miss Bina Flynn, who, in turn, presented it to Miss Helen Murphy, Chairman of the National Progressive Woman's Suffrage Union of New York.

The banner had on it the word "Justice," and beneath it the name of the four States in which woman suffrage now obtains. Oklahoma was printed with a question mark after it, because, as Miss Murphy said, the plank giving woman suffrage had to be withdrawn before Oklahoma would be admitted to the Union.

The Rev. C. S. Bullock of Stamford, Conn., who posed as Robert Fulton in the celebration last week, still keeping up the rôle of the returned inventor, gave a promise for the future, which was based apparently on whether or not Socialism triumphs. He took occasion to say that it was a sacrilege to call America a Christian Nation. The Rev. Mr. Long also in his introductory remarks, declared that America, which is so often referred to as one of the Christian nations, was not only not Christian, but anti-Christian.

Then came Senator Thompson, of Milwaukee, perhaps the strongest Socialist city in America. He was to tell how the co-operative commonwealth could be brought about. The burden of his speech, which lasted nearly two hours, was: "Go out and get votes."

The Irish banner at his back had two slogans on it—the one, which was given by a famous Irish regiment at Waterloo, "Clear the way," the other, "Up, men, and at them." They sounded the keynote of Senator Thompson's speech.

He said that when the Socialists grew powerful in the city government of Milwaukee they proposed to take over the water supply system. They found that the city was hindered by State legislation, and so they went into State politics and got home rule for Milwaukee. Having that, they took over the water works. Now the city furnishes water cheaper than it was ever furnished to people of Milwaukee—and many people do drink water in that city, he declared—and the annual profit to the city is from $40,000 to $100,000.

The profits from the Water Department, he went on, were turned to the buying of the lighting plants of the city; their combined profits were to buy some other public utility, and the combined profits of those three utilities were to buy a fourth, and so on and on until the people owned and administered public utilities and all the sources of wealth.

LIEUT. BAIRD A SUICIDE.

Papers Left by Young Officer Indicate He Feared Some Military Punishment.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Oct. 3.—Lieut. O. W. Baird, 23 years old, who has been stationed here and at Springfield for the past year or more as recruiting officer for the United States Army, committed suicide at his boarding house to-night by taking bichloride of mercury.

Lieut. Baird left a note asking that his father, Dr. W. C. Baird of Beaumont, Texas, be notified, the note closing with the words: "Here goes a misspent life. May God forgive me."

Among the effects of the officer were found papers which indicate that he thought he was in danger of being punished for some infraction of discipline. He returned but a day or two ago from attendance at the Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

To-day and to-morrow are the first days of registration. If you do not register you cannot vote at the Nov. 2 election. A full list of places of registration in New York City will be found elsewhere in this issue of The New York Times.

UP-HUDSON CITIES TAKE CELEBRATION

Festivities Will Travel Northward, Ending in the Display of Beacons Saturday Night.

A RIP VAN WINKLE VISIT

Men of the Half Moon Will Be Taken to Catskill Hollow—Queens Still to Celebrate.

The atmosphere of festivity will pervade the valley of the upper Hudson this week, when the Hudson-Fulton Celebration, centring last week in this city, will be carried from Yonkers to Troy.

Celebrations will be held to-day at Hudson, Catskill, Kingston, Poughkeepsie, and Yonkers. In the latter city there will be a parade of historical floats and of military and civic organizations from Mount Vernon and New Rochelle, as well as from Yonkers, at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Gov. Hughes and a large company of Hudson-Fulton Commissioners will review the pageant. The programme for the evening includes a reception to former residents of the city and visitors.

Poughkeepsie is also to have a pageant, with twenty floats in line, followed in the evening by a dinner and reception in honor of the Governor. The exercises in Hudson, Catskill, and Kingston will consist chiefly of children's festivals.

The celebration to-morrow will centre again in these five towns, with Poughkeepsie losing the Half Moon and the Clermont to Kingston. These vessels are expected to arrive in Kingston at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning, their reception to be followed a few hours later by a military and civic parade, in which organizations from Ulster, Delaware, Otsego, and Sullivan Counties are expected to take part. Gov. Hughes will deliver an address at noon, and at 1 o'clock a luncheon will be served to the city's guests. A monument to Sir Thomas Chambers, Lord of the Manor of Fox Hall and one of the founders of Kingston, will be unveiled at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, with a similar ceremony an hour later at the Industrial Home, where a tablet will be dedicated. The day's jubilation will close with a reception to the Governor and other guests.

Poughkeepsie's Old Home Week.

In Poughkeepsie old home week will be observed to the end of the celebration, while at Catskill and Hudson the children will continue their festivals. The chief feature of the day at Yonkers will be an automobile parade in the evening. The cars will be decorated and illuminated, and prizes will be awarded. The floats which were used in to-day's parade in Yonkers will be taken up the river to be shown at Irvington and Tarrytown.

The celebration will come back for a single day in New York on Wednesday, when Queens Borough is to have music and fireworks in all five of its wards. In Yonkers a parade in which all departments of the City Government will take part will be held in the afternoon, while at night the official dinner of the Yonkers Committee will be the feature.

Catskill will get its first glimpse of the Half Moon and Clermont on Wednesday morning. A delegation of Red Men in canoes will meet them, bearing gifts of corn and other products for the Half Moon, as did the real red men when Hudson sailed the river in the original Half Moon. There are to be concerts and receptions until noon, when Gov. Hughes will speak, with luncheon for the town's guests an hour later. The parade of local and visiting militia will be reviewed by the Governor in the afternoon. Later in the day a special excursion will be run to the legendary haunts of Rip Van Winkle in the Catskill Mountains, for the entertainment of the officers and men of the Half Moon.

Yonkers will hear the singing societies on Thursday evening, while earlier in the day there are to be parades at Ossining and Croton-on-Hudson, and on the west side of the river at Haverstraw and Stony Point. The flotilla accompanying the Half Moon and the Clermont will be received at Hudson early on Thursday morning, to be followed later in the day by a historical parade in which twenty-four floats will appear. The celebration also opens at Albany on Thursday with children's exercises, aquatic sports, an automobile parade in the afternoon, and a pageant arranged by the fraternal organizations at night.

Albany's Chance on Friday.

Albany's "big day" of the celebration, however, will be Friday, when the Half Moon and the Clermont will arrive. The quaint little craft will be met down the river and escorted with much acclaim to the city anchorage. The exercises on land will take place in Riverside Park, with the Governor as the principal speaker, preceded by Mayor Snyder. The parade of historical floats will follow in the afternoon, and at night fireworks will be displayed from Beaver Park.

On Saturday, the last day of the celebration, the scene of action will cover the Hudson Valley from New York to Troy. In the evening Brooklyn will see the carnival parade which took place in Manhattan last Saturday night, while Troy, at the head of navigation, will greet the Half Moon and the Clermont, which two weeks before, at the beginning of the observance, made their first official appearance at the mouth of the Hudson. At Yonkers the day will be celebrated with aquatic and field sports, followed in the evening by a display of fireworks.

The closing of the day, and with it the fortnight's commemorative celebration, will be signalized by the lighting of beacon fires, visible the one from the other, from Staten Island to the hills above Troy. The valley will be lit as perhaps never before since the Revolutionary fires burned.

To-day and to-morrow are the first days of registration. If you do not register you cannot vote at the Nov. election. A full list of places of registration in New York City will be found elsewhere in this issue of The New York Times.

RECORDS MADE HERE IN HANDLING CROWDS

City Traffic Lines, Railways, Police, and Hotels Show Their Great Efficiency.

ABOUT 2,000,000 VISITORS

Singular Absence of Accidents and No Serious Overcrowding During the Big Celebration.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company announced yesterday that the Hudson-Fulton Celebration week had broken all records on its Subway and elevated lines. The number of passengers carried in the seven days from Saturday, Sept. 25, to Friday, Oct. 1, inclusive, reached the grand total of 12,964,716.

As Saturday, with its children's celebrations throughout the city, ending with the illuminated carnival parade at night, brought out fully as many persons as on the opening day and the two parade days, it is estimated that the Subway and elevated lines carried fully 2,000,000 or more passengers that day, bringing the total number of passengers carried during the eight days, without accident, up to or over 15,000,000.

The highest previous record of passengers carried in the Subway on any single day was on last Easter Monday, when 893,000 passengers were handled. This record was broken several times last week.

In addition to these paying passengers, the company issued 10,000 free passes to the officers and men of the foreign fleets and to the accredited delegates from other countries. Just how many of these took advantage of the courtesy it is impossible to tell. In appreciation of this, the commanders of the visiting squadrons each sent Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder, commanding the United States Atlantic fleet, letters of thanks, and Admiral Schroeder has so informed Mr. Shonts, President of the Interborough.

In this connection Mr. Shonts has written Police Commissioner Baker, thanking him on behalf of the company for the splendid assistance rendered the company by the men of his department, without which it would have been almost an impossibility to handle so vast a crowd.

Speaking of the splendid record of the company during the week, Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the Interborough, said:

"From September 25th to and including October 2, the Subway and elevated lines carried upward of 15,000,000 people without a single interruption to the service or an accident. This number of passengers carried in 8 days breaks all previous records of the Subway and elevated lines.

"On Thursday, September 30, the elevated carried 1,121,756 passengers. This is the largest number carried in any one day in the history of the elevated roads. On Saturday, September 25, the Subway carried 1,179,143 passengers. This is the largest number carried in any one day in the Subway.

A Day of Records.

"The Subway and elevated traffic combined on Thursday, September 30, was the record-breaking total day. There were carried 2,159,890 passengers. These vast crowds can only be handled when each man in the 10,000 employés performs his part of the work practically at 100 per cent. efficiency."

As an appreciation of the co-operation of its employes during this unprecedented rush, the Directors of the company have voted $25,000 to be prorated among those who were concerned in the actual handling of the crowds.

The McAdoo tubes did as nobly as the Subway. Figures were not available yesterday, but the number of passengers in excess of their ordinary loads may be estimated by the fact that six and seven car trains were run instead of five and the headway was reduced from 2½ minutes to 1½.

But there are many directions in addition to the handling of the vast passenger traffic in which the city has been put to the test. For ten days it was given up to a horde of visitors. Precise numbers are impossible to get, but it has been estimated that 1,000,000 came to stay through the Hudson-Fulton Celebration, and at least as many more kept coming and going, for the days which promised special attractions, from the country around. Yet the fête has closed with but one accident of any moment, and that occurred in its closing hours, when there were the largest crowds of the whole week and the men who had to guard them were worn with long hours.

New York has proved itself, quite apart from the celebration itself, a city of the first magnitude. It has withstood a strain on all its resources which has perhaps never before been placed on any spot of the same size in the world, and has done it without revealing a weak spot in its organization.

Railways Put to a Test.

The people came from every direction and every railroad reports a heavy additional passenger traffic. The New York Central for some days before the arrival of the Half Moon and Clermont noticed a steady increase of business. There was no necessity to run special trains, but the regular ones were operated in several sections. So far there has been no particular crush in the return traffic, and it is not expected that there will be, but proof of the large number of persons to be moved was given by the necessity of running for the first time last Thursday the Twentieth Century Limited in three sections.

The Erie is one of the roads which taps the home region of New Yorkers. On the first day of the celebration it carried 109,140 passengers in place of its daily average of 44,000. On Tuesday, Thursday and last Saturday it went above these figures, and by putting on about forty relief trains every day of the big crowds, in addition to its regular 140, it was able to boast that it had no crushing and not a single accident.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey reckons that at least half as many more passengers as usual flocked to New York on the parade days. Much the same story is told by the Lackawanna, the Pennsylvania, the Lehigh Valley, and the Long Island Railroads. Crowded trains, extra cars, in some cases an augmented train service, were put on for the emergency. Officials worked overtime, train crews were pressed to the limit, but the problems were met without a hitch, and there was never any serious overcrowding.

Great as has been the influx of people into New York and immense as have been the quantities of food devoured by the invading hosts, the New York Central officials said yesterday that they had not noticed any remarkable increase in freight traffic.

"New York," said one of them in the traffic department, "has such immense reservoirs of food that really this celebration has made little difference to us."

As an illustration of this capacity of New York to take care of itself in the gastronomical line the lack of any serious difficulty in feeding the multitudes, which poured in and out of the city in one day, may be cited. The big hotels and restaurants report that large as the demand on them was it was not as great as they are called on at times to withstand. Horse show week and such special nights as Election or New Year's send them larger throngs.

None Without Shelter.

Undoubtedly many of the visitors had difficulty in getting the accommodation for the night that they wished, and in many of the large hotels cots were put up for the occasion, but it does not appear that there was on any night any absolute dearth of sleeping quarters.

Of all the people in the city who had to work hard during the festival the police were the hardest put to it. For some days before the arrival of the Half Moon every man of the force was on duty or in reserve the entire twenty-four hours, and a large proportion of the patrolmen have not seen their homes for ten days. They have only been permitted to leave the stations for an hour at meal times, and if living far from their precincts they have had to put up with temporary separation from their families.

Divided into five platoons they have been on patrol, reserve or special duty the entire time, and their hours for sleep in the station houses have been cut down to the minimum. With the exception of the detectives they have had to wear uniforms all day long, and the public has seen on the street unfamiliar badges such as those of the Telegraph Bureau, which denote men detailed to special work, and usually privileged to wear plain clothes.

On the days of the parades the work of the patrolmen and officers was exceptionally hard. For 12 hours at a stretch they were on the line of march, and in some cases had no opportunity to take bite or sup during that period. Moreover, they had to handle crowds which, in spite of their good temper, were often difficult to keep in line.

Arrests have been very few and have averaged only from 10 to 20 a day. The reason for that given by the Detective Department is twofold. In the first place the police gathered in for days before the celebration men who might have reaped a harvest in the crowds. In the second place the really skilled thieves knew better than to attempt to work during the fete. They have a wholesome dread of Inspector McCafferty and his men at times like this.

The skill with which the crowds were handled and the good temper of the police is shown by the practical absence of accidents. Except at places where the crush threatened to overwhelm an inadequate force of police, as at Washington Square at the end of the military parade, there has been no violence in keeping order.

The Emergency Hospital.

The care of those who might be hurt in the crowds at the parade fell to the New York County Division of the Red Cross. Miss Blodgett, Chairman of its Executive Committee; Miss Delano, head of the Army Nursing Service at Washington and President of the County Nurses' Society, and Miss Gladden, Superintendent of Nurses at the Women's Hospital, organized a corps of nurses, and Dr. C. D. Miller procured volunteer physicians from the hospitals and the city to take charge of the ambulance stations. Of these there were seven, supplied with army tents and army ambulance chests, and manned by a physician, two nurses, and orderlies during the day. In addition there were eight sub-stations in stores and churches, which were fitted up with surgical necessities by the Red Cross.

On Tuesday, during the Historical Parade, there were 150 cases treated, and on Thursday about 250. None of them arising from the celebration was serious, but fainting women were glad of the Red Cross's shelter. The Emergency Relief Society did similar work with equal efficiency along Riverside Drive.

The illuminations of the city took up 300,000 eight-candle-power lights. There were over 150 private installations, the cost of which was between $80,000 and $100,000.

The cost of the illuminations put up by the commission was $60,000, out of a total expenditure of about $1,000,000. One of the finest displays was made by the Edison Company itself at its two buildings at Thirty-eighth and Fortieth Streets and the East River, which were wreathed with 50,000 lights.

The battery of searchlights at 155th Street cost $20,000, and, like all the other official illuminations, will be kept going all this week. Yet, with all this lighting, the actual load on the power stations was reduced. So many people were on the streets that the absence of light in their homes more than made up for the extra current demanded by the illuminations.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES HELD.

Great Crowd at Poughkeepsie—Vassar Girls Visit Warships.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 3.—College Hill held the largest crowd in its history this afternoon, when fully 20,000 people gathered for the religious exercises held in connection with Poukhgeepsie's Hudson-Fulton Celebration. They was massed on the hillside around a platform on which were seated the members of the Celebration Committee, the Twenty-first Regiment Band, and a male chorus of 150 voices.

The speakers were President James M. Taylor of Vassar College and the Very Rev. Dean Patrick Daly of St. Mary's Church. Several hundred sailors and seamen from the warships in the harbor attended the services.

The officers of the fleet were entertained by the Reception Committee on shore to-day. They visited Vassar College in automobiles, and to-night were the guests at dinner of the Rev. Alexander G. Cummins, rector of Christ Church. During the afternoon 800 Vassar girls were entertained by the officers on board the different warships.

Special Hudson-Fulton services were held in all the city churches to-night. At the Washington Street Church an address was given by the Rev. C. S. Bullock, the impersonator of Robert Fulton, his subject dealing with the life of the Clermont's constructor.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Kingston began her part in the Hudson-Fulton celebration to-day with special religious services in all churches, where addresses were delivered and special musical programs were rendered. A concert was given in front of the City Hall to-night. The influx of visitors began yesterday, and the city is preparing to accomodate the largest crowd ever gathred here.

Special services were held in all of the churches in towns along the Hudson in Westchester County yesterday. Besides the services in the churches Yonkers and Peekskill held a union service each in which the local clergymen joined. The Yonkers service was in Philipsburg Hall, and it inaugurated an old home week for that city.

At Peekskill there was an open air meeting in Depew Park in the afternoon. Addresses were made by Martin J. Keogh and Francis A. Winslow. The Sixth Artillery band played and the gathering united in singing.

HUDSON'S NAME LONG IGNORED.

Vanderbilt Compelled New Yorkers to Apply It to River.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 3.—That Commodore Vanderbilt forced New Yorkers to use Hudson's name in connection with the river he discovered was the statement of Prof. Charles H. Hull of Cornell to-day in discussing the Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

He said that the river was first known as the Great River or Manhates and later as the North River. Although the English named it Hudson, for a long time the residents of the valley called it North River. This lasted until the middle of the nineteenth century, when the name Hudson River Railroad forced them to change. Thus a railroad helped to bring the great sea captain to his own.

THINK SLAYER IS SHAMMING.

Burglar Who Killed Mrs. Staber Must Face Court To-day.

John Smyth, alias Frank Schleiman, the burglar accused of murdering Mrs. Sophie E. Staber in Brooklyn last Summer, will be put on trial for his life to-day before County Judge Fawcett in Brooklyn. Since the murder he has been under observation in the prison ward of the Blackwell's Island Hospital. The police and hospital authorities suspect him of shamming insanity.

With a companion named Carlo Giro, Smyth broke into Mrs. Staber's home at 455 East Eighteenth Street, Flatbush, on the night of July 8. Mrs. Staber's son, George, discovered them, and the house and street for the next few minutes became the scene of a pistol fight, in which Smyth was badly wounded and Mrs. Staber was killed.

Smyth was subsequently found lying in a near-by tree clump, where Giro had concealed him. He was lodged in the Swedish Hospital, a prisoner, and immediately began to cause the hospital authorities all the inconvenience he could contrive. He refused to walk to the court for his arraignment, and two detectives had to carry him in on an arm chair. In the midst of the proceedings he began yelling that he wanted a doctor to come and cut his leg off. Both Police Inspector O'Reilly and Dr. McGuire say Smyth is shamming, and that he is a dangerous man.

THRONG OF 500,000 ALONG THE HUDSON

Riverside Drive Was Filled and Warships Were Almost Overwhelmed by Visiting Horde.

SOME DANGER ON THE RIVER

Ramshackle Launches Manned by Incompetent Steersmen Narrowly Escaped Disaster—Exodus of Ships Begins To-day.

A crowd that in numbers exceeded the record-breaking throng which gathered along the river front a week ago yesterday to see the warships journeyed to Riverside Drive and the viaducts yesterday to have a final look at the international fleet that is anchored between Sixty-second Street and Spuyten Duyvil. The crowd was estimated at about 500,000, and at sundown at least one-fifth of that number was still on the river front.

The crowd became so great at about 2 P. M. that the reserves from the police stations in the river district were called out to assist in preserving order. The police said that never before in their recollection had so many persons congregated on Riverside Drive on a Sunday.

It was visiting day on all the ships, and the boatmen who take people to the ships reaped their greatest financial harvest. It was said by one boatman that $50,000 would be a conservative estimate of the amount of money taken in by launch owners during the day. As it was, less than a third of those who wanted to get on board the ships were able to do so, it being impossible for the boatmen to carry them.

The crowd was greatest on the ships of the Atlantic fleet. So closely were the decks jammed, and so hazardous did embarkation and disembarkation become that at 4 o'clock the signal went up from the flagship to stop all visitors from coming on board except those who had relatives or friends in the crews.

The Hudson, from end to end of the warship anchorages, was crowded with fast-moving launches and slow-going tugs and excursion boats. The smaller boats were loaded to capacity, while the larger vessels, laden with sightseers, listed far to the side on which the warships were. Some of the launches were big, fine craft, but others were frail and poorly handled.

Some of the steersmen on these ramshackle launches apparently knew so little about handling boats that it was almost impossible for them to get the boats alongside the ships. One launch zigzagged about the battleship Idaho for an hour, trying to get alongside. Finally a score of women were thrown into hysterics as the launch plunged head on into the armored side of the battleship. The bow of the launch was crushed, but she kept afloat, and none of those on board was injured.

"I never saw anything like this in my life," said a staff officer on the flagship Connecticut. "That nobody has been hurt is beyond belief. It's a downright disgrace that some of these men are allowed to take passengers out in these old launches. I have seen at least a dozen narrow escapes from disaster in the last hour."

It was the same story on every ship of the Atlantic fleet. Then, to add to the discomfiture of everybody concerned, many of the launches after dumping a full boatload of passengers on a ship, would go back to the shore not to return, leaving the landing of their passengers, all of whom had bought return tickets, to the battleships.

Down in the British zone, where is anchored the Inflexible, the Drake, Duke of Edinburgh, and the Argyll, the situation was much the same. The great cruiser-battleship Inflexible was almost swamped with visitors. At 4 P. M. the crowd on board was so great that it was almost impossible to move about the decks. The ship was open to the friends of the officers and men, and it seemed that every officer and every one of the enlisted men had at least half a dozen friends, who were anxious to see them yesterday.

Just south of the British squadron the German cruisers are anchored, and a visit to those ships made a person think that all the German-Americans in this part of the country were either on board one of those ships or else on the way.

Just as a launch from the German man-of-war Princess Louise was drawing up to her side towing two cutters, each of which carried some thirty visitors, the tugboat Sun, running up against the tide, came under the bow of the launch. At the same time the tide swung the last of the two cutters into line of collision. The tug clipped the stern of the cutter and sent two sailors and Harry Bradshaw, a young lawyer of 53 West 121st Street, into the water.

The launch cut loose, and with the help o fa boathook picked up the three men. Bradshaw was unconscious when they got him back to Ninety-seventh Street, but he was revived soon.

The Frenchmen and the Italians, to the south of the Kaiser's ships, were not forgotten by the crowds, and they, too, entertained all the people who could scramble on board. The Italians in particular had joyous crowds on board, and at 5 o'clock were confronted with a serious problem in getting them ashore. By using the steamers Etna and Etruria, however, the problem was solved, and by 6 o'clock both of the ships were about free of visitors.

The officers of the French man-of-war Liberté were surprised last night to see Major Gen. Leonard Wood come aboard from a police launch. He was due to visit them at 8 o'clock, and earlier had gone up the river on a Government launch to make other visits. On the way down to the Liberté something went wrong with the launch. She called for help and the police launch came to her, towed her to the Wasp, off Ninety-seventh Street, and there making her fast, carried the General down to the Liberté.

The ships, both American and foreign, will leave New York this week. The British ships will coal Wednesday and Thursday, clean ship Friday, and sail Saturday morning. The Americans will begin to get away to-day, when the battleship Mississippi and the armored cruisers Montana, North Carolina, and New York will sail. The Mississippi will go to Philadelphia, the New York to Boston, and the Montana and North Carolina to Norfolk.

Twelve of the American ships will leave the Hudson to-morrow, the Louisiana, Minnesota, and Virginia going to Norfolk; the New Hampshire and Wisconsin to Portsmouth, N. H.; the Idaho and Georgia to Philadelphia, the New Jersey and Missouri to Boston, and the Nebraska, Rhode Island, and Ohio to the New York Navy Yard. On Saturday the Connecticut goes to the New York Navy Yard, the Vermont to Boston, and the Kansas to Philadelphia. The foreigners are also expected to sail on Saturday.

There is a rumor in the Atlantic fleet that the armored cruiser division will be detached within the next few months and ordered to the Pacific, to become a part of the fleet in those waters. This report has not been officially confirmed.

Grand Admiral von Koester of the German Navy, Capt. Retzmann, Naval Attaché of the German Embassy; Lieut. von Mueller, and Capts. Mauve, Hopman, Engelhardt, and Varrentrapp, Commanders of the German cruisers Victoria Luise, Bremen, Hertha, and Dresden, were the guests at luncheon yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ridder at their home in West Seventy-fourth Street.

French residents of New York gave a dinner and vaudeville performance to the sailors and petty officers of the French fleet in Terrace Garden last night. A ball closed the festivities.

The State of Minnesota to-day will present to the battleship Minnesota a silver service which cost $10,000. A stand of colors, the gift of the school children of Minneapolis, will be presented at the same time.

MASCOT'S COSTLY DIET.

"Bill" of the Virginia Likes Banknotes for Food.

"It makes no difference where you come from—New England, the West, Texas, or anywhere else in this country—once you have served on the flagship Virginia you get to feel like a Virginian," said an officer of that vessel yesterday. The occasion of the remark was a reference to the ovation given the sailors of the Virginia as they marched in review before Gov. Hughes last Thursday.

A visit to the Virginia confirmed everything that Commander Bennett had said. Even the enlisted men call themselves Virginians, and woe be to that person who has an ill word to say of the State of Washington and Jefferson on board the flagship.

While the officer was praising his ship a goat walked slowly down the deck, chewing an August magazine. It was Bill, the best-known goat mascot that ever wore a collar or a gilt-trimmed blanket in the navy. He has been on the Virginia since she went into commission, and is known as the "living waste basket."

"Is that the same goat that used to eat up the mail when Admiral Schroeder commanded this ship?" an officer was asked.

"The same," he answered, "and he is still doing duty at the old stand. A short time ago, when Paymaster Addison, now of the New York Navy Yard, was on this ship, Bill one day made a lunch of a brand new $20 Treasury note. A sailor had drawn the money, and was waiting to sign the receipt for it, when Bill stepped up and took the money out of his hand. He ate it all up except the number and the name of the bank in whose name it was issued. What was left of the note was sent to the bank, and the cashier sent us a nice note and a brand new bill in return for it. Since that time we have kept a watch on Bill, and the only cash he has disposed of is two nickels and half a dozen Lincoln pennies."

CONCERT FOR FULTON FETE.

People's Choral Union Warmly Applauded at Carnegie Hall.

A chorus of 600 voices swelled through Carnegie Hall last night, where a large audience had gathered by invitation to hear a concert arranged by Frank Damrosch, in connection with the Hudson-Fulton Celebration. The singers were members of the People's Choral Union. The New York Symphony Orchestra, led by Conductor Damrosch, also participated in the programme.

The solo parts were sung by David Bispham and Mme. Jeanne Jomelli. Each singer was heartily applauded and responded with encores to several numbers. The singing of "Danny Deever" by Mr. Bispham was greatly appreciated. Of all the numbers sung by Mme. Jomelli, the audience seemed to like the air from the "Queen of Sheba" by Gounod best. Among the other numbers sung by Mme. Jomelli were three old Dutch songs—"Engel nou nou," "O Angenietje," and "Comedianten."

"Discovery," a song dealing with the forays by the Norsemen of old, was sung effectively by Mr. Bispham.

Among the numbers sung by the chorus were "The Heavens Are Telling," from "The Creation"; "Thanks Be to God," from "Elijah"; "Awake," from "Die Meistersinger"; "The Old Netherland Hymn of Thanks," and "Hallelujah," from "The Messiah." Among those in the audience were Gov. and Mrs. Hughes, who occupied a box in the first balcony. Many other men and women of note were in the boxes.

At 8:15 o'clock, when all the invited guests were in the hall, the doors were thrown open and a large number of late comers who had no reserved seat tickets were allowed to enter.

DITMARS'S STRANGE CIRCUS.

Bronx Zoo Curator Will Exhibit Even Beetles in His Show.

Several new features have been added recently to the reptile and animal circus which is now being rehearsed at the Bronx Park Zoo, preparatory to a lengthy tour of educational institutions. The insect world, or a part of it, has been incorporated in the "show," and yesterday an interesting private rehearsal was given in the reptile house at the Zoo by Curator Raymond L. Ditmars.

The circus, as originally planned, included tree snakes which could run along slack wires just as they travel over vines in the jungles, lemurs which "skin the cat" and swing, hand over hand, along the wire, and kangaroo rats which jump hurdles as high as a man's head. Among the new exhibits, an iguana will be shown in a balancing act. The iguanas retain their footing on the top of a basket while it is slowly rolled from one end of a room to another.

There are two green lizards from Panama which are also adept in balancing themselves. They will be shown on the rolling basket, also on slack wire, which will be swung gently to and fro. Two giant beetles have also been added to the circus. They are known to entomologists as Hercules beetles, because of their size and great strength. These insects can lift a weight many times greater than their own. Mr. Ditmars has arranged a small table on which the beetles will be shown. Attached to bits of cord are weights. One end of the cord will be tied to the beetles and the other end, the end on which the weights are attached, will be allowed to hang over the edge of the table. Experiments during the last few days have shown that two of the Hercules beetles can walk briskly across the table with weights fifty times greater than their own.

In a lecture which Mr. Ditmars will give in connection with the show he intends to expose the inside secrets of animal training. He will have a monkey stand upon a chair, take the receiver from a telephone hook, and appear to talk into the 'phone. This is a trick often seen in animal shows. The Curator will then open the telephone box and show his audience where the average animal trainer conceals a banana inside the telephone. It is the banana which the monkey goes to the telephone for, not a desire to jabber into the mouthpiece.

THAW'S CASE UP AGAIN.

Court of Appeals to Tell Him Whether a Jury Trial Is His Right.

When the State Court of Appeals resumes its sittings this morning at Albany it will prepare to take up the latest move in the Thaw case.

Harry Thaw wants to know whether his commitment to Matteawan was legal. Justice Mills, at White Plains, two months ago, after a protracted hearing, dismissed a writ of habeas corpus by which Thaw hoped to get out of the asylum. Now Thaw is asserting that Justice Mills had no authority to dismiss the writ without giving him a jury trial.

Thaw has already taken the question to the Appellate Division, which recently decided that Justice Mills had the right to dismiss the writ without a jury trial. Thaw now wants to see what the Court of Appeals thinks about it. The Court will hear the argument of Thaw's counsel on Wednesday.

On Friday the Court will be asked to decide on the question of oral betting at the rack tracks. Sol Lichtenstein and Orlando Jones, bookmakers, were indicted some time ago for making oral bets at the race track. They appealed on the ground that oral bets didn't violate Gov. Hughes's new anti-race track gambling law. The Appellate Division sustained them. The Kings County District Attorney is now appealing from the decision of the lower court.

FEUDIST KILLED WIFE IN MONEY CRAZE

Hatfield Poisoned His Indian Wife While Insane Over Lost Sum Paid Back.

STOLEN BY POSTMASTER

Latter Confessed and Made Partial Restitution—Details Told by Inspectors Following Hatfield's Death in Prison.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The circumstances which led up to the imprisonment of Harrison Hatfield for killing his wife were made public to-day by Post Office Inspectors following his death recently in the penitentiary at Moundsville, West Va.

Hatfield was a member of the notorious family which was involved for years in a feud with the McCoys. He lived near Horsepen in the mountains of West Virginia. He was widely known as "Old Hatcher" and was a leader of the Hatfields in the McCoy-Hatfield feud, which raged in several counties on the borders of West Virginia and Kentucky. One of his eyes was shot out during a raid which the Hatfields made into Kentucky several years ago. The Hatfields owned large areas of land in West Virginia from which they realized considerable money.

"Old Hatcher" deposited $2,854 in the Guyan Valley Bank at Logan, West Va. Subsequently, having need of the money, he authorized Alexander H. Trent, Postmaster at Horsepen, to direct the bank to forward the money to him by registered letter. Hatfield called at the Post Office repeatedly for the registered letter, but when it arrived, on April 24, 1907, he had left the office only a short time before to assist an intoxicated man who could not sit astride his mule alone. Hatfield directed Postmaster Trent to take special care of the letter, lest it be destroyed by fire at the Post Office.

Early the following morning the post office was destroyed by fire, the contents of the safe alone being saved.

Hatfield's letter was not in the safe. Postmaster Trent declared he had placed the letter with the ordinary mail, all of which was burned.

An investigation of the fire and of the disappearance of the letter was made by Post Office Inspectors. It was discovered that Postmaster Trent had once obtained a typewriter from a Chicago concern by fraudulent representations, to which he confessed. Later, Trent and his father were indicted for having stolen the registered letter.

Trent finally confessed the theft and made propositions looking to the refunding of the money. He produced from a jar hidden under his barn the sum of $1,280, which, with $500 obtained from his bondsmen, was turned over to Hatfield. Trent was convicted of the crime, but he escaped from jail and is now a fugitive from justice.

Becoming insane from worry over the loss of his money and the sudden elation at the recovery of a considerable part of it, Harrison Hatfield poisoned his wife, who was an Indian woman. He was sentenced to the penitentiary for life, and there he died a few days ago. It was not until his death that the Post Office Inspectors felt justified in revealing all the facts in the case.

MAGOON HOME AGAIN.

Ex-Governor of Cuba Not to Go to Porto Rico.

Charles E. Magoon, former Governor of Cuba, got home yesterday after four months spent in Europe. He was a passenger on the Red Star liner from Antwerp. He spent five weeks at Bad Nauheim, but cut his stay short in order to sail for this country, as he intends to visit Ambassador Thompson, America's representative in Mexico.

Mr. Magoon was met by Carlos Garcia Velez, the Cuban Minister; Brig. Gen. Machado, Commander in Chief of the Cuban Army, and Commander Jules Morales of the Cuban Army. Gen. Magoon said he had no idea that his name had been mentioned as possible successor to Gov. Post of Porto Rico.

"It was not long ago that I read that President Taft had written to Gov. Post asking him to reconsider his resignation," he said.

NEW TURBINE GEAR POINTS TO NEW SHIPS

Navy Men Interested in News That Melville Has Solved a World-Wide Problem.

ITS ENORMOUS ECONOMY

Rear Admiral Cone Points Out How Speed Will Be Cheapened as Well as Room Saved.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The description in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning of the invention of Rear Admiral Melville and John H. Macalpine, whereby the full power of a high-speed turbine can be applied on ships to a propeller shaft low enough to put the full force of its "kick" into the water, was the subject of much discussion among naval officers here to-day. That the invention, if it is the success the inventors think it will be, would mean a modification in nearly all battleships to be built in the future seemed practically their unanimous opinion.

Among the officers who spoke in this vein were Rear Admiral Hutch I. Cone, Chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering; Capt. Theodore C. Fenton of the same bureau, and Constructor R. H. M. Robinson of the Bureau of Construction and Repair. These men are representatives of the two technically expert bureaus of the Navy Department, and the opinion of these bureaus is pretty certain to be heeded.

Most of the officers were ignorant until the publication of the detailed account this morning that Admiral Melville was engaged in the solution of what has been the standing engineering problem since the invention of the turbine itself, although THE TIMES on Sept. 5 last stated that Admiral Melville and Mr. Macalpine had invented a turbine reduction gear, but were not then prepared to supply details. Commander Robinson had heard unofficially several weeks ago that something was being done, but not until he read the paper this morning did he know how far the inventors had succeeded. It was known that engineers all over the world were working on the problem, but it was thought that the solution was as far away as ever.

Admiral Cone said that while his knowledge of the invention was confined to the account this morning, he felt no doubt that Admiral Melville and Mr. Macalpine had finally succeeded and that their invention would vastly increase the economy and steaming radius of warships as well as of the big liners now already equipped with turbines. The battleships now in course of construction, he said, were all fitted with turbines, and he gave it as his off-hand opinion that should the invention do all that is claimed all battleships of the future would be fitted with the geared turbine.

Taking the estimates as printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning as to the saving of space made possible by the invention on a ship of the Mauretania class, Admiral Cone estimated that on a battleship thirty feet of engine space lengthwise could be saved. That would in itself mean an increase in steam radius through the increased coal-carrying power of the vessel.

But Admiral Cone thinks this direct saving of space will be a minor benefit in comparison with the general economy of coal and steam by the installation of turbines and their economic use at low or cruising speeds. The saving here, he said, should amount to 15 per cent., so that with the same coal capacity a ship now having a steaming radius of 5,000 miles would be able to go 5,750 miles without recoaling. This distance would still further be increased by the additional coal-carrying capacity, while other space would be left for additional magazines.

Another advantage that is at present already in part experienced in vessels having the turbine instead of the old complicated reciprocating engines is that the turbine runs practically of itself and without supervision. Its enormous disk, once started, has a strong tendency to continue moving in an orderly fashion at tremendous speed as long as the fires keep the steam on tap. In that way a saving of firemen is accomplished.

Admiral Cone does not think the invention, important as it is, will have the effect of actually increasing speed. Its chief good will be in cheapening speeds already obtained. He pointed out that turbines now on battleships are as economical as reciprocating engines as long as the ships keep at full speed. The invention will make the use of these turbines equally economical at the ordinary cruising rate, while retaining all the advantages of the turbine over the reciprocating engine.

Commander Robinson said he expected great things in the shipbuilding line from the new invention. Neither he nor Admiral Cone is of the opinion that ships already built will be remodeled and fitted with new machinery, but they do think that just as the ordinary turbine has completely supplanted the reciprocating engine on fast boats, so the geared turbine will supplant ordinary turbines and reciprocating engines on all classes of boats.

As far as the officers know, no step has yet been taken to interest the Navy Department or the Government generally in the invention.

WESTINGHOUSE BACKING IT.

First Geared Turbine and Its Test Will Cost $50,000, Melville Says.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—George Westinghouse, Admiral Melville says, is backing the geared turbine invention, and the first machine and its test will cost $50,000.

"So you will see," the Admiral said, "the test is no mean experiment. On this test will in great measure depend the utility of the invention and its utility for installation in steamships of all classes.

"This invention is such that the turbine can be run at its highest and most efficient revolution and the propeller at a slower speed and at its most efficient revolution, thereby conserving the efficiency of both ends of the problem. The result is figured at 15 or 20 per cent. in economy of fuel.

"By this invention we also believe that we can cut the weight of the machine in half, thereby cutting the cost in half. If the engines of a ship of the Dreadnought class should weigh 2,000 tons, the machine with this reduction gear should be fitted to weigh 1,000 tons. This will reduce the size of a ship, and do the same amount of work and reduce the original cost of the machinery. In a battleship this weight saved could be placed either in armor or guns or divided between the two. It will also increase the range or radius of action of the ship by about 20 per cent. in saving coal.

"Turbines up to the present have proved uneconomical for any speed below eighteen knots. That is why the big transatlantic steamships can use them, but they always have at least four propellers. With this invention we can run single-screw, twin-screw, or three or four screw ships, and with the same degree of economy that the four-screw ship is run and must be run to make the turbine economical. Each propeller will be driven by an independent unit, so that in case any part breaks down either screw can be run by its independent engine."

Admiral Melville described the durce as a pair of pinions in a floating frame, which is self-adjustable in such manner that it will keep a perfect contact between the teeth of the pinion and the teeth of the large gear, which is on the prolongation of the propeller shaft. The gears, because of the high grade of material used, can be made of very fine, small pitch.

"The difference in the diameters in the pinion of the propeller gear," he said, "is fourteen inches into seventeen inches—any engineer will know what that means—making the reduction of speed in this case of five to one. There is, however, no reasonable limit to which this may not be carried."

SIR WILLIAM WHITE'S VIEWS.

Germans Are Experimenting and So Are Others, He Says.

Sir William Henry White, K. C. B., former Chief Constructor of the British Navy, who has built 250 warships at a combined cost of something like a billion dollars, is staying at the Hotel Belmont here. Last night he talked with a TIMES reporter about the reported solution of the turbine problem by Rear Admiral Melville and John H. Macalpine.

The problem of gearing down of turbines to suit low-powered steamships was not new said Sir William. When reciprocating engines first came into use with the screw propellers which superceeded the paddle wheel on steamsips, the engines moved slower than the propellers.

Now the reverse is the case, and Charles Parsons, inventor of one system of turbines, and prominent engineers in all parts of the world have been trying to discover ever since the turbine's introduction how to run the propeller slower than the turbine, with least loss and smoothest working.

"The Germans have been making experiments with hydraulic gearing on a merchant steamship at Stettin," he continued. "I was invited to attend the trial tests in August, but could not accept, as I had to attend the scientific conference at Winnipeg. I have not heard what the results of the tests were, as I have been traveling here since."

The Parsons Turbine Company, it appears, has purchased a freight steamship of 5,000 tons and has sent her on a trading voyage to the Mediterranean, equipped with special instruments for taking data on which to experiment with turbines. On her return she will be equipped with a geared turbine invented by Mr. Parsons, which he hopes will enable turbines to be used for low-power vessels.

"That," said Sir William, "is more important to shipbuilders at present than it is to improve the few fast vessels of the Mauretania type."

"The object of the turbine constructors now is to maintain the highest velocity on the turbine, with slower speed on whatever it drives. Ships driven through the water are like automobiles going up hill. All the work is on the collar. The gearing must be so designed that it works smoothly, showing small losses over long periods.

"To shipowners who send freight vessels on ten months' voyages the amount of coal space taken up by engines and boilers is one of the most serious considerations. If a light turbine can be made to drive a propeller at moderate speed with economical coal consumption they will adopt it.

"When the Mauretania was designed I was one of the consulting committee. We especially advised that the turbine should be shut down to 185 revolutions on account of the speed of the propeller. They make that number at top speed today, against the 220 to 300 made by the turbines of fast warships.

"By gearing down there would be a great saving of fuel and space. The result of the experiments to this end may be made known at any time now. I think the Germans have probably some good ideas, or they would not have put their invention into a steamship at Stettin for a public trial.

"The method of utilizing a turbine to drive a dynamo, which in turn generates electricity to drive a motor has been a success in shore engines of 100 horse power or so, but would be of no use at sea.

"I think it will be some time before any gearing is proved to be of practical use for large, fast ships like the Mauretania. All figures as to saving made by inventions, however, are supposititious until they are actually tried, as the turbine has been."

FLEET HERE INTERESTED.

Only a Question of Time, Its Engineers Say, Before Problem Is Solved.

Naval officers of the American and British warships now here were greatly interested yesterday in the description in THE NEW YORK TIMES of the device jointly invented by Rear Admiral Melville and John H. McAlpine for utilizing the full power of turbines by operating the propellers they drive with a reduction gear.

The effect of such an invention, they said, would be enormous. The days of reciprocating engines had passed away, so far as the navies of the world were concerned; turbines had come to stay, and the only thing to accomplish was to invent a propeller movement to suit the turbines. If this could be done by gearing down, as asserted for the new invention, and the weight of a liner like the Mauretania could be reduced thereby by 12½ per cent., with 15 per cent. added efficiency in speed, it would mean an enormous change in the navies of the world.

Capt. Lothian Nicholson, Chief of Staff to Admiral Sir Edward Hobart Seymour on the Inflexible, said that the three prominent factors to be studied in constructing a warship to-day were speed, protection, and gun fire. If the weight of one of these necessary qualifications could be reduced, it became a question for the naval authorities to decide whether the gain in weight should be utilized for armor plating or guns.

Engineer officers on the warships agreed, in conversation with a TIMES reporter, that Rear Admiral Melville was generally regarded as one of the greatest authorities on the use of turbines on warships. If Rear Admiral Melville and George Westinghouse had tested the device and ascertained beyond doubt that it controlled the speed of slow propellers, adjusting them to suit the fast turbines, there would be no reason to doubt, they said, that success had been achieved. One engineer commander mentioned the obvious fact that the new device would have to be thoroughly tried out on small ships before it could be experimented with on a warship like the Connecticut or the Inflexible.

The American naval engineer said that, in his opinion, the adoption of gearing to drive a slow propeller by a fast turbine would mean a loss of at least 5 per cent. of efficiency, but if the new gearing performed what was claimed for it, the gain would atone for the loss threefold.

Another device, it was learned yesterday, was tried recently to bring about the same result as that now said to have been achieved. This was to have a turbine drive a dynamo which in turn drove a motor attached to the shaft. Engineers who experimented with this found, however, that its chief defect was that it occupied too much space.

Some idea of what the new invention will mean for marine transportation may be gathered from the statement of a chief engineer in the United States fleet that in the case of a ship equipped with three turbine engines it would be more economical to run the three with the revolutions of the propellers adjusted to suit the turbines, than to shut down one turbine, because turbines consume less fuel at top speed.

One of the Cunard engineers said that propellers for turbines were really still in an experimental stage, as was shown by the fact that those on the Mauretania had been changed three times, and were to be changed again in November, when the ship is laid up for a week, in the hope of getting another half knot out of them. As for a comparison of turbines and reciprocating engines, the superiority of the former was amply demonstrated on the run across the Atlantic of the Inflexible (turbine) and the Drake, (reciprocating engines.) The former's coal consumption at 18 knots was well within the estimate, while the Drake, steaming at 18 knots, burned 600 tons more than she was scheduled to consume.

GREETING FOR MRS. STETSON.

Deposed Eddyite Leader Attends Services in Her Old Church.

Despite the action of the Directors of the mother Christian Science Church of Boston in deposing her as a teacher and practitioner in the faith, because of alleged false teachings, Mrs. Augusta Stetson, once leader of the First Church of Christ (Scientist) of this city, and who, next to Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, has been the most influential figure in the Christian Science world, attended service at the First Church as usual yesterday. She received a mild ovation from members of the congregation. Mrs. Stetson refused to discuss the action of the Boston managers beyond saying that later she might give out a statement.

The former Christian Science leader was in her pew in the morning before V. C. Strickler, first reader, and Ella G. Young, second reader, started the service. As she walked down the aisle several members of the congregation pressed about her and grasped her hand. One middle-aged woman kissed Mrs. Stetson on both cheeks. It was the signal for others to do the same, and the former reader had difficulty in reaching her pew. When the services were over there was a similar demonstration on the part of the women.

The former reader seemed to enjoy her popularity. About her neck she wore a brooch on which was a miniature of Mrs. Eddy. In the course of the service First Reader Strickler referred to the rule concerning the non-cultivation of animosity, a principal tenet of Christian Science teaching. Mr. Strickler explained later, however, that this was not intended as an allusion to the present difficulties, but had been arranged for, like all other parts of the service, many weeks ago. Mrs. Stetson, after the service, gave out this statement:

"I have nothing to say concerning the matters of which you ask at this time. Any and all queries are respectfully referred to the authorities of the Mother Church in Boston."

None of the Trustees of the First Church would do any talking. "There is nothing to be said on behalf of the Trustees at the present time," said Edwin F. Hatfield, Chairman of the Board of Trustees. "We have no statement to make."

"The members of our church will be deeply grieved over the situation brought about by the Mother Church, but they are loyal Christian Scientists, and will stand by the Mother Church and its directors," said Reader Virgil O. Strickler. "I do not know what Mrs. Stetson intends to do in the future. In fact I am not in a position to discuss her affairs at all. She is not going to leave the church or this city so far as I know. She was at the services to-day, and as far as I know intends to attend them in the future."

Eugene R. Cox, head of the Scientist Publication Committee in this city, at his apartments in the Hotel Le Marquis, last night refused to discuss the matter in any way. None of the members of the congregation of the First Church would confirm or deny the report that it is Mrs. Stetson's intention to establish an independent church and defy the authority of Mrs. Eddy. Nor would any of them discuss the report that Mrs. Stetson's downfall was due to a supposed intention to displace Mrs. Eddy, or at the latter's death, establish herself as the head of the Christian Science cult.

In the event of Mrs. Stetson breaking away from the Mother Church and establishing one of her own, she would be in somewhat the same position as Mrs. Della M. Gilbert, the Brooklyn Christian Scientist, who was dismissed by the Boston Church and attempted to start a Scientist organization of her own at the Plaza Hotel. Mrs. Gilbert will take up her residence to-day at the Hotel Gotham, where she will again try to start a Scientist organization of her own. The first meeting will be held next Sunday in the ballroom of the hotel, which has a seating capacity of 400. This room Mrs. Gilbert has hired for a year. She says she will continue the meetings, even if the first one is not a success.

"The trouble with Mrs. Stetson," said Mrs. Gilbert yesterday, "is that she is too strong. These people in Boston are afraid of her. Mrs. Stetson, and not Mrs. Eddy, is the woman who made Christian Science what it is to-day. Mrs. Stetson's teachings were radical, especially her doctrine concerning marriage. She would have us do away with marriage. But the real reason for her being deposed is that she was too strong for them, and that is all there is about it."

YOUTHFUL ROMEO LOSES HIS JULIET

And the Night Court Tells a Harrowing Tale of Her Paternal Prison.

A ROMANCE OF MATTEAWAN

Bride's Father Won't Receive the Son of a Rival Hotel Keeper, Though He Has Two Hotels.

What might have been a Romeo and Juliet story, with slight variations as to setting, was told last night in the Night Court by George Bryant, 20 years old, in explanation of why he had been standing on a Staten Island ferryboat crying because he could not make up his mind to jump into the dark waters below him.

In the town of Matteawan, N. Y., ran his story, the families of A. R. Bryant and Peter McDonald are divided because the heads of the houses are rival hotel keepers. Bryant owns two hotels, said his son last night, while McDonald owns only one. Bryant is also the owner of some race horses and is well-to-do. He even owns the building, said young Bryant, in which McDonald conducts his hotel business.

The son of the house of Bryant loved May, the daughter of the house of McDonald, but he had to carry on his wooing by stealth because her house was against him. Success was his, however, and on Friday, he said, he and the girl were married by a Matteawan minister, whose name he would not recall. He decided to see his bride home and apprise her family, he said, but when they got to the door McDonald said:

"Look here, George, I want you to keep away from my daughter."

"Why, we're married now," the prisoner quoted himself as saying.

Whereupon the girl's father, he declared, seized her, took her upstairs and locked her in a room, and then came down and compelled him to get off the premises.

On Saturday Bryant tried to get a note to his bride, but met defeat. It may be that the chivalry of the days of Montague and Capulet, as set forth by Shakespeare, has degenerated. At any rate, the young husband expressed doubt last night whether the girl had tried to get to him as hard as he had tried to reach her.

Forced by his misery to flee from Matteawan, he took a train for this city that afternoon, and on his arrival went to Staten Island. He did not go there purposely; he was just drifting, and happened to arrive there. All Saturday night and yesterday he rode around from place to place, eating little and sleeping none, until early last night he found himself again at St. George.

He took the 6:40 ferryboat Brooklyn, bound for Manhattan, and picking out a dark section at the rear of the ferry, he went to the railing with the intention of jumping overboard. He couldn't make up his mind, and stood there sobbing. A man who heard him crying in the dark ran out and told Policeman Thomas Slattery of the Harbor Squad.

Magistrate House called the prisoner's attention to the fact that he was charged with attempted suicide, and said the court would either hold him for General Sessions or notify his parents.

"For God's sake, don't tell my people!" he cried out. "This will disgrace them."

"You go and think about this a while," counseled Magistrate House.

After some thought the young man came back and said:

"The world seems brighter now. I want to live. Send for my father, if you want to."

That was done by the court, and young Romeo George Bryant was sent back to a cell to await developments.

MOORS AGAIN CONCENTRATE.

Occupy Three Mountains Almost as Difficult as Mt. Guruga.

MADRID, Oct. 3.—There is an absence of news from the front since Gen. Marina, commander of the Spanish forces at Melilla, took the offensive yesterday, but the recent resistance of the Moors and the Spanish losses have convinced the Government that the war is not yet over, and that too much importance should not be attached to the capture of Mount Guruga.

Following last night's decision by the Cabinet to send a new division to Morocco, Premier Maura announced to-night that he wished to end the campaign as quickly as possible, and that therefore Gen. Marina would have all the reinforcements he needed.

The Moors are reported to be concentrated on the three mountains, Argan, Uixan, and Milon, which are almost as dangerous of access as Mount Guruga, and must be dislodged.

There are persistent reports here that Mulai Hafid is secretly encouraging a holy war and urging the tribesmen in the vicinity of Fez to join the Riffians and expel the Christians from the country. There is no confirmation of this, but it is understood that several tribes have dispatched contingents to reinforce Harka, the Riffian leader.

[illegible] AT PORTLAND PRAISES CHURCHES

A Loyal Church Member Is a Loyal Citizen, President Declares in Sunday Talks.

LAYS CHURCH CORNERSTONE

Thus Inaugurates Universalist House of Worship After Lecturing to Catholic School Children.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 3.—President Taft to-day preached another sermon. The scene had changed since Sunday last from the Mormon Tabernacle at Salt Lake City to the cornerstone laying of the First Universalist Church in East Portland. The President not only talked, he handled the silver trowel and worked hard to see that the stone was properly adjusted. His earnestness in setting the stone called out great applause from the open-air assemblage which watched the proceedings.

The President referred to his various church experiences, and in concluding said:

"No church in this country, however humble it may be, that preaches the doctrine of true religion and true morality, will lack my earnest support to make it more influential whenever opportunity offers."

Mr. Taft's official day began when he attended the morning services at the First Unitarian Church in Portland and listened to a sermon by the Rev. W. G. Eliot, Jr. Next the President was the guest of honor at a luncheon tendered by Senator Bourne at which were present the various State and city officials. In the early afternoon the President visited St. Mary's Roman Catholic School and made a five-minute address to the school children, in which he declared that loyalty to the Church meant fidelity to country.

The line of march followed by the Presidential party to East Portland a little later was crowded, and there was handclapping and cheering all along the way. The President was introduced at the cornerstone laying by the Rev. James Corby, pastor of the First Universalist Church.

Speaks to Universalists.

"I don't know," said Mr. Taft, "that any one questions the propriety of my being here and officiating on such an occasion as this, or that an explanation of any sort is called for. But I want to say I believe it to be the duty of the President of these United States to welcome and to suggest every instrument by which the morals and religion of the community may be elevated and maintained. Not long ago I officiated at the cornerstone laying of an orthodox Congregational Church in Washington. Then I appeared in the pulpit of a Jewish tabernacle at Pittsburg. But a few days ago I helped to lay the cornerstone of a Catholic institution at Helena, Mon.

"And now it is my great pleasure to assist here to-day in laying the cornerstone of this Universalist Church, which, like my own, the Unitarian Church, is known as a liberal one.

"I am glad always to be present at such occasions as these, for I believe the cornerstone of modern civilization must continue to be religion and morality."

The President told some of his experiences with the Catholic Church in the Philippines, and then said that on the occasion of his visit to Rome he ventured to say to the Pope that while in America the sentiment was strong for the separation of Church and State, there was nothing in the American Government or American people that opposed the Church or its highest development; that in no European country had the Catholic Church flourished as it had in America; that in this country the Catholic Church received from the Government and State officials only that treatment accorded to every other denomination.

"I added," continued the President, "that this was not to be taken as an indication that every Government and State official was other than anxious to encourage the establishment and maintenance of churches, so that their influence might be broadened throughout the land.

Says Churches Are Growing Together

"I think we have reached the time when the churches are growing together, when there is less bitterness of denominational dispute, and that no matter what creed we may follow, the churches are beginning to realize that they must stand shoulder to shoulder in the contest for righteousness; that we all stand for the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

"I am an optimist. I believe we are much better to-day than we were fifty years ago, man by man. I believe we are more altruistic and more interested in our fellow-man than we have been at any time in the last fifty years. Of course, you hear from time to time of instances of selfishness and greed, but the only reason these instances are given prominence is because we condemn them the more and believe that in calling attention to them they will be made more and more infrequent.

"No Church in this country, however humble it may be, which preaches the doctrine of true religion and true morality will lack my earnest support to make it more influential whenever opportunity offers."

It was while on his way to the cornerstone laying that the President stopped at St. Mary's Catolic School and on the steps of that institution made a brief address to the boys and girls. Mr. Taft was presented by Archbishop Christie, and after congratulating the children on their rosy cheeks and their "chubbiness," said:

"Your church teaches that loyalty to God is the same as fidelity to country and reverence for constituted authority, and so do all good churches.

"And we can be very certain that those who are loyal to their Church are certain to be loyal to their country, that those who are good Catholics are good citizens, just as those who are consistent members of other churches find in the doing of their duty to the churches everything that leads on to the uplifting of humanity and the observation of all the obligations to the Government."

President Taft's special train left at 8:10 to-night over the Southern Pacific Railway for Sacramento, where the President will speak Monday. Mr. Taft was highly pleased with his stop at Portland, the schedule having been such that he got opportunity for recreation and rest.

ZOO BEARS IN FIERCE FIGHT.

Keepers Beat Back Struggling Animals in Bronx Park.

There is always more or less bad blood between the Russian bears and the Rocky Mountain grizzlies up at the Bronx Park Zoo. Their cages are separated by stout iron bars, through which they often snap and growl at each other. Very often they come to blows through the bars. On one occasion a part of the partition was wrenched away by Engineer, one of the largest of the grizzlies. Engineer and his tribe raided the Russian bears' den not long since and a mighty struggle followed.

Since that invasion it has apparently been the ambition of every bear in the Russian section of the bear dens to tear away some of those iron bars and make up for their defeat.

Such a return invasion seemed very near yesterday morning when a general alarm sounded through the Zoo, and brought a dozen keepers to the bear dens. For more than an hour both bear dens were scenes of unwonted excitement, for the keepers were inside and with heavy pick staves drove back the powerful brutes, while workmen repaired a break in the iron partition.

The most powerful of all the Russian bears is Ivan. Big Ben, one of his cage mates, is larger by a hundred pounds, but Ivan runs more to muscle than fat. Big Ben weighs 700 pounds. Ivan's temper is not of the best at any time. Engineer, the chieftain of the adjoining cage, is also of a testy temper and these two usually do most of the fighting through the bars. Both the bears have many cuts and bruises about their heads and front legs to bear testimony to their fierce encounters.

Ivan found a weak spot in the partition yesterday. The cement near the bottom of one of the iron bars had worn away a little. Ivan, by persistent scratching and clawing, freed the end of the iron bar.

While none of the keepers witnessed this, they say that Ivan must have done the job. The iron bar, once free at the bottom, was twisted aside as easily as a boy could bend an umbrella wire. The space it left in the partition was just sufficient for the bears to squeeze through. Loud growls from the bear dens were heard first by Dick Spicer, whose duty it is to look out for the bears. He found Ivan and his cage mates, Big Ben and others, were all trying to get through the breach made by the twisted bar.

There is a big bell near the bear dens. Spicer jumped for this. An instant later every keeper in the Zoo armed with pick staves ran for the dens. Curator Ditmars was among the first to arrive, followed by Charles Snyder, head keeper of the reptile house. Keepers Quinn, Ferguson, Engelholm and several others joined them. The heavy gates of each cage were unlocked and the keepers in two squads entered. They beat back the bears into the far ends of both cages, workmen were sent for and the work of repair began.

SAWED THROUGH CELL BARS.

Supposed Thief About to Escape When His Cell Mate Gives the Alarm.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Oct. 3.—Leon Perrett, alias Peyret, held as a horse thief in Hackensack Jail, sawed through a steel bar of his cell window and was about to escape when Genardo Crecco, a fellow prisoner, warned Night Warden A. W. Campbell of the plot. The alarm was given near midnight Saturday.

All day long Crecco, an old man, had watched the young horse thief saw away at the bars in the cell window. He had spoken to Perrett about the seriousness of the attempt, but Perrett was desperate and time and again threatened to strike down the old man if he did not keep still.

Crecco is being detained as a witness in an assault case at Lodi, and Perrett, although under a direct charge of horse stealing, is kept a prisoner in the witness room in order to keep him away from Leon Monnier, a self-confessed horse thief, who caused Perrett's arrest last Tuesday by his confession. Prosecutor Wright and Sheriff Brewster concluded it would not be well to allow the two desperate Frenchmen to be near each other.

Both are fugitives from justice and Perrett is accused of being the leader of an organized gang of horse thieves. He lives in Ridgefield, but Monnier's home is in Fifty-sixth Street, New York.

Crecco became desperate as midnight approached. He saw that the bar his cellmate had been sawing hung by a thread, and all Perrett had to do to make good his escape was to give it a shove with his foot and lift out the window sash.

"I know you will squeal the moment I start to slide down the side of the jail wall, and as I don't want to serve several years in State prison I'll cut your throat with the saw I used on that bar, and then I'll have a chance to escape," said Perrett, as he lay on his bunk for a short rest.

Crecco could wait no longer. He stamped on the floor and hammered savagely on his door. Night Warden Campbell heard the unusual noise and hurried upstairs. Grecco whispered to him that Perrett had cut the bars in the cell window.

"He says he will escape and is going to kill me before he goes, so that I couldn't warn you," said the prisoner.

Perrett was locked in another cell, where no help can reach him from the outside.

TORN LIGAMENTS UNITED.

Delicate Operation Restores the Use of Policeman's Crushed Leg.

An unusual surgical operation has saved the life of Policeman Walter Hough, of the Williamsburg Bridge Police Station, according to the doctors in the Williamsburg Hospital, where he has been since he was badly injured last August when he was run into while on duty by a large auto truck of the Adams Express Company.

Hough's right leg was crushed at the knee joint, and all the blood vessels, ligaments, muscles and tendons were injured. No hope was held out for his recovery, as he had also been internally hurt.

Dr. Walter Hurley, the house surgeon, with no thought of saving the policeman's life, but not caring to aggravate the case by amputating the leg, decided to unite the torn ligaments. After the operation Hough's leg was put in a plaster cast. He lingered between life and death for two weeks. Then he began to show signs of improvement. Dr. Norman Geis, the Assistant Professor of Anatomy in the Long Island College Hospital, who was summoned by Dr. Hurley after he had united the structures, approved of the operation.

Yesterday the plaster cast was removed from Hough's leg, and to the surprise of all the doctors in the institution it was found that the ligament had knit.

MRS. W. G. BISSELL IN RENO.

Buffalo Woman Neither Affirms Nor Denies She Will Seek Divorce.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 3.—Mrs. W. G. Bissell, wife of Dr. Bissell, a prominent physician of Buffalo, N. Y., who is a nephew of Wilson S. Bissell, Postmaster General in Cleveland's Administration, is in Reno and is stopping at the Nortonia, a fashionable apartment house occupied principally by persons seeking divorces. Mrs. Bissell, it is said, has engaged one of the leading law firms of the city to secure a divorce for her and is now here for the purpose of gaining a residence. When seen to-day she said:

"Really, I do not want to discuss my residence in Reno at this time. I do not want to talk about my case at all. It may be true that I am here for a divorce and it may not be true. It is true that I am from Buffalo, but I think you have me mixed up with the wrong side of the Bissell family. I will make a statement later concerning my troubles, but not at this time."

CROWDS FLOCK TO SEE PEARY'S POLAR SHIP

No One Allowed Aboard the Roosevelt Without a Special Permit.

DR. GOODSELL TELLS OF TRIP

Surgeon Says No One Can Sleep for Long at a Time in the Arctic—Cook Starts on Lecture Tour.

Hundreds of persons went yesterday to the pier at the foot of East Twenty-fourth Street to view the Roosevelt, which took Commander Robert E. Peary and his party as far as Cape Sheridan on the trip to the north pole. The Roosevelt lay alongside the wharf with little sign of life upon her decks.

Most of the ship's crew early in the morning obtained leave of Capt. Robert Bartlett to spend the day ashore, and by noon there were not half a dozen of them left on the vessel. Capt. Bartlett himself went to Brooklyn to visit friends, and did not return to the ship until late in the day.

Commander Peary has turned the ship over to the Peary Arctic Club to dispose of, and, as the Roosevelt still has aboard the relics she brought back from the arctic voyage, it was decided not to allow outsiders to roam her decks. The Peary Arctic Club officers considered it probable that souvenir hunters might try to walk off with the trophies, as they did at Sydney when the ship was there.

Half a dozen policemen were on the pier, and they would not allow any one without a written permit from the Secretary of the Peary Arctic Club to get any closer to the Roosevelt than the extreme end of a ladder that had been stretched from the pier to the ship's deck.

Even with this strict prohibition, the edge of the pier was fairly well lined all day long with those eager to get a glimpse of the arctic steamer. About all they could see, outside of the ship itself, was the occasional appearance of some one of the crew who sauntered over the decks. The Eskimo puppies were turned loose on the forward deck in the afternoon, and they frolicked about, sniffing the East River air and barking sharply at the crowds on the pier.

Of the explorers who made up Commander Peary's supporting parties the only one on the ship yesterday was Dr. Frank Goodsell. He spent part of his time packing up the relics which he brought back with him. Among them are half a hundred tiny ivory carvings of arctic animals done by the Eskimos. The natives are very proficient in the art of carving with their home-made knives. They do this work in the long arctic night, in the flickering light of their tallow candles. The members of Commander Peary's party obtained all the carved images they wanted in exchange for cakes of soap, handkerchiefs, or strings of beads. The ivory from which the Eskimos make their carvings is obtained, for the most part, from the narwhal, which has a long, spearlike tusk.

Dr. Goodsell, like all the others of Commander Peary's party, took notes of the trip in a diary. The doctor's diary has many references to thrilling hunts over the arctic ice fields and of other adventures of the journey, which he will not reveal until Commander Peary has made his own story public.

"It was not an easy thing to write in my diary, with the thermometer below zero all the time," said Dr. Goodsell. "Sometimes, when the thermometer registered as low as 50 below zero, the hand would be so stiff from the cold that the fingers could not be moved. It would be necessary quite often to thaw the hand out over the little kerosene lamp and to heat the diary. Then, with the lamp burning beneath the hand, it would be possible to write for a few minutes. The notes we made under these conditions were brief, but we managed to write something every day."

Dr. Goodsell went on to say that on the marches toward the pole the kerosene, which was in gallon tins, would freeze, so that it could not be poured into the lamps. There would always be a little kerosene left in the wick of the lamp, and by lighting this the gallon tank could be heated until the oil would flow.

"It has been written in books that arctic explorers are in danger of freezing to death while they sleep," said Dr. Goodsell. "Our experience was just the reverse. Far from going into profound sleep under the effect of the extreme cold, we had great difficulty in keeping asleep at all. When the thermometer was anything lower than 20 degrees below freezing it was next to impossible to sleep more than half an hour at a time. Then we would awake with the pain of extreme cold. It was just the same as here, when you try to sleep without sufficient covers to keep you warm.

"We seldom slept with covers, because they are only cumbersome to carry. We would lie down in our clothes, just as we had worn them while on the march. The only heat in our igloos would be from our oil lamps, and they would not have much effect."

When the party became chilled through, Dr. Goodsell said, they would drink a cup of tea.

"We drank very little coffee," said the doctor. "Somehow we didn't care for it. We had cocoa, but got so we didn't like it. Tea just seemed to go to the right spot. It seemed to be more bracing than coffee."

The Peary Arctic Club will this week decide as to the future of the Roosevelt. Inasmuch as Commander Peary has declared his intention of not making another trip to the north pole, it is considered likely that his ship will be sold.

Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, President of the Peary Arctic Club, who has been conferring with Commander Peary at Eagle Island, was expected in the city yesterday with the statement written by Mr. Peary attacking Dr. Cook's assertion that he discovered the north pole. At Gen. Hubbard's home, 10 West Fifty-eighth Street, it was said last night that he had not arrived in the city and that he would not be here until to-day.

Upon his arrival Gen. Hubbard will confer with Herbert L. Bridgman, Secretary of the Peary Arctic Club, and, it is expected, a special meeting of the club will be called for to-morrow or Wednesday at which Commander Peary's statement will be considered. After action has been taken upon it, the statement will be sent out for publication.

Dr. Cook left the city early yesterday morning in an automobile for Deal Lake to call upon Col. Harvey of Harper Brothers in connection with the publication of his book upon his arctic dash, after which he hurried on to Washington to deliver a lecture. To-night he will lecture in Baltimore, from there starting upon a Western trip.

CUSTOMS RECORD DUE TO SURVEYOR'S MEN

So Surveyor Clarkson Points Out in a Review of Their Work to Prevent Smuggling.

PROSPERITY HAS HELPED

The Receipts from Passenger Baggage, However, Are Small in the Total Duties Collected at This Port.

James S. Clarkson, Surveyor of the Port, issued a statement yesterday in connection with the figures given out by Collector Loeb, showing the increase in receipts from duties on passenger baggage in this port:

"These figures are most pleasing to me," said the Surveyor in his statement, "for they are, as I believe, largely the fruit of a systematic campaign against smuggling on a large scale initiated by the Surveyor's department late in 1906.

"For a long time we had suspected that organized endeavors of considerable size were on foot to defeat the customs at this port in connection with passengers' baggage. These movements took the forms known as the 'foreign carrier' and 'sleeping trunk' systems. The 'foreign carrier' method came about by the granting of free entry to all Americans who had lived abroad for one year, and who, consequently, declared themselves 'non-residents.' This made it possible not only for rich persons, but for importers to employ, for instance, young women who had been studying art abdoad, perhaps returning several times yearly to this country, to bring in free dutiable goods in large quantities. This undoubtedly defrauded the Government of many thousands, perhaps of hundreds of thousands, of dollars a year. After analysis of the situation, and without asking the aid of the force of special agents commonly used in such matters, we made numerous seizures, based on prima facie evidence, culminating in one case involving a very pretty young American woman, a daughter of a State Supreme Court Judge, who had been studying music abroad, as the 'foreign carrier,' and the widow of an army officer of high rank as the instigator.

"The 'sleeping trunk' system consisted of luggage being conveyed surreptitiously, in collusion with minor steamship employes, on to steamers leaving foreign ports without having gone through the regular handling. These trunks on arriving at New York were, of course, not 'declared,' but were, for the most part, carried to the dock after the usual examination had been finished, the pier cleared, and the customs Inspectors gone. Owing to the lack of customs watchmen on the passenger piers—whose establishment there not merely during the time when baggage was being examined, but afterward, I had recommended for years—it was not difficult finally to get these smuggled trunks off the docks into the hands of draymen acting as confederates. There were many ramifications of this system remarkable in their cleverness, but I have outlined the chief modus operandi.

"The Surveyor's office began a campaign against this organized and deliberate system that culminated shortly before Collector Loeb took office in the seizure by the Surveyor's men of five large trunks, with contents later appraised at $52,000, and on which the duty would have been about $30,000. This was the greatest seizure of dress goods ever made in the country, or presumably in the world. The auction of the contraband articles a few weeks ago will perhaps still be remembered by a public even so constantly entertained as that of New York.

"At the time these two systems were broken up it was estimated in the Surveyor's office that the moral effect caused by their exposure and by the repeated seizures and arrests would bring about increases of hundreds of thousands of dollars in the revenue on passenger baggage in the following season, or the one now closing. This estimate appears to be reasonably justified by Collector Loeb's figures, even allowing for the extremely low receipts of last year, due to the panic days, and for the increase of prosperity of the current times.

"The return of prosperity is indicated by the figures of Appraiser Wanmaker, published yesterday, showing an increase in the value of appraised importations at this port of $12,000,000 over September of last year. That means, of course, a relative increase in customs duties. This should be a banner year at this port.

"I would like to say here, with some emphasis, that the credit for breaking up the far-reaching devices sketched above is due in far greater measure to the Surveyor's Deputies, Acting Deputies, and Inspectors, working under constant pressure and temptation, than to the Surveyor.

"While there has been undoubted fraud detected; while there may be more detected and while there has probably been fraud that never will be detected, I question whether any private business enterprise, involving the handling of say $220,000,000 annually by several thousand men, as is the case in this customs district, can show a lower percentage of demonstrated dishonesty than can the force in this port, many underpaid and overworked. Therefore, when you hear the integrity of a customs employee attacked, ask for the proof or for at least a reasonable deduction of fact, and do not impugn by impulsive inference his honest associates, who are in the great majority.

"So far as smuggling by steamship passengers is concerned, I believe fully 90 per cent. of this class to be honest. But the man who thinks that smuggling can be entirely stopped among the other 10 per cent., in any customs port in or bounded by the seven seas, deludes himself. One cannot circumvent human nature, or even always anticipate it, when it comes to the customs. The best the customs officers can do is to be guided by long experience, the best guide of all in this work; to be alert and to use tact. Where deliberate smuggling is conclusively detected, I do not believe, save in rare cases, in 'settling' the case, as I do not see how the Government can compromise with what it defines as a crime.

"Finally considering the administration of the customs at this port, the public should separate in its mind the difference between the collection on passengers' baggage, rarely reaching a million dollars a year, and the duties collected on merchandise, approximating $219,000,000 annually, the whole being more than one-third of the revenue of the nation. By far the most important feature to the public, whose servants we in the service in great measure are, is the importation of cargoes. In the handling of this vast quantity of merchandise there is still room for improvement in this, a customs district stretching from Newburgh on the Hudson to the Great South Bay. I have long thought and recommended that New York should be made a night-and-day port, keeping pace with modern demands and methods, not only with relation to the discharging and delivery of merchandise, but in the examination of baggage.

"There are many inconsistencies and solecisms in the system of administration now available that the commercial public should know about. It should then urge upon Congress, in many instances the sole resort, the proper remedial action. I have no doubt that Secretary MacVeagh, who is a practical business man of great ability, and who has already made many needed changes here, will give these matters due thought."

TO INAUGURATE LOWELL.

250 Academic Delegates to Assist at Induction of New Harvard Head Oct. 6

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—The formal inauguration of Abbott Lawrence Lowell as President of Harvard University this week will be the occasion of a very unusual gathering of distinguished scholars, educators, and scientific men from all parts of the civilized world. More than 250 delegates, representing universities, colleges, and learned societies will attend the ceremony, among them 125 Presidents of universities and colleges. Delegates from the principal universities of Great Britain, Germany, France, and other European countries also are included in the number.

Traditional forms and ceremonies, used at rare intervals for nearly three centuries, will be followed at the inauguration of President Lowell on Oct. 6, the day of formal induction into office, although the full programme extends through Oct. 5, 6, and 7. It will be the first inauguration at Harvard since President Eliot assumed charge nearly forty years ago, on Oct. 19, 1869, and the programme will be almost identical with that of twoscore years ago.

No hall at Cambridge will hold the great body of people who will gather to witness the exercises, and consequently they will be held out of doors, in front of University Hall.

The delegates will wear academic dress and the vari-colored hoods, denoting degrees given by universities and colleges all over the world, will form a picturesque and brilliant scene upon the greensward of Old Harvard Yard.

Recipients of honorary degrees from Harvard, 300 officers of the university, an alumni chorus of 150, Gov. Eben S. Draper and his staff in uniform, and others destined to become recipients of honorary degrees, will augment the gathering and have seats of honor on an immense platform to be erected before University Hall.

On the day of inauguration President Lowell, the Fellows, overseers, members of the Faculty, delegates, and guests will gather at Brooks House, and, led by a band, march to the platform. The assembly will be called to order by Sheriff Fairbanks of Middlesex County, wearing his official uniform and carrying his sword, and President Lowell will be formally inducted into office by the President of the Board of Overseers, John D. Long, former Secretary of the Navy.

This induction will include the presentation to President Lowell of the ancient ceremonial keys of the university, the original charter of 1640 and the official seal of Harvard. President Lowell's inaugural address will follow.

The conferring of honorary degrees will follow, and the exercises close with the benediction. Social features will fill up the early evening hours, and at 9:30 o'clock the students will hold forth in carnival on Soldiers' Field.

TWO DEAD IN TROLLEY WRECK.

Axle Breaks as Pittsburg Car Rounds Curve—Eight Are Injured.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Oct. 3.—Two men were killed and eight other passengers seriously injured, three of them probably fatally, to-night in a street car accident here. The dead are James Duffy, aged 26 years, and Martin O'Rourke, aged 35 years.

The accident occurred in the fashionable residence section of the East End, on the Butler and Negley Avenues division of the Pittsburg Railways Company. While a car on this line was rounding a corner at a fair rate of speed one of the axles broke. The car swerved around and upset, the dead and injured being caught in the wreckage. All of the victims were passengers, the motorman and conductor escaping uninjured.

GIRL BREAKS UP A WEDDING.

Charges That Bridegroom-to-be Broke His Promise to Wed Her.

The guests had assembled, the stringed orchestra had just struck up the strains of a wedding march and the clergyman who had been called in to officiate was ready to make Ludwig Klebecke, 29 years old, of 2,919 Douglass Street, and his fiancee man and wife, last night, in the parlor of the Klebecke home, when suddenly there was a woman's scream.

In an instant Miss May Meckneidorf, 22 years old, of 678 Rockaway Avenue, and Detective Arthur Szerlip of the Brownsville Station were battling with Klebecke's friends for possession of him. Pandemonium reigned and there was hairpulling and a free use of fists.

It was learned later at the Brownsville Station that Miss Meckneidorf had heard early in the evening that Klebecke, who promised to make her his bride a year ago and who had run away at the last minute, as she alleged, was to make another girl his wife. She determined to interfere with his plans and with the aid of the detective took him away from the arms of his intended bride. She made a serious charge against him. Klebecke asserted his innocence, but was locked up.

More Race Track Arrests Coming.

The District Attorney's office in Brooklyn took a day off yesterday in the legal war which District Attorney Clarke has waged against race-track gamblers in Kings County. No further developments in the racing situation as a result of the large number of indictments found by the Grand Jury on Friday are expected until to-day, when at least thirty alleged violators of the anti-gambling laws may be arrested.

John L. Cadwalader Home.

John L. Cadwalader arrived from Liverpool yesterday on the White Star liner Baltic. He was met by J. P. Morgan, who came to the White Star Line pier on his yacht Corsair.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 3.—Field Marshall Lord Kitchener, Inspector General of the Mediterranean forces, arrived here to-day. There was no official reception. Lord Kitchener will leave on Wednesday for Nanking, Hankow, and Peking. Later he will visit the Manchurian battlefields.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 3.—Advices received here say that the anti-Semite leader, Dr. Dubrovin, is on his way to Southern France by way of Constantinople. Dr. Dubrovin has been charged with complicity in the murder of Deputy Hertzenstein in Finland three years ago, and the hearing of the case is pending.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 3.—The fashionable Medvied restaurant and the St. Anne School, the pupils of which are of prominent families, have been closed on account of cholera at Medvied. There are six cases there. Late dispatches from Vladivostok say that there are eight to ten cases daily at that place.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 3.—M. Isvolsky, Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, and M. Tcharykoff, also of the Russian Foreign Office, will be present at the reception of the Ottoman Special Mission by the Czar at Livadia. The mission, of which Rifaat Pasha, the Turkish Foreign Minister is President, will be the bearer of an autograph letter from the Sultan.

To-day and to-morrow are the first days of registration. If you do not register you cannot vote at the Nov. 2 election. A full list of places of registration in New York City will be found elsewhere in this issue of The New York Times.

FOREIGN GOLFERS IN NATIONAL TOURNEY

Five English and Scotch Experts Will Compete in Women's Championships.

PROMINENT PLAYERS OUT

Present and Former Title Holders Start in Opening Rounds To-day—Large Galleries Expected at Merwin.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 3.—The most promising field that has ever teed up in the women's National golf championship will begin play in the qualifying round of that event to-morrow morning over the links of the Merion Cricket Club at Haverford. Special interest is lent the affair by the presence of five players from abroad, including Miss Dorothy Campbell, who won the women's title this year at St. Andrews, the most difficult of all courses. Miss Frances Teacher, who was Scottish woman champion in 1907, will be another. Only once before has a foreign player participated in this event, if Canadians be excepted, and that was when Miss Charlotte Dod competed over the same links four years ago.

The first pair will start at 10 A. M., the sixty-eight players thereafter being sent away at four-minute intervals. Barring delay, therefore, the last pair should leave at 12:08 o'clock. Miss Teacher of the visiting delegation will get an early start, being put with Mrs. Caleb Fox of Philadelphia in the second pair.

Miss Katherine Harley of Fall River, present title holder, is in the last pair owing to the fact that her entry was so delayed by mail that her name was specially passed upon and added to the list. There are, of course, a few absentees, mainly by reason of illness, such as that of Miss Fanny Osgood of Boston, former Eastern champion, and Mrs. E. A. Manice of New York, ex-Metropolitan champion. Miss Julia Mix of New York, present metropolitan champion, is also an absentee, as is Mrs. T. H. Polhemus of New York, National runner-up last Fall.

The players likely to carry the largest galleries are Miss Georgianna Bishop of Bridgeport, former National and metropolitan champion; Miss Vida Llewellyn of Chicago, Western champion; Miss Mary Adams, twice Eastern champion, who is paired with Miss Campbell; the Misses Harriott and Margaret Curtis of Boston, both former National champions; Mrs. Charles T. Stout of New York, ex-National and metropolitan title holder, and Miss Frances Griscom of Philadelphia, another ex-National title winner.

COY ON DECK AGAIN.

Yale's Football Captain to Direct Plays from the Side Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 3.—Ted Coy will to-morrow practically take charge of the Yale eleven, although he will be in no game for three weeks and "Dummy" Logan will continue to be field Captain. Coy will appear on the side lines as spectator and coach, but it is unlikely that he will get into his uniform for even signal practice before the close of the

The injury to Tony Haines proves severe. His ankle was badly twisted in a scrimmage yesterday, and he will be out of the game two or three weeks. He was Yale's best punter, and is badly needed for the West Point game next week Saturday.

The spectacular goal from the field which closed the first half of yesterday's game was Yale's first in years from the field. Yale is making a desperate effort to develop drop kickers this Fall, and Dr. William Bull will be here much of the time. Fred Daly, Philbin, Ford, Johnson, and Bob Deming are all being developed for that purpose.

Changes in Yale's team will come thick and fast, it is expected. Several who were regarded first-string men have been deposed. Howe's brilliant quarter back playing yesterday placed him ahead of Johnson, and Vaughn's end rush play raises him abreast Kilpatrick for first-string honors.

Soccer Teams in Close Contests.

The Brooklyn Association Football eleven defeated the Arcadia Thistles by the score of 2 goals to 0, at Visitation Oval, Brooklyn, yesterday in a championship game of the New York State League. The line-up:

Brooklyns, 2.	Position.	A. Thistles, 0.
Gavin	Goal	Haughie
York	Right back	Hayes

Goals—O'Halloran, Hampson. Time of halves—Forty-five minutes.

Playing in a fast game, the Cameron football eleven of Manhattan defeated the Clan McKenzie team yesterday by the score of 4 goals to 1 at Van Cortlandt Park. The Cameron players lost no time in clinching a victory in the start of the contest. The line-up:

Cameron F. C., 4.	Position.	Clan McKenzie, 1.
Haddock	Goal	Forber
Chapman	Right back	Straton
Clark	Right half	Hannan
Curry	Centre half	Mackie

Darkness Stops Tennis Match.

Rapid tennis brought the competitors for the Brooklyn singles championship up to the semi-final round of the tournament yesterday. Either Walter L. Pate or his rival, H. B. Robeson, would have won the upper final bracket but for the cloudy afternoon and the early darkness, which left Pate with two sets up, and the last lost to Robeson, who appeared to be overhauling the champion. The score of this match was 6—2, 6—2, 4—6, unfinished. With the gathering darkness Pate was unable to see the flight of the ball, and as Robeson materially increased his speed he scored the set at the close by a close margin. The summary:

Brooklyn Men's Championship Singles.—First Round—Arthur A. Hassell defeated H. L. Seaman, 6—4, 6—0, 8—6.

Second Round—H. B. Robeson defeated Charles C. Putnam, 6—2, 2—6, 6—4, 6—3; Walter L. Pate defeated Arthur A. Hassell, 6—2, 6—3, 9—7; Robert Casamajor defeated R. H. Boggs, 6—1, 6—4, 4—6, 7—9, 4—all; C. P. Burr defeated L. B. Hughes by default.

Semi-final Round—Walter L. Pate vs. H. B. Robeson, 6—2, 6—2, 4—6, unfinished.

PLEA FOR PERSONAL LIBERTY.

National German Alliance Opens with Condemnation of Prohibition.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 3.—With delegates representing forty-two States present in an audience that filled Music Hall, the National German Alliance was formally welcomed to Ohio to-day. The main business meeting of the body will be held to-morrow.

At the meeting to-day Gov. Judson Harmon paid eloquent tribute to the German-Americans of America, ascribing to them a love of liberty that is characteristic of them as a people and which he said can but make for good in the country of their adoption.

Mayor John Galvin also spoke, welcoming the delegates, and Dr. C. J. Hexamer of Philadelphia, President of the alliance, responded. In his address President Hexamer said:

"As devoted citizens of this country, we hold ourselves second to none in our devotion to the cause of true temperance and to all that makes for the sanctity of home and decency and order in the State; but we are bitterly opposed to the passage of any law that destroys our rights of personal liberty.

"As free and sovereign people we believe we have the right to regulate our lives as we see fit. The right to drink our wine and our beer, we consider as absolute an attribute of human liberty as is the right to buy any other food.

"The divine right of each to pursue his own good in his own way should not be sacrificed to the fears and the fanaticism of those who regard or pretend to regard drink as a crime.

"We German-Americans have never allowed our love of food or drink to degenerate into intemperance or to interfere with the good of the community, and we regard prohibition as an unrighteous invasion of our manhood rights and of human freedom.

"The strongest plea that can be put forth for the mildest form of prohibition—local option—is that it enables a fanatical majority to lord over a liberal-minded people. Let us hope that the spirit of liberty and American fair play will soon cause a reaction against the move of fanaticism that is now spreading over our land."

END OF THE STRONGEST GOAT.

He Tried Conclusions with a Trolley Car, and the Car Won.

Special to The New York Times.

CLINTON, N. J., Oct. 3.—Obsequies will be held to-morrow over the body of Prince, the strongest goat in Essex County. He died this morning, the victim of temerity induced by a superabundance of alcoholic materials.

Prince was ten years old. He was born on the farm of John Goodale, near here, and received his early training from tutors of his own family. At his maturity he went into the business of hauling the wagon of the Goodale children, his great strength serving him in good stead. He was well thought of by his employers.

This morning at 9 o'clock Prince had not appeared in the stable yard. Herbert Goodale, one of his employers, after gathering the other employers and their father, went in search of him. He was found in the feedhouse, lying beside the bins in which the brewer keeps his grains. Prince was awakened with difficulty, and when awake seemed to be in a bad temper. He dashed out into the yard, turned over a wagon, chased the chickens and hogs around in affrighted circles, and then butted open the outside gate.

He started down Bloomingdale Avenue in the direction of Caldwell, with Mr. Goodale following him. A trolley car was approaching on the track he was traveling. Prince jumped straight at the car.

The deceased will be buried with Masonic honors. His family had a wide circle of acquaintances and some friends in that order.

SAYS SOILS ARE IMPROVING.

Agricultural Bureau's Expert Argues from Increased Yields in Old Countries

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Declaring that the world's soils are to-day a greater storehouse of fertility than they ever were, Prof. Milton Whitney, chief of the Soils Bureau in the Department of Agriculture, in a bulletin just issued, takes a stand in direct opposition to the view of many writers that soils are gradually wearing out.

Prof. Whitney states that a study of the record for the last forty years will show that the average of crops is increasing, particularly in the older States, where the soil has been worked the longest. There has been, he states, an increase of two bushels in the average yield of wheat per acre in the last forty years, although the yield of corn has decreased one-half a bushel.

"The soils of New England have materially increased in yields of corn and wheat during forty years," says the professor, "but, what is more startling, they are producing considerably heavier yields than the soils of the Mississippi River States."

He adds that an examination of the records shows that the leading European nations are not only producing greater crops now than at an earlier period, but the crops are larger than those produced by the comparatively new soils of the United States.

NEW TONNAGE TAX TUESDAY.

Additional Revenue of $50,000 to be Derived from Shipping.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The tonnage tax provisions of the new tariff law will take effect Tuesday, sixty days after the enactment of the law, and the additional revenue from tonnage is estimated at approximately $50,000 annually.

The new law fixes the tonnage duty at two cents a ton, not to exceed ten cents a ton in any one year, to be imposed at each entry on all vessels coming into any port of the United States from any foreign place in North America, Central America, the West Indies, the Bahama and Bermuda Islands, or the coast of South America bordering on the Caribbean Sea or Newfoundland. A duty of six cents a ton, not to exceed thirty cents a ton in any one year, is to be imposed at each entry on all vessels entered in any port, from any other foreign port, not, however, to include vessels in distress or not engaged in trade.

Under the new provisions, vessels from the Province of Ontario, which have been exempt from duty, will have to pay the two cents a ton duty, and those from the Netherlands and Copenhagen, also formerly exempt, will have to pay the six cent tax. Fruit vessels coming from the West Indies, Central America and British North America get the benefit of a reduction of the tax from three to two cents.

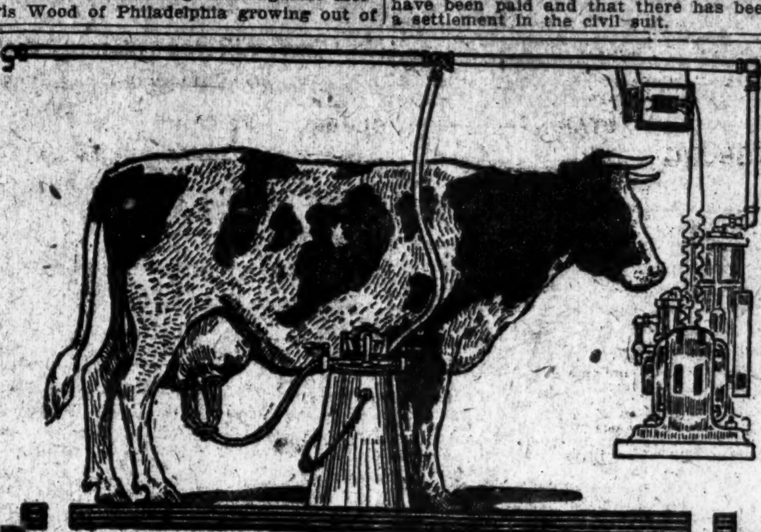
Mr. Wood took an appeal from the decision in the assault case, but it is now understood that the fine and costs have been paid and that there has been a settlement in the civil suit.



Milking by Electricity at the Electrical Show

Modern dairies are equipped with milking machines, operated by Electric motors. Each machine does the usual work of five men, and one man can operate four or five machines at once. A feature of great importance is the prevention of infection of the milk through the exclusion of dirt and dust.

DETROIT CAPTURES THIRD CHAMPIONSHIP

FIRST GAME AT PITTSBURG

Teams Will Clash Friday and Play Daily Until Series Is Completed—Sentiment Favors Pittsburg.

The American League season for 1909 closed yesterday. The Eastern clubs in the organization wound up Saturday, but the Western teams held over so as to get the benefit of a last Sunday game. In the final games played, Detroit won from Chicago, while Cleveland won and lost at St. Louis.

Detroit won the pennant for the third time, with a record of 98 victories and 54 defeats, the percentage being .645, or 24 points ahead of the Philadelphia Athletics. The Tigers earned their victory honestly and proved that they are a high-class organization. Much of the success of Detroit is due to the remarkable batting of Tyrus Cobb, who leads the American League list in this department of the game. The team has shown itself reliable in both fielding and batting, while the pitchers have done excellent work under trying conditions. The Athletics were dangerous contenders up to a week ago, when a couple of unexpected defeats put them out of the running.

Boston proved a failure during the later part of the season, while Chicago failed to live up to the expectations of the early part of the year. The Yankees led the second division, but failed to reach the .500 percentage by 10 points.

The first game between Detroit and Pittsburg, the National League pennant winner, for the world's championship, will be played Friday at Pittsburg. It is the general sentiment among the followers of the game in the East that the Pirates will have little trouble in winning the series. Six games are scheduled, ending Thursday, Oct. 14, at Detroit. In case either one or both games scheduled for Pittsburg on Friday, Oct. 8, or Saturday, Oct. 9, are not played on account of rain or for any other cause, the game will be played at Pittsburg on the return of the teams, providing that the Pittsburg club is not required to remain at Detroit until the first two games scheduled for that city are played.

Should it be necessary to play a seventh game to decide the championship the city in which it is to be played will be determined by the commission. Umpires Johnstone and Klem will represent the National League, and O'Loughlin and Evans will officiate for the American League.

The schedule for the championship series follows:

Saturday, Oct. 9, at Pittsburg.
Monday, Oct. 11, at Detroit.
Tuesday, Oct. 12, at Detroit.
Wednesday, Oct. 13, at Pittsburg.
Thursday, Oct. 14, at Detroit.

The following players will be eligible to participate in the games and none other:

Pittsburg National League Club—Abbaticchio, Abstein, Adams, Brandon, Byne, Cammitz, Clarke, Fick, Gibson, Hyatt, Leach, Leever, Liefield, Maddox, Miller, Moore, O'Connor, Phillippi, Powell, Simon, Wagner, Willis, Wilson.

Detroit American League Club—Beckendorf, Bush, Crawford, Cobb, Delehanty, Donovan, Jennings, Thomas Jones, David Jones, Killian, McIntyre, Moriarty, Mullin, O'Leary, Stanage, Schmidt, Speer, Summers, Willetts, Work.

Hist!

Turn the glare on this complaint.

"Your clothes wear too long."

A customer says so, and he only began buying our clothes twenty-five years ago in our first store at Broome Street and has kept buying them ever since.

We constantly invite complaints, for the good of the service, but must confess we don't always get as much pleasure out of them as in this case.

Also we make much more strenuous efforts to remedy the trouble than we shall make in this case.

We're just as careful to-day as ever to test for ourselves every fabric, making sure it's all wool and fast color and so woven as to give satisfactory service.

We hope that our good friend will be making the same complaint of our clothes for the next twenty-five years.

Pittsburg Defeats Chicago on Misplays and Opportune Hitting.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Chicago's inability to hit Leifield safely, coupled with opportune hitting by Pittsburg and loose playing by the locals, gave the National League leaders an easy victory here to-day, 4 to 1. A scratch single and a pair of errors on the same play gave Chicago its lone score. The score:

Kildare Wins from Cork.

Kildare won a hard-earned victory over the Gaelic football team representing Cork yesterday at Wakefield Park, Yonkers, having a lead of 3 points over their opponents at the close of the game. The Cork men were in the lead for the entire first half and maintained the advantage until the middle of the second period. A clever goal gave Kildare the honor at this point, and the team was never again headed.

To-day and to-morrow are the first days of registration. If you do not register you cannot vote at the Nov. 2 election. A full list of places of registration in New York City will be found elsewhere in this issue of The New York Times.

CLARKE WITHDRAWS FROM CHAMPIONSHIP

WANTED ELIMINATION TRIALS

Prominent Riders Withdraw with Clarke—Kramer's Ninth Consecutive Year as Champion.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 3.—With his great Australian rival, Jackie Clarke, refusing to ride, Frank L. Kramer, clinched his title as National cycling champion before a crowd of eight thousand fans at the Velodrome this afternoon, and for the ninth consecutive year was greeted as premier cyclist after one of the hardest seasons he has ever experienced. As an American flag was wrapped about the champion's shoulders and he was presented with a floral piece, he received the greatest ovation ever accorded a rider at the Newark saucer track.

The cause of Clarke's failure to ride was the eleventh hour decision of Referee R. F. Kelsey that the championship race of five miles must be run with half-mile qualifying heats in deference to the National Cycling Association rule that all championship contests must be conducted with elimination trials, if the race is longer than a quarter mile. Referee Kelsey's decision was a big surprise, both to riders and spectators, as the management had announced the race positively without the trials.

When Floyd MacFarland, Clarke's manager, heard Kelsey's decision, he withdrew the Australian champion, and with him other top-notchers, such as Fogler, Root, Mehir, and Bardgett. Ivor Lawson started in his heat, but made no attempt to qualify. Riding as he thus did against only second and third raters, Champion Kramer had no trouble in beating the field. The crowd realizing the fiasco was not Kramer's fault, gave him hearty support.

The result of the season's championship point struggle is as follows: Frank L. Kramer, 42; A. J. Clarke, 36; Joe Fogler, 10; Eddie Root, 10; Floyd Krebs, 7; Norman Anderson, 5; John Bedell, 4; Willie Fenn, 3; Charles Stein, 3; Menus Bedell, 3, and Ivor Lawson, 2. The summaries:

Five-Mile National Championship, Professional.—Won by Frank L. Kramer, East Orange; Charles Stein, Brooklyn, second; Floyd Krebs, Newark, third. Time—11:32.

One-Mile Handicap, Professional.—Won by Willie Fenn, Bristol, Conn., (20 yards;) Edward Root, Boston, Mass., (25 yards,) second; Fred Mill, Boston, (55 yards,) third. Time—1:59 1-5.

One-Hour Motor-Paced Race Results in Mixup with Riders.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Oct. 3.—In the one-hour race to decide the motor-paced championship of America, at the Clifton Stadium this afternoon, three records were smashed, and at the conclusion of the event the judges and the scorer disagreed as to the winner. The majority of the judges said Menus Bedell was first, and the scorer placed Elmer Collins. Bedell, Collins, Wiley, and Galvin started, but soon the event developed into a Bedell-Collins match. Collins rode ten miles in 13:30, breaking the former mark by five seconds, and Bedell led at twenty miles in 27:52, forty-one seconds ahead of the record. Bedell led after the fourteenth mile, and four minutes from the finish was, according to the scorer, half a mile ahead. Here the motor cycle driven by Ruden, his pacemaker, broke down, and Bedell rode around the track unpaced. Collins appeared to be the winner, but it was close. Scorer Smith said Collins won, but the judges figured that Bedell had taken the race by half a lap. Both cyclists had covered forty-one miles, beating the previous record by two-thirds of a mile. The summaries:

Three-Quarter-Mile Handicap, Amateur.—Won by Werner Beck, Newark, (55 yards;) J. B. Hawkins, Brooklyn, (35 yards,) second; Ivan Mishka, Passaic, (25 yards,) third. Time—1:35 4-5.

Amateur Motorcycle Race. Best Two Two-Mile Heats in Three. First Heat—Won by William Wray, New York; Walter Goerke, Brooklyn, second; A. G. Chappelle, New York, third. Time—2:34. Second Heat—Won by Goerke; Chappelle, second; Wray, third. Time—2:25 4-5. Third Heat—Won by Goerke; Chappelle, second; Wray, third. Time—2:34 1-5.

Five-Mile Amateur, Open.—Won by Adam Beyerman, New York; William Vanden Dries, New York, second; Ivan Mishka, Passaic, third. Time—11:38 2-5.

One-Hour Motor-Paced Championship of America.—Menus Bedell, Lynbrook, L. I., and Elmer Collins, Lynn, Mass., disputed as to finish; George Wiley, Syracuse, N. Y., third. Distance—41 miles ¼ lap.

Consolation Race, Amateur; Two and a Half Miles.—Won by Victor Anderson, New York; Henry Grome, Newark, second; Rend Hofkins, Paterson, third. Time—6:56.

Three-Mile Motor Race, Professional.—Won by Jimmy Hunter, Newark; Bob Schultz, Newark, second; Charles Turville, Philadelphia, third. Time—3:19 1-5.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 3.—Cincinnati and St. Louis won one game each of the double-header this afternoon. In the first game a muff of a thrown ball at the plate by Bliss allowed the locals to score enough runs to win. Manager Griffith used none but new men in the second game, and pitched himself. Timely hittings and errors gave St. Louis an easy victory in this game. Scores:

GOOD SPORT ON SPEEDWAY.

Kinstress and Other Old Favorites Make Season's Best Brushing.

Many old favorites returned to the Speedway yesterday, and as a result the best brushing of the Fall season was witnessed. The return of De Witt C. Flanagan with Kinstress, 2:09¼, was particularly welcome to spectators and drivers alike, as Mr. Flanagan is a firm believer in real sport and is willing to tackle any horse on the Speedway. The absence of Mr. Flanagan has done much toward lowering the popularity of the Drive.

There were several other additions to the list and several of the fastest horses in New York were seen in action. Mr. Flanagan drove in but one heat, which he won handily from California Cresceus, formerly owned and driven by James Butler, President of the Empire City Racing Association. Kinstress showed a world of speed, and none of the other drivers cared to tackle her, and after a few jogging spells Mr. Flanagan drove his horse to the stable.

Joseph Gibbons returned from the Summer fair circuit with Claro, which he was forced to give a mark of 2:11½ at the White Plains races. He raced Coast Marie, 2:11¼, the former Speedway pacing queen. James A. Murphy drove Coast Marie and gave Gibbons a hard fight in the first brush, but in the end lost by a length. In the repeat Gibbons's pacer was again to the fore throughout and won by a bigger margin than in the first meeting.

Charlie Weiland drove the former Grand Circuit champion, Sid Axworthy, 2:12¼, and was challenged by William Farrell, who was behind Charlie Hubbard, 2:12½. The pair kept together as far as the half-mile mark, when Sid Axworthy pulled out in front and led at the finish by a couple of lengths. The second meeting was marred by Charlie Hubbard breaking a blood vessel and was bleeding profusely from the nose when Mr. Farrell pulled up. The horse may be permanently injured.

Thomas W. Lawson handled the reins behind Jap, 2:29½, and engaged in a series of exciting contests. He met Mary Pandit, driven by George H. Huber, as an opener, but was unable to maintain the pace and finished an open length behind. The second contest was with the old timer Katie Gay, driven by L. N. Hartog. Jap appeared to better advantage and won somewhat easily. In a return race with Katie Gay the finish was the same as in the first meeting, but the third went the other way and Katie Gay carried of premier honors.

Two brushes resulted in close finishes when Katie Gay raced with Legannon, the latter being handled by John Farley. The curtain raiser saw the pair stepping side by side the entire distance, Katie Gay drawing away at the finish and winning by half a length. The second brush ended in the same order, Katie Gay winning by a neck.

William Scott was busy with Kitty Wilkes, 2:15½. The first contest was a dual affair with Dido, a new bay mare, which was no match for the Scott horse. A four-cornered brush followed, in which Dr. Eddy, 2:21¾, driven by Charles Horne; Katie Gay, and Jap figured with Kitty Wilkes. Dr. Eddy showed the most speed and won by a length from Kitty Wilkes, who was a length ahead of Katie Gay.

California Cresceus easily took the measure of the little mare Lucy, driven by Hugh Riley, and in the last event of the morning Jap won a hot brush from Dido.

HOPE FOR SPECIAL RACE.

Possible Meeting of Maskette and Fitz Herbert Arouses Horsemen's Interest.

The project of a special race to bring together the two most famous three-year-olds of 1909, James R. Keene's filly Maskette and S. C. Hildreth's colt, Fitz Herbert, has progressed further than the suggestion of such a race by the management of the Belmont Park race course for next Wednesday, when the club has issued invitations to all the officers of the visiting warships at the Hudson-Fulton Celebration to attend the Belmont Park racing, but vague as the plans for the special are, the interest of horsemen generally has been aroused.

Mr. Keene was a visitor to Belmont Park Saturday, but then could not state whether it would be possible to race Maskette on such short notice. Mr. Keene said he had not heard any definite report on the filly's condition, and that the matter of Maskette's racing again this season was entirely in the hands of James Rowe, her trainer. There would be no objection from Mr. Keene should a special race of suitable conditions be offered.

Fitz Herbert's owner has announced his willingness to race his colt against the champion filly, and the only stipulation that he has made has been for equal weights.

Fitz Herbert still is engaged in active racing at Belmont Park, but has only one more stake engagement there, this being in the Belmont Park Weight for Age race at two miles and a quarter, to be run next Saturday. In this race Fitz Herbert will carry just scale weight, 111 pounds, and while the $2,000 prize looks like a walk-over for the colt, Hildreth is willing to give his horse a trial against Maskette in a special. If the race is to be arranged quick action will be required on the part of the Belmont Park management.

VANDERBILT'S HORSE LAST.

Hennessy's Hag to Hag Wins Stake Worth $28,700 in France.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The feature of the races at Longchamps to-day was the running of the Prix du Conseil Municipal, at a mile and a half. The stake, which was worth $28,700, was won by James Hennessy's Hag to Hag by two lengths, in 2:43 2-5. W. K. Vanderbilt's Ripolin led to the last turn, when he quit and was passed by the others, finishing absolutely last. M. de Bremonde's Ronde de Nuit was second, and M. Charren's Talo Biribil third. W. K. Vanderbilt's Nogofol was unplaced.

The Prix de Newmarket, at ten and a half furlongs, purse $2,000, was won by M. Fischef's Cortado.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 3.—A number of new coaches will arrive at Percy Field to-morrow afternoon to help along in the development of the Cornell football team. Among the men expected are Bunny Larkin and Ned Alexander, 1901; W. R. Miller, John Newhall, F. W. Cool, and Charles Mason. The coaches now in the city held a conference to-day in which the weak points brought out by the game with Rensselaer last Saturday were thoroughly discussed. Ten men were picked to-day for the training table out of a squad of eighty-five candidates. The following men were taken: McArthur, Hurlburt, and Crosby, ends; Wood and Baker, quarter backs; Seagrave, centre; Tydeman, left half back; Gass, full back; Donan, left guard, and Monk, tackle.

ATHLETES TO STRIVE FOR INDOOR HONORS

National A. A. U. Championships to Start at Madison Square Garden To-night.

Crowley Meets with Defeat in Three-Mile Run—Loughlin Lyceum Takes Dual Meet.

The number of world's champions and record holders entered in the National Amateur Athletic Union indoor championships at Madison Square Garden to-night and Tuesday exceed those of any other meet of recent date. In the sprints there are Cloughen, Keating, Ekman, Reed, Ford, and O'Connell. Sheppard, Lunghi, Gissing, Kiviat, and Prout of Boston are some of the entries in the 600 and 1,000 yard events. Sullivan, Bonhag, Daly, Collins, Driscoll, Ballard of Boston, Dull of Pittsburg, former intercollegiate champion; H. A. Wilson, English champion; and Fred Bellars, cross-country champion, are entered in the long-distance races, and the pace is sure to be a hot one from start to finish. In the hurdle races, Harry Hillman, Jack Eller, Roy Dorland, and Smye Northridge will hook up, and some great competition is expected.

World's Champion Harry F. Porter, National Champion Egan Ericksen, Con Leahy, W. J. Fleming, and other well-known jumpers will lead the assault on Mike Sweeney's old mark of 6 feet 5⅝ inches for the running high jump. Porter has come close to the mark several times, but has never met a man capable of making him extend himself to the fullest. This year, however, Egan Ericksen will make the Olympic champion jump for all he is worth.

Timothy P. Ahearne, winner of the triple-jump contest in the Olympic Games of 1908, arrived in this city yesterday from Ireland. Ahearne is a brother of D. J. Ahearne, who is now competing for the Irish-American A. C. and who has recently made several new records in broad jumping. T. J. Ahearne, D. Ahearne, Platt Adams, Martin J. Sheridan, and J. F. O'Connell will meet in the running hop, step, and jump event.

MALONE DEFEATS CROWLEY.

Mohawk A. C. Runner Captures Long Run at Powhatan A. C. Games.

Many prominent Metropolitan A. A. U. amateurs took part yesterday in the annual meet of the Powhatan Athletic Club at the Grove, Edgewater, N. J. It was the only open meet in the vicinity of New York City, which was responsible for the excellent entry list. Many of the events were well contested, but the cold wind prevented any special time.

The defeat of John T. Crowley of the Irish-American Athletic Club in the three-mile run was a feature of the games. Crowley started from scratch, and although he made a determined effort on the last lap he could do no better than third. The event was won in excellent style by J. Malone, Mohawk Athletic Club, who started from the sixty-yard mark. F. Smith, Knickerbocker Athletic Club, with a handicap of 200 yards, was a good second.

B. Dewar captured the hundred yards handicap, thanks to a liberal allowance on the part of the handicapper. The 1,000-yard handicap furnished another surprise when E. Gilmore, Dominican Lyceum, beat out R. J. Egan, who ran unattached. Gilmore had an advantage of two yards over Egan, but finished six yards ahead of him. George B. Ford, Jr., the Mercury Foot crack, made the best time of the afternoon, winning the quarter-mile run from the five-yard mark in 0:56 1-5. The summaries:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by B. Dewar, Irish-American Athletic Club, (8 yards;) J. J. Nullooley, Mohawk Athletic Club, (8½ yards,) second; C. B. Clark, Xavier Athletic Association, (8 yards,) third. Time—0:10.

1,000-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by E. Gilmore, Dominican Lyceum, (32 yards;) R. J. Egan, unattached, (20 yards,) second; H. W. Garaig, National Athletic Club, (60 yards,) third. Time—2:19 1-5.

440-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by George B. Ford, Jr., New York Athletic Club, (5 yards;) W. J. Moore, Mohawk Athletic Club, (22 yards,) second; B. F. Garing, National Athletic Club, (22 yards,) third. Time—0:56 1-5.

Three-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by J. Malone, Mohawk Athletic Club, (60 yards;) F. Smith, Knickerbocker Athletic Club, (200 yards,) second; J. T. Crowley, Irish-American Athletic Club, (scratch,) third. Time—16:58 3-5.

Throwing the Discus, Handicap.—Won by Dan F. Ahearn, Irish-American Athletic Club, (15 feet,) distance, 132 feet 11 inches; J. H. Duncan, Mohawk Athletic Club, (8 feet,) distance, 131 feet 7 inches, second; A. W. Bruce, Irish-American Athletic Club, (15 feet,) distance, 131 feet 1 inch, third.

Throwing Sixteen-Pound Hammer, Handicap.—Won by B. F. Sherman, unattached, (18 feet,) distance, 148 feet 9 inches; Emery Payne, Mohegan Athletic Club, (25 feet,) distance, 132 feet 1 inch, second; F. McLoughlin, Loughlin Lyceum, (25 feet,) distance, 91 feet 3 inches, third.

CLOSE ATHLETIC SEASON.

Irish-Americans Will End Outdoor Competitions Sunday.

The Irish-American Athletic Club will close the outdoor season Sunday at Celtic Park, when a programme of novel and interesting events will be decided. One of the features will be the revival of many events that have found no place on the local programmes in recent years, and some exciting competitions are expected. Many athletes of National reputation have sent in entries, and one of the biggest outdoor meets of the season is sure to result. John J. Flanagan, the world's record holder; Matt McGrath, and other weight men will make a final assault on the hammer and shot events, while Martin J. Sheridan will go after a new discus record. Dan Ahearne and his brother, Tim, who has just arrived from Ireland, will clash with Platt Adams in the jumps.

Holy Cross Lyceum Wins Meet.

W. Beckman carried off the honors yesterday at the dual meet between the Holy Cross Lyceum and the New West Side Athletic Club at the latter's grounds, Fifty-third Street, near Eighth Avenue. Beckman won the seventy-yard dash, high jump, and shot-put, the only three events in which he was entered. The meet was closely contested, Holy Cross winning by the score of 30 points to 24. The clubs divided the honors in first places, but the Holy Cross Lyceum athletes secured the majority of seconds and thirds. The summaries:

880-Yard Run.—Won by G. Wilcox, Holy Cross Lyceum; G. Lane, Holy Cross Lyceum, second; J. Robinson, West Side A. C., third. Time—2:09.

300-Yard Run.—Won by G. Lane, Holy Cross Lyceum; P. Hynes, Holy Cross Lyceum, second; J. Robinson, West Side A. C., third. Time—0:34 3-5.

One and One-Half Mile Run.—Won by T. Hogan, Holy Cross Lyceum; J. Michaels, West Side A. C., second; J. Williams, West Side A. C., third. Time—7:39.

Putting 12-Pound Shot.—Won by W. Beckman, West Side A. C., (distance, 45 feet;) M. Martin, Holy Cross Lyceum, (distance, 38 feet 5 inches,) second; P. Nulty, Holy Cross Lyceum, (distance, 37 feet 9 inches,) third.

ST. YVES COLLAPSES.

French Runner Defeated by Holmer May Never Race Again.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Oct. 3.—Henry St. Yves, the famous French long-distance runner, collapsed in the twenty-third mile of a race here to-day. Physicians who examined him declared that his heart was affected and that he probably will be unable to run again.

His opponent, Hans Holmer of Quebec, finished strong, covering the Marathon distance in 2:32:40, a new record, if the track is found to measure correctly. Of this there is some doubt. To-day's defeat of St. Yves gave Holmer his sixth straight victory since June. St. Yves was leading by a few yards when he went down and out.

NEW YORK, MONDAY, OCT. 4, 1909.

AN ELOQUENT SILENCE.

It cannot have escaped the most casual observation that neither the Tammany nor the Fusion platform adopts the issue which but a few months ago was to be the keynote of the campaign. The proposal to amend the constitution so as to permit the city to borrow more than the 10 per cent. limit was put through with a whoop Everybody was for it, and it was declared to be the one thing necessary to carry the campaign then a few months distant. Much has happened since then, and immediately ahead of us is a budget debate which will reveal as never before the sort of things for which New York has borrowed money, and upon which it has spent money already borrowed. It has been made plain to the meanest comprehension since the hasty and ill-considered action of the Legislature that there is no limit to the amount of money which can be spent, and if the amount of borrowing also were to be made unlimited, the qualifications hitherto made when speaking of New York's bankruptcy would have to be removed. To borrow a billion dollars (approximately) upon the faith of a limitation of borrowing power and then to remove the limit when it was reached savors of such poor business policy, not to say civic immorality, that each and every convention in search of an issue overlooked this one.

It is a happy augury. The campaign starts well with a trend toward real retrenchment, instead of a mere profession of retrenchment for campaign purposes. New York under the present constitutional limitation is able to borrow as much as the United States owes on its bonds, and more than it is convenient to pay interest upon. To allow the interest charge to be increased under any pretense whatever would go far to raise a riot among the taxpayers and among rentpayers, if they could be got to appreciate the issue. New York simply cannot pay a larger bill of expenses, and it is resolved to get all it wants out of its present ample expenditure. The proposition chills Tammany to the marrow, and may well do so. Every platform agrees that retrenchment is the issue. Retrenchment does not mean application for a license to incur more debt or spend more money. The Fusion candidate for Mayor seems to appreciate this, for when asked for his position upon the proposal he is reported to have said he preferred to answer in writing. It can be taken for granted that any perfunctory approval extorted from the apparent exigency of the campaign will be so safeguarded that the privilege of borrowing more money will be nullified. The Tammany candidate probably will express his approval, or break with Tammany. When was Tammany ever against borrowing money to be expended for honest graft? What support would "the Hall" give a candidate who in good faith limited its opportunities to grab from the public purse? If Mr. GAYNOR honestly favors what the Tammany platform professes hypocritically he can declare against the debt increase. If he also is in favor of retrenchment to fool the people before election, but against it after election, then he can declare for the amendment.

CRIME IN ENGLAND.

It is plain that the lack of employment of which the present Government of the United Kingdom is making so much is having its effect in the increase of certain kinds of crime, especially crimes against property and of the less degrees of seriousness.

The report of the Commissioners of Prisons for the year ended last March shows this. The total number of offenses was 176,602 in the previous year and 184,901 this year. On the basis of population this was 523.1 to 100,000 in place of 505.4. The increase was distributed quite evenly throughout the country, being marked in South Wales, in the Northern district, and in the Midlands. In the agricultural districts there was an unusual increase—nearly 25 per cent.—in vagrancy, or, in the English phrase, "begging and sleeping out."

Among those convicted of more serious offenses it is noteworthy that the percentage who had served terms of imprisonment was markedly greater, 38.3 per cent. as against 36.5 per cent. for the previous year. On the other hand it is a relief to this sombre record to learn that the number of prisoners discharged under remission of sentence earned under the conditions of a recent act increased by about 64 per cent., and that the operation of the act "continues to be greatly appreciated by the prisoners, and to be conducive to good conduct and discipline."

The Commissioners of Prisons agree with the Poor Law Commissioners that the increase in unemployment, with the consequent increase in offenses committed, is by no means due wholly to the lack of demand for labor. They are convinced that there is a definite tendency toward willful and habitual idleness, and that this is encouraged by the liberal provision made for the unconditioned support of the idle. That tendency is clearly not checked by recent legislation granting old-age pensions on terms that distinctly discourage industry and thrift. We are in this country, as a rule, far from any such conditions as prevail in England, but they exist and increase in some cities, and English experience is not without a warning significance for us.

REGISTER TO-DAY.

To-day is the first of the four days of registration in this city. Register to-day. Every man entitled to a vote should vote this year. We are facing a crisis in municipal affairs. The election of Mr. BANNARD and the rest of the Fusion ticket can be accomplished if all the independent voters will qualify and vote, and the full strength of the Republican vote can be secured. In view of the extreme gravity of the situation there ought to be no delays. Let the Superintendent of Elections have full lists of qualified voters as early as possible. Extra efforts will be made this Autumn to prevent frauds at the polls.

The chief need now is to arouse all good citizens to action. We are not to have a campaign of fireworks and eloquence. The issue is plain, and all the needful arguments can be expressed in plain words and figures. The first duty of every citizen is to register. If you fail to register you cannot vote, and it is not conceivable that there is a male resident of voting age in Greater New York who will not want to vote Nov. 2. The Tammany men will all register and vote. Remember that and register to-day.

THE FUTURE STUDENT.

Prof. DUDLEY ALLEN SARGENT of Harvard University—we are not quite sure that he has full professorial rank, but he ought to have—has an excellent article in the current number of Putnam's Magazine. He starts out with this encouraging statement:

> The average height of our student class has increased from 5 feet 7 inches to 5 feet 8 inches, and the average weight by from six to eight pounds, while the total strength has increased some 30 per cent. With this great improvement in physique, which means not only larger and stronger muscles, but better hearts, lungs, stomachs, and brains, I believe there has been a corresponding improvement in mental and moral tone as indicated in the general reduction in the amount of vice, gambling, and intemperance now practiced by American students. This is certainly an achievement to be proud of, and it may be attributable not alone to better preaching or better teaching, but to the growth of interest in physical training and athletics.

But there are qualifications to the pride we can feel in this achievement. In the first place, the improvement in the physique, and, consequently, in the morals, of students in college is in part due to the fact that considerable numbers are drawn to college by the attraction of athletics and not by the attractions of study. This raises the average, but it tends toward the division of college population into two classes, of which one is athletic and the other studious, and neither has the advantages of both. There is a large number of student athletes; there is a much smaller, and almost insignificant, number of athletic students. The athletes do just enough studying to get through—and it does not require much—and the real students do no more in athletic exercises than is needed for health, and often not that.

The ideal, of course, is the full, adequate, modern realization of the old standard of "mens sana in corpore sano," as sound a mental training as possible combined with the soundest attainable physical training, for the great body of students. To attain, or to approach, this ideal Prof. SARGENT would like to begin with the preparatory schools, where the systematic, careful, and continuous development of the body should receive even more consideration than that of the mental faculties. And this not only because a truly healthful body is essential for the most efficient evolution and use of the mental faculties, but because bodily training may be made steadily and strongly to contribute to the development of the moral faculties—courage, endurance, fairness, and the subordination of selfish aims to general advantage.

But Prof. SARGENT would have this bodily training, in the schools and in colleges, of a sort that would aid all, and not merely the relatively small number who now share, or try to share, in the limited number of contentious sports. When this is realized, athletics will take their proper place as essential, but not solely essential.

> Sports will be more varied but less strenuous and intense. As the college comes into closer touch with the world and feels more keenly the demands for men of intellectual force as well as intellectual acumen, the value of physical exercise as a means of attaining fitness for efficient service will become more highly appreciated. Instead of visiting the athletic fields, sitting on the benches, and seeing a few picked men run races and play ball, the vast majority of our students will get into the game for the immediate joy and pleasure it affords. With the increase of intellectual activity among students, which is bound to come with the spirit of the age, formal gymnastics and the more strenuous contests will be less sought for in the colleges, and recreative sports and games will be more in demand.

We are happy to believe that this is not only the description of an ideal but of a definite tendency, and it is an excellent one.

CANNON-TAMMANY, LIMITED.

How beautifully it all works out! The Republican machine at Washington is threatened with a serious defeat by which its power will be lessened and its beneficent utility—that is to say, its utility to its beneficiaries—will sorely be curtailed. The Tammany machine in New York is threatened in like manner with like disagreeable consequences. The Washington machine stands in need of a few Democratic votes in the House of Representatives. The New York machine requires the aid of some of the managers of the Republican majority in the State Legislature. According to Mr. PARSONS, the energetic Republican leader in the County of New York, the appropriate exchange was made and the two machines reaped their respective advantages. Talk about progress in machinery. Not even the admirable new invention for the economical combination of turbine and propeller promises to work more smoothly. MELVILLE and WESTINGHOUSE are no greater in their line than MURPHY and CANNON.

Of course from the point of view of honesty, decency, and general morality there are cavilers who will regard the working of the two political machines with disapproval. But the inventors, engineers, owners, and partners of owners in these remarkable pieces of mechanism may be excused from sharing their pernickety scruples. They have a keen realizing sense of the great interests at stake, and to them the end justifies the means. Take first, for example, the unusual exigency with which the Cannon machine managers, on the threshold of an extra session—a tariff revision session—found themselves confronted. They were charged with the task of passing a tariff bill in which some showy and a few real concessions to the public would be made. That in itself was not very hard, for their opponents in their own party would hardly fight them on this part of their plan of campaign. But the plan did not stop there. The House bill was to go to the Senate. There every real concession of importance was to be cut out. Many very wicked and offensive changes were to be made. The cotton goods interests, the worsted wool interests, the structural steel interests, were to receive outrageous additions to the favors by which their monopolistic control has been built up. The Commission contrivance for letting in light on the working of the tariff was to be spiked. The maximum provision was to be made more destructive to foreign trade. The bill was to be made a perfect arsenal of lethal provisions for the arming of the "interests" and their ruthless domination of the masses of the people.

Obviously to secure in the House the acceptance of this creation of the Senate Finance Committee would tax the utmost resources of the Cannon machine, threatened, at the opening of the session, with a formidable secession. If the Republican insurgents could obtain the co-operation of the Democratic minority, the power of CANNON could be reduced, and the Senate tariff policy be balked. There was every reason to expect such co-operation. The Democrats were formally committed to substantial downward revision. It was the only issue on which a ghost of a hope existed for a successful National contest and a possibility of accession to power in the National Government. Every consideration of party loyalty and political honor impelled Democrats to join an effort to strip the Republican machine of some of its arbitrary and unfair advantage. To save the machine it was necessary to secure the votes of Democrats who were indifferent to party loyalty and political honor and were ready to trade their votes for advantages on their own side in their own States similar to those the Republican machine sought in Washington.

Mr. PARSONS points to the market in which such a bargain was possible. There was none so favorable as New York. Nowhere else were there Democratic leaders with whom the Republican leaders could so readily "do business." As the complex and profitable traffic in tariff favors is the chief source of profit to the Republicans in Washington, so in this city the dispensation of graft, more or less "honest," is the source of profit for Tammany. And as the Cannon machine was in danger of losing control of tariff favors, so Tammany was in peril from the cutting off, by stringent election laws, of the fraudulent votes which helped them retain control of city graft. Here was an ideal situation for a commercial transaction, each party having what the other needed and needing what the other had. According to Mr. PARSONS the exchange was consummated by a certain number of up-State Republicans who brought to naught the stringent election legislation under way and by the Democratic machine which furnished votes in the House to save the Cannon rule. That is a very grave intimation which a man in Mr. PARSONS'S responsible position would surely not make without ample justification in fact. It throws a new light on the character of the political organizations engaged in the deal. Suddenly the issue in the city election has become of National importance, and of more than National significance, since it involves the fundamental integrity of the ballot, which all parties are bound to vindicate. It makes the path of duty in the city election, for all honorable and intelligent citizens, extremely plain.

THE SUNDAY TIMES.

Yesterday THE SUNDAY TIMES comprised ninety pages, equal in size to 360 pages of a monthly magazine. Three pictorial supplements handsomely printed on calendered paper illustrated contemporary life and action all over the world, as well as the trend of millinery and sartorial fashions in this hour. The Hudson-Fulton pageants, President TAFT'S tour of the Republic, the return to civilization of the discoverer of the north pole, Commander PEARY; social incidents of note and the people concerned in them, were among the subjects of these illustrations. The Magazine Supplement was remarkably rich in its discussions of matters of vital importance. Among the contributors were Prof. CHARLES WILLIAM WALLACE, whose researches into the career of SHAKESPEARE in London promise to clear away the mists which partly conceal the greatest figure in English literature; Count TOLSTOY, STEPHEN BONSAL, JAMES CREELMAN, and the veracious Hashimura Togo. HY. MAYER treated of the fashions in dress in his own inimitable way, and the uppermost topics of the day in science, literature, the fine arts, and politics were dealt with by competent writers.

These features were apart from the newspaper, which chronicled the important doings of twenty-four hours in every country of the civilized world, and the air above it, and included sections devoted to special cable dispatches, sporting events, social happenings, and the news of the world of music and the drama. A great newspaper, surely, with stimulus for thought and imagination in every column. It has often been said, lately, that the magazines are invading the newspaper field. A glance over such a newspaper as THE SUNDAY TIMES suggests that the traditional field of the magazine is ably filled by the modern newspaper, with no neglect of its province as a chronicle of current events in all departments of life.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Montana Invites Inspection. People who think of Montana as a State with a few big copper mines, and nothing besides except a rather large stretch of sterile mountains and arid desert, would learn a lot of new and surprising things if they read a big illustrated pamphlet just issued by its Bureau of Agriculture, Labor, Industry and Publicity. For Montana, like many of the other Western States, has arrived at a realization of itself in a business as well as a political sense, and, like other big businesses, it is conducting an extensive and carefully thought out advertising campaign. Its "literature" lacks the humor that has characterized some of that issued by Kansas with the same intention, but it is good readable matter, none the less, and it ought to be of a lot of assistance to the apprehensive people who are preaching the doctrine of "back to the land" as the only remedy for our social and economic ills. Montana has the land—as much as there is in all of New England, with New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland added — and though not a few million acres of it are solid rock, and steep at that, they hardly count, so many more millions more are generously arable if only one knows how to cultivate them.

It cannot be denied, and isn't, that Montana's rainfall is a bit scanty, but, when helped out by irrigation from the many large rivers conveniently scattered through it and by the method of agriculture known as "dry farming," the so-called deserts produce crops of a size and with a certainty to make regions apparently more favored by pluvian Jove sing statistically very small. All desirable things, seemingly, except a few like bananas and cotton, not only can be but are raised on one part or another of the enormous State. It grieves us to notice in the book under consideration the promise that there will be more rain as soon as enough farmers plant enough trees, for that is neither science nor experience—is, indeed, only a popular and now waning delusion—but otherwise all the statements made seem to be based on demonstrated fact, and to support the compiler's claim that he has told the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. He frankly admits that it is not well to go to Montana without a little capital—$500 will do, if one happen to be just the right kind of a man, but it is safer to have at least three or four times as much. None of the land is to be had without a price, but vast stretches of it are amazingly cheap, considering the quality, and an eager welcome awaits the industrious and enterprising settler. If others apply they will probably be sorry for it.

Double Office Holders.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a dispatch from Poughkeepsie published in THE TIMES it is stated that the probable candidacy of former Lieut. Gov. Chanler for the office of both Supervisor and Member of Assembly is quite out of the ordinary. In the up-State counties of the State it is common for the Supervisor to fill the office of Assemblyman at the same time. For example, the late S. Fred Nixon, Speaker of the Assembly for seven terms, filled the office of Supervisor during the years he was in the Assembly. His successor, Henry K. Williams of Dunkirk, ran for Member of Assembly and Supervisor at the same time. He was elected Assemblyman, but defeated for Supervisor.

In the rural counties they figure that a good Supervisor makes the best representative at Albany, as he is familiar with the needs of the entire district through enacting county legislation.

If Gaynor Is Elected.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am greatly pleased that THE TIMES is enlisted in the anti-Tammany campaign, for that is what it really is, call it Republican or Fusion, or what you will.

If Judge Gaynor is elected it will be by Tammany votes, and Boss Murphy will quietly ignore him and continue to run the City Government to suit himself and his gang.

LESSON OF THE WARSHIPS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Among the most suggestive features of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration is the impressive gathering of the warships of the various nations. These great ships are not, in their most significant sense, engines of war and destruction; they are devices to maintain peace and peaceful pursuits. We have not yet reached that state of international fellowship and good feeling where peace is assured and secured without force of arms. Modern warships represent a stage in the evolution toward that happy state "where the war drum throbs no longer," a costly and burdensome stage in that evolution, to be sure, but nevertheless a necessary one. Their significance, therefore, does not consist so much in the evolutionary stage which they represent as the goal to which they are leading.

They suggest the time when nations shall cease from war and find the vigor and stimulus which war has furnished to nations in the past in what Prof. James calls a moral substitute for war, war upon political and industrial injustice and oppression, war upon ignorance and poverty and all conditions which prevent the development and realization of normal men. And a great step it truly will be toward man's purpose and destiny when that almost limitless energy expended in building warships will be turned toward the solution of social and industrial problems, National and international, although that step may not be taken until we of the present generation are gathered to our fathers.

But there are indications that we may intelligently hope for the banishment of war, in its present sense and meaning. The exhibition of such boundless good nature by our celebration visitors from all parts of the world indicates that we are progressing in that direction. Even in the Subway crowding and crushing, truly most trying circumstances, people of all nations have shown their friendliness and understanding spirit. Even such seemingly unimportant things suggest the fulfillment of the poet's vision, "the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World," where physical war shall have been superseded by "newer ideals of peace."

GERMAN PART IN PARADE.

Says We Have Misunderstood Flag and National Prussian Anthem.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I, and probably a great many others, have read with profound interest the articles appearing in the New York newspapers commenting on last Thursday's military parade, especially those dealing with the German participants. But why do all these newspaper writers insist on calling the German men-of-war flag carried in front of the German detachment the "imperial flag"? One of the morning papers even made reference to the double-eagle of the house of Hohenzollern, whereas the double-eagle is the emblem of the house of Hapsburg in Austria.

Further, the German marine band never intended to play "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," as is alleged; they simply struck up the ancient "Preussenmarsch," when the command for the historical German parade step was issued, which march is played nine times out of ten when a Prussian troop parade is in progress. This celebrated piece of music starts with the old Catholic Church tune, which at the same time furnishes the melody to the German "Heil Dir im Siegerkranz," the English "God Save the King," and the American "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and then swings to the national Prussian anthem "Ich bin ein Preusse."

Aeroplanes and the Weather.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the aeroplanes have to wait days for favorable conditions before they are enabled to make a flight, I should like to ask of what value such an instrument would be in war or any other time?

On Tuesday, from what I could learn, the weather conditions were ideal for the promised flight over Manhattan, which did not occur, and the writer is very skeptical as to whether it will occur during the present celebration.

More Disappointed Seat Holders.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I think that the letter of A. K. Woodbury should be followed by others who were "stung" in the same manner on the grand stand at Ninety-seventh Street.

I bought five seats, understanding that the view would be perfect, but could not see a thing, much less my little boy, or any one else in my party.

This should be a lesson to the unsuspecting persons who bought the seats, to see the goods before paying for them after this. M. P. F.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PROBLEM.

More Emphasis on Fact That Teachers Should Teach and Pupils Study.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The school problem, as shown in New York's congested population, in which thousands of people are prevented from attending the schools, would be solved for twenty years to come if our Boards of Education would act sensibly. Cut out the idea that school is a nursery and that mothers should try to throw the responsibility of an entire day's care on the school teacher. Cut out the idea of crowding studies on children who get a smattering of two-thirds of what they are obliged to study from books, and cut out the idea that a school teacher should not work as long and as faithfully for the good pay they receive as the general body of people who occupy positions or who are obliged to labor at trades.

Calculate all the holidays that the teachers get under the present regulations and you will see that they don't work one hour in every nine during the year. There should be no reason why teachers are given such a tremendous personal favorable discrimination as to time occupied in their duties, for which the public pays.

No pupil should be obliged to study more than two hours per day, and if every pupil would do that amount of study for five days in each week under the guidance and surveillance of a proper teacher, in a few years the record of smart or advanced pupils would be broken and a great object attained. By the adoption of one session of four hours each for the sets of pupils each day there would be plenty of room for the children of New York, and each scholar would have all the study necessary to fit it for any walk of life, provided that the teachers did their duty.

School is the place to study and be taught, but it should not be used for a nursery or a basis for sinecure positions. L. A. W.

VALUE OF MANUAL LABOR.

Prof. Van Dyke's Statistics of Rich and Poor Boys in College.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed your timely comment in THE TIMES of Sept. 29 upon Mr. Van Dyke's excellent essay in Scribner's for October, respecting the poor showing in college of boys of the affluent, compared with boys of the poorer classes. Really, there is nothing to marvel at in the statistics collected by Mr. Van Dyke, for reasons quite other than those named by you. The writer of this has set forth, during the last quarter of a century, by essays and public speaking, the significance of labor—manual labor—as an educator. No one has taken the subject up, however, so far as I know, except Prof. Hadley of Yale and Prof. Eliot, late of Harvard, or recognized the principle involved.

To work is to think. To employ the hands is to employ the brain, and that, too, in an effective way. Mechanical and farm labor is, therefore, more important to brain power and development than the college curriculum. Academic work may make a scholar, but it often fails to make a thinker.

AMBASSADOR HILL HOME.

Comes from Germany on a Visit—Says He Likes His Job.

After an absence of two years abroad David J. Hill, American Ambassador to Germany, is again in America. He arrived yesterday with his wife on the North German Lloyd liner George Washington.

"I believe a man who represents a country abroad should come home occasionally to see that country and to take a look around over old fields," he said. "I am here on my first leave in two years, and I have arranged to take advantage of every minute of the six weeks I shall spend on this side of the Atlantic.

"Germany is a great country, progressive, and commercially aggressive. I have a splendid post."

Mr. and Mrs. Hill will go to Williamsport, Penn., after a few days in New York. Then they will visit Rochester, going from there to Washington.

DUCHESS DE CHAULNES HERE.

Brings the Baby Duke from France—To Spend the Winter Here.

Mrs. Theodore Shonts and her daughters, Miss Marguerite Shonts and the Duchess de Chaulnes, the latter accompanied by her little son, Herzog, Duke de Chaulnes, arrived yesterday on the George Washington. The Duchess was booked simply as "Frau" and the little Duke as "Herr." This is her first visit to America since her marriage.

"I am very glad to return to New York," she said, "for I have looked forward to this visit with pleasant anticipation."

The little Duke, now about 10 months old, is a bright-looking baby. His mother showed him proudly to those who met her.

"He will shake hands," she said. And he put out a chubby hand to meet that of the interviewer. The nurse seemed greatly pleased with the behavior of the head of th ehouse of De Chaulnes.

Mr. Shonts went down the bay to meet his family. They departed in his private car for Hot Springs, Va., as soon as their baggage had been examined.

"I have been trying to get a vacation for some time," he said, "and I hope to spend at least two weeks with them. After some weeks in Virginia they will go to our home, Daphine, near Mobile, Ala., and during the Winter will alternate between that State and New York. The Duchess will spend the Winter with us."

Mrs. Shonts and her daughter, Marguerite have been abroad most of the Summer, living with the Duchess in France.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner George Washington were Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Guggenheim, who have been touring Continental Europe.

Mr. Guggenheim was Chairman of the concert given during the voyage of the George Washington. At his suggestion, a fund, to be known as the George Washington Fund, was started to assist sick and injured sailors and their families, and—also to help stranded and worthy Americans to get back home and worthy Germans stranded here to get back to the fatherland. At the concert 1,500 marks (about $360) was subscribed.

Mr. and Mrs. Guggenheim were accompanied by their physician, Dr. Robert Kunitzer of the Sydenham Hospital. Mr. Guggenheim said that his brother Daniel, who is staying at Abazzia, Austria, on the Adriatic, was almost well.

"We are doing well commercially," he said. "There is a demand for our products and there is no trouble in selling at an advance. My brother wrote to me that more lead was sold in September than ever before. Things are looking well for this country. There is in this, as in many other things, the evidence of improved conditions—a condition of improvement which will be lasting."

MRS. COREY NO SUFFRAGETTE.

And Her Opera Plans Have Been Shut Off, Says Her Husband.

W. E. Corey, head of the United States Steel Corporation, went to Hoboken yesterday morning to meet his wife, who returned from France on the North German Lloyd liner George Washington. The former Mabelle Gilman looked in the best of health, as she affectionately greeted her husband.

"I expect to stay here all Winter, returning to Paris probably in April," she said.

Mrs. Corey was asked if she was a Suffragette. She seemed amused at the question. "No," she said. "I am not a suffrage agitator. I leave that for others."

She was asked about her plans for studying for grand opera. But just as she was about to answer Mr. Corey spoke up:

Mrs. Corey smiled and acquiesced.

FREE LECTURES TO-NIGHT.

Board of Education Will Have 200 Courses This Year.

The Board of Education will open its twenty-first season of free public lectures for adults to-night. The plans as announced provide for the broadening of the lecture season, the greater co-operation with the public libraries and other educational institutions, and an increase in the number of lectures on practical subjects, especially health, economics, and science. All lectures will begin at 8:15 P. M.

Present plans provide for lectures over a period extending from now until the holidays. In that time about 2,000 lectures will be delivered by 600 lecturers at 160 or more public schools or rented lecture halls. There will be nearly 200 courses of four or more lectures, most of which will be delivered by professors from nearby colleges and universities. Among the colleges from which lecturers have been drawn are Columbia, New York University, College of the City of New York, Yale, Princeton, University of Pennsylvania, Rutgers, Amherst, and University of Chicago.

The Albany Burgesses' Ball.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have learned that in connection with the ball of the Albany Burgess Corps, which seems to have evoked some criticism, there was sent out (accompanying each invitation) a card purporting to give the names of a committee, which was presumably responsible for the undertaking. On the card my name appeared as Chairman of the committee. Will you do me the favor of saying that such use of my name was wholly unauthorized; indeed, it was used without my knowledge or consent. I knew nothing of the ball, and about as little of the Albany Burgess Corps. Several years ago they elected me an honorary life member and sent me an illuminated certificate, which I suppose I acknowledged with thanks. Beyond that I have had no relation with the body. I know but one member of it; have never even seen it either on parade or in any other way. I did not even notice that the ball was to take place on Friday evening, and, of course, did not attend it.

Galvin in Line for Mayor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

John F. Galvin, Tammany's candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, is an old-time resident of the gashouse district and an old friend of Charles F. Murphy. In the event of his election he will be in line for the Mayoralty, if Judge Gaynor should be elevated to higher office. Hence his nomination. Mr. Murphy wishes a tried and true friend in that important office.

HADLEY TO STUDENTS DON'T FOLLOW CROWD

DISGRACE DUE TO DRIFTING

College Undertakes to Train for Duties of Free Citizen by Developing Habits of Mental Responsibility, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. Oct. 3.—President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale to-day addressed the freshmen on the occasion of their first appearance in the cllege chapel since their advent at the University. Dr. Hadley urged upon the new collegians the duty of learning to think of the consequences of actions and of guiding their conduct with a view to such consequences. He pointed out the evil which came from "taking one's ease and going with the crowd" in colleges in after life, and warned the young men that such drifting "fixed upon them the habit of mental irresponsibility," adding that "disgrace is ten times oftener the result of carelessness than of intentional badness."

President Hadley said in part:

"There are two sides to a man's religious life: an emotional side and an intellectual side. His heart and his mind must act together. He must intend to follow the right as he sees it; he must also take the trouble to see it as it is.

"It is not enough to intend to do right. It is not enough to do right when we happen to see it. We must arrange to see things as they are; we must think out the consequences of our doing to ourselves and to others.

"I am particularly glad to say this at the opening of the college year, because no small part of the work of a good college is to teach its students to use their brains about matters of morality and religion.

"The American college undertakes to train its students for the duties of a free citizen. As long as a boy remains in school he is protected by school supervision. His hours of work are fixed, his tasks are set from day to day. He learns to subject himself to discipline; to act and think and feel in the way that the community requires. In after life, on the other hand, the boy has no such guidance. If he wants to disobey the rules of conduct set by the community, no one will stop him until he has gone far on the road to ruin. If he wants to question the traditional principles of conduct or alter the rules of public opinion, he is given a free hand to do this—with the chance of immeasurable good to himself and others if he does it in the right way, immeasurable harm to himself and others if he does it in the wrong way. To train its members for the exercise of this freedom of action and opinion is the highest and noblest function of a college.

"In school we are kept up to the performance of certain moral duties and restrained from the commission of various acts of folly or disorder. In coming to college we come to a place where no one will restrain us except by wholesome advice, or keep us up to our duty except by the influence of companionship and example. We have a chance for acts of folly which we shall afterward regret. We have a chance for the thoughtless commission of acts of disorder and for the infraction of the rules of morality. There is only one way to prevent these things, and that is to think.

"It is easy to enter into the life of the college so fully that we follow the crowd in whatever it does. The probabilities are that we shall not be called to account the first time, nor the second. The probabilities are that the crowd will not do anything very bad the first time nor the second. But the harm shows sooner or later; and on the whole the boy is more fortunate who is called to account promptly and brought face to face with the real character of what he is doing than the one who escapes so long that he fixes upon himself the habit of mental irresponsibility. The practice of taking one's ease and going with the crowd may or may not bring its penalty to-day. It must bring its penalty sooner or later.

"These temptations which now meet us are essentially the same in kind as those which will met us in our several lines of business and professional work. If we take life easily and shift upon the crowd the responsibility which each man ought to assume for himself, we are preparing to succumb to life's trials. Professional disgrace is ten times oftener the result of carelessness than of intentional badness. Nobody ever intended to go to jail; nobody ever intended to lose his position in society by forfeiting the respect of his fellow-men. The criminal and the outcast became criminal and outcast by following the lines of least resistance; by not thinking of consequences; by not really knowing what they did. And, conversely, if we face the consequences of our acts as they stand and refuse to delude ourselves by false measurements and false excuses, we are preparing to overcome life's trials, here and hereafter, and put others in the way of overcoming them. The leader of men becomes a leader of men by not following the crowd on lines of least resistance; by thinking where he goes and making a path for others to follow.

"The public opinion of a college or a country is the aggregate of moral judgments of the individuals who constitute it. Every time that you face a moral issue squarely you help to create public opinion. The college is governed by the men who take the trouble to think. As I look back on my own college days I am astonished to find how overwhelmingly true this was. Every man who thought for himself, whether on the right side or on the wrong side, was exercising a power over the lives of scores of others. It was because the majority of the men who did think were thinking on the right side that the influence of the college was a good one.

"What was true then has remained true to the present day. When you come back to class reunions twenty or thirty or forty years from now you will find that some things look smaller than they do to-day, and that some things look larger. The question who won a victory will have sunk into significance. The question whether a man stood for honorable or dishonorable ways of winning a victory will be the thing that counts. The question who gained the prize in letters or scholarship will cease to have importance. The question whether a man stood for high ideals in literature and scholarship will be the one that remains in men's minds. The various achievements and successes of a man's college course have their chief importance as means of enabling him to mold and influence public opinion. And the man who is able to mold and influence it without tangible successes perhaps gets the largest place of all in the grateful recognition of his fellows."

SIAMESE MINISTER BACK.

Phya Akharaj Brings Two Youthful Countrymen to Enter Harvard.

His Excellency Phya Akharaj, Siamese Minister to the United States, returned to this country yesterday after an absence of nearly two years. With Nai Chote, Attaché of Ministry, he was a passenger on the North German Lloyd liner George Washington, in from Bremen. The Minister said smilingly that he had been taking a two years' rest.

"There is not much to say. My country is making rapid advancement and things are well with us," he said.

The Minister brings with him Nai Aab and Nai Tee, two young Siamese men belonging to the Royal Survey Department at Bangkok, who are to take a special course at Harvard. The party was met down the bay by Eliot Tuckerman of the Harvard Club and Wheeler Sammons of the class of 1911, who were delegated to escort the two new students to Harvard.

HAMMERSTEIN OPERA OPENING ADVANCED

THE DATE NOW NOVEMBER 8

Massenet's "Herodiade," Never Before Heard Here, to be First Production—Philadelphia Opening Same Week.

Oscar Hammerstein sprang a surprise yesterday when he formally announced that his regular Winter season of opera would begin on Monday evening, Nov. 8. It had been announced previously that the Manhattan Opera House would open on Nov. 15, the same night which the Metropolitan had chosen for its opening performance. The new arrangement will give the Manhattan one week's start on its rival. Mr. Hammerstein says that he has made the change because he has had many requests from his subscribers to begin his season earlier, and also because the week of Nov. 8 is Horse Show week and many out-of-town people who will wish to hear the opera will be here.

The opera with which the season will open is Massenet's "Herodiade," which has never before been given in New York and for which Mr. Hammerstein has obtained the exclusive American rights. This is the complete cast which was announced for the first time yesterday:

Herod	Maurice Renaud
Herodias	Mlle. Gerville-Reache
Salome	Lina Cavalieri
Jean	Charles Dalmores
Phanuel	M. Huberdeau
Vittelino	Armand Crabbe
High Priest	M. Nicolay
Slave	Mme. Duchene
A voice	M. Leroux

The musical director will be Henriquez de la Fuente, from the Royal Opera in Antwerp. The répertoire for the rest of the week will be announced later.

Mr. Hammerstein will begin his Philadelphia season also the same week, opening on Tuesday evening, Nov. 9, with "Aïda," in which one of his new singers, Mme. Mazarin, will make her début. Mr. Zerola, Mme. d'Alvarez, Mr. Polese, and Mr. Scott will also be in the cast. Mr. Sturani will conduct.

On Thursday evening "Herodiade" will be sung with the New York cast. On Thursday afternoon Miss Sylva will appear in "Carmen," with Mr. Carasa as Don José. Mme. Tetrazzini will make her first appearance of the season in Philadelphia at the Saturday matinée in "Lucia." "Le Prophète" will be sung on Saturday evening, with Mr. Carasa and Mme. d'Alvarez. The Metropolitan Opera Company will open its first Philadelphia performance on Nov. 9 at the Academy of Music with "Aïda."

The season of lighter operas which Mr. Hammerstein has promised for two nights a week will begin the second week. The preliminary season of opera at the Manhattan will continue until Nov. 8.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—It is evident from announcements made to-night by Oscar Hammerstein that he means to make a strong fight this season as a competitor of the Metropolitan Opera Company's season at the Academy of Music. He has changed his opening date here from Nov. 16 to Nov. 9, the night on which the Academy season will open. Furthermore, Mr. Hammerstein will produce "Aïda," the very opera which will be the initial production at the other house.

These announcements have been received with great interest by opera lovers in this city, for it had not been realized before that the rivalry between Mr. Hammerstein and the Metropolitan forces was of a nature anything but friendly. It is pointed out, however, that personal feeling was aroused last Spring after Mr. Hammerstein lent his tenor, Zenatello, to the Metropolitan Company for a performance of "Aïda" in Chicago, Mr. Caruso having been taken ill. Afterward, when Mr. Hammerstein sought to make arrangements for opera at the Chicago Auditorium, he was shut out in favor of the Metropolitan.

DRAGGED OUT HAMMERSTEIN.

Soprano Made Her Impresario Respond to Applause for His Waltz.

It is seldom that a Sunday night audience catches sight of Oscar Hammerstein, but last evening, after she had sung his waltz "Mia Cara" at the Manhattan Opera House, Mlle. Miranda dragged the impresario before the footlights in answer to the applause. He came out twice with the smiling prima donna, and finally she sang half of the waltz over again.

The other soloists were Mmes. Baron, Grippon, and d'Alvarez, and Messrs. Scott, Villa, Duffault, Beck, and Lucas. Messrs. Sturani and Beck conducted. An air and a duet from "Herodiade" were features of the evening.

LOIE FULLER'S BALLET.

Each girl, on coming under the guidance of Miss Fuller, gets a fanciful name, and no girl is allowed to divulge her identity.

DRAMATIC GUILD MEETS.

New Organization Aims to Advance Stagecraft Among the Arts.

The first general meeting of the American Dramatic Guild was held at Berkeley Theatre Hall yesterday afternoon. Frank Lea Short, originator of the idea and President of the Guild, delivered a short address on what he considered the true rank of dramatic art and the importance and influence of mediaeval guilds.

The object of this new organization, according to Mr. Short, is to put dramatic art on the same plane with painting and music; to take actors out of the category of "rogues and vagabonds," and to induce men of high culture to enter the theatrical business. It is just as honorable, he said, to direct the presentation of good plays as it is to act as manager of the canned meat department of a packing house.

The guild intends to select new plays for production, and to give them the best casts and best scenic investiture within its power. Mr. Short said he had already read about 650 plays, most of them bad, and had selected one. Regular managers, he said, had expressed their approval of the idea of the guild, and would watch its productions with interest.

There were about fifty people present at the meeting. None of them was well known on the stage.

Isidora Duncan Returns.

Miss Isidora Duncan, the dancer, arrived yesterday from abroad on the steamship George Washington. FARRAR-SCOTTI WEDDING?

Presence of Both Singers in Philadelphia Causes Talk of It.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—The arrival at the St. James Hotel to-night of Antonio Scotti of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and the fact that Geraldine Farrar of the same organization is still at the Bellevue-Stratford, to which hotel she came several days ago, gave rise to the rumor that she and Scotti were in the city to be married.

That Miss Farrar and Scotti are engaged has been reported on several occasions, and it was supposed that the marriage would take place during the Summer while the two were abroad. When Miss Farrar arrived in New York last week, however, she laughingly denied that any marriage had occurred and added that she was not thinking of marrying any one just at present.

The fact that Miss Farrar's father, Sid Farrar, the well-known ball player, also came to town, was regarded as lending additional probability to to-night's rumor. But neither Miss Farrar nor Scotti could be seen and attachés at their hotels said they had heard nothing of arrangements for a wedding.

It is given out that both singers are here for the purpose of having records of their voices taken for use in voice reproducing machines.

N., retired; Consul Count Oldrosandi, Acting Consul General Signor di Rosa, the Grecian Minister to the United States; Gen. and Miss Woodford, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low, Commander Luzelli di Serrano, Capt. LOSES CARNEGIE PENSIONS.

Randolph Macon's Woman's College at Lynchburg, Va., Dropped as Sectarian.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 3.—The Carnegie Foundation Board has notified the Trustees of Randolph Macon College that the Woman's College of Lynchburg has been dropped from the list of those entitled to the benefit of the foundation's pension fund. This step was taken as a result of the action of the Trustees of Randolph Macon, a sectarian institution, having in June last decided that the Lynchburg school was under their control.

The decision of the Carnegie board ends a long controversy dating back two years, which at one time threatened to disrupt the relations between the Randolph Macon Colleges and the Methodist Church South, from which, together with the State, they get their support.

Two professors in the Woman's College are now receiving the benefit of the foundation, having reached the age limit for retirement, and it was expected that others would be taken care of as they reached the required age.

The young men could not swim, and although the accident occurred close to the bank of the lake, they were unable to get a footing and Miss Bailey was powerless to assist them. Joseph Manahan was employed as a carriage body maker and his brother was a student in the Amesbury high school.

TRAMP KILLS IN REVENGE.

Shoots Man Who Tried to Throw Him from Moving Train.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Patrick McCabe, 25 years old, of Pittsburg, Penn., was shot and killed here to-day by Frank Mee, 60 years old. According to the police, the murder grew out of an alleged attempt by McCabe and an unidentified companion to kill Mee by throwing him from a moving freight train near Peoria, Ill., Thursday night, after robbing him of 25 cents.

Mee, whose hands and face are badly lacerated, told the police that he followed McCabe here to revenge himself. Mee said that he found McCabe here Saturday, and, after getting a revolver, he shot and killed him to-day.

"I suppose I will swing for it," said Mee, "but he tried to kill me and I wanted to get even with him."

McCabe died without making a statement to the police.

Kept on the Jump All Day Passing the Baggage of Arriving Travelers—Prominent Persons Among the Passengers.

The arrival of cabin passengers at this port yesterday broke all records, according to the customs officials. In the day six big transatlantic steamships came to their piers, and the estimated number of passengers landed from the first and second cabins alone was 4,600 persons. The highest previous record was 3,400. Five of the vessels came up the bay within a very few minutes of each other, and the customs officials had hard work to get the piers clear of baggage. DIVISION OF CALIFORNIA.

Southern Part Will Try to Become a Separate State.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—There is no cessation in the agitation for division of California into two separate States. It is said that the lower counties are to call a convention, to meet at Los Angeles at an early date, to push the matter to an issue.

This measure has long been advocated by the southern counties, which have never been satisfied with many details of State government. But no definite action has ever been taken in the matter until now. The southern half is clamoring for the separation as loudly as the northern part is opposing it. The chief complaint from the south is that it is grossly overtaxed for the benefit of the other half.

The San Francisco idea seems to be that Los Angeles is fast outgrowing her former secondary place in California and wants to become the capital of the new State, which would include Arizona. Los Angeles points with constant pride, and very justly, to her progressive municipal enterprise, civic spirit, and unity.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

With the advent of 4½ per cent. call money last week's rate securities markets enter a new phase. No reasonable conclusions regarding the outlook can be arrived at unless cognizance is taken of the two contrasting sets of influences to which every stock market movement is subject. The most conspicuous of these is comprised in the speculative operations which are always under way in securities. There can be no question now of the part played in the market for many months past by men of great wealth who, foreseeing the return of prosperity and aided by the extreme cheapness of money, secured large holdings of miscellaneous stocks. Following in their footsteps came groups of speculators without real convictions as to the future, but content to accept the views of their adopted leaders so long as they, too, could borrow money upon favorable terms. Contrasted with these two classes of purchasers of securities, who may justly be termed speculators, whether for a longer or shorter period of time, was the real investor who, agreeing with the speculator as regards the prospect for a return of good times made his purchases without consideration of the money market, since he used his own capital exclusively. Because investment buying is conducted without the noise which accompanies speculative movements on the Stock Exchange, it is often minimized, but it is only necessary to recall the amazing additions to lists of stockholders in railroads and industrials of all kinds to understand how fundamentally essential is the part the investor plays, in advancing markets. To him 4 per cent. money means little or nothing, for he buys his stocks or bonds, as the case may be, without reference to the margin of their yield in dividends or interest over the rate which his less fortunate speculative brother was compelled to pay for the money with which to make purchases. The investor's main care is for the future of the concerns in whose fortunes he has a stake. Four per cent., however, means much to those whose holdings were secured by the aid of borrowed money. If at the prices which the more powerful speculators paid for their shares dividends still exceed prevailing quotations for money and the outlook for further enlargement in business remains good, then the securities involved may be held profitably for a while. It is obvious, however, that the margin narrows with each advance in money and that a rate of 5 per cent., certainly of 6 per cent., may make advisable the throwing over of great blocks of stocks. What is true with the larger speculator is even more true with the smaller, for the stocks held by him were purchased in most cases at higher prices and are held by means of day-to-day money for the most part, so that where a call money rate of 2 per cent. justifies the retention of the securities concerned, one of 4 per cent. or above might call for a contrary policy. And there, in brief, is the present stock market position outlined. The speculative element must adjust its policy by the money barometer, the reading of which is at no time an easy matter.

Whatever may be the effects upon the market of any forced closing out of speculative holdings of securities consequent upon unexpected stringency in the Fall money markets, it would seem that they must at most be more or less temporary in character. For the investor can hardly be persuaded to liquidate his holdings, and thus add to the market's load, while the outlook for further growth in business remains so clear as it now is. Nothing could be sounder than the reasoning upon which a prediction of continued expansion may be based. For illustration the steel and iron business may be taken. In the three years which ended with 1907 the average yearly orders for steel rails by the country's railroads were 3,661,000 tons. In 1908 the total rail output of all mills was 1,921,000 tons, and for this year production will hardly exceed 2,500,000 tons. Thus in 1908 there was a deficiency of 1,740,000 tons, and in the current year there will be a gap between the average and the actual orders of 1,160,000 tons. There is here, then, a total of 2,900,000 tons of rails which the railroads of the country must order before they have filled their normal requirements for the two years in which they economized. This is only a little less than an average year's production of rails, and if we add to it the current normal requirements for the year 1910 it is very plain that the output of rails alone in that year should be in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 tons. If the shortage created by the hand to mouth policy of corporations and mercantile concerns of all kinds for the past two years could be estimated in the same definite fashion it would be possible to foretell the volume of trade in the United States in 1910. Efforts to make good these deficiencies and to care for current requirements are already resulting in such earnings as the steel and iron trades have never known before, and this is also becoming true of many other lines of enterprise. It is reflected in such sensational earnings statements as those made last week by the Pennsylvania Railroad, with its increase of $1,900,000 in August gross receipts, as well as by the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and the Atchison, with respective gains in the same month of $973,000, $1,479,000, and $1,460,000. In some cases these returns are the greatest ever recorded in any August month for these roads, and in others they are very nearly up to the high tide figures of August, 1907. It is useless to labor the point, for a clear understanding of such figures as those here set forth leads inevitably to the conclusion that past trade records will be dwarfed by those to come.

Last week's rise in money rates, while referable in a general way to the smaller reserves of the banks, was immediately due, nevertheless, to the coincidence of the financing of $160,000,000 of October dividend and interest disbursements and an unexpectedly heavy call for money from Canada and the interior. Postponement of an issue of Treasury certificates by the Government and the brighter prospects for the English money market, owing to the probable adoption of the budget, encouraged the belief previously held in banking quarters that nothing like real stringency was to be witnessed in money markets here during the rest of the year. It remains to be seen how far this prospect will be compromised by the unusually small cotton crop promised, the Government's figures on which appear to-day, but it is already apparent that this must have some effect. Our exports in other respects have fallen so far under imports as to create adverse balances for several months in succession. The efforts of foreign manufacturers to import as much as possible before the new tariffs go into effect, together with the lessened exports of our products of the soil, owing to their high prices, indicate the prolongation of this unfavorable foreign trade situation.

THE MARKETS OF EUROPE.

CONSERVATISM IN BERLIN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—The week on the Boerse was characterized by considerably more conservatism on the part of the purchasing public than for some time past. There was a marked falling off in speculative buying operations, although there was no sign of a sharp reaction.

The vehement upward movement in New York, especially the spectacular rise in steels, revived the spirits of the market toward the end of the week, which closed with lively activity. German steels and irons declined owing to domestic trade conditions. American rails were firm, with advancing prices.

The North German Lloyds interim showing of heavily increased profits for the first half of the year 1909 resulted in better prices for the shipping issues.

IMPROVEMENT IN LONDON.

Even British Rails Are Expected to Follow Other Stocks.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Business on the Stock Exchange has shown improvement, and the opinion prevails that even British railways, which have been practically a dead letter for some time past, will shortly answer to the lead given by other markets. There has been a fair amount of local buying of Americans, particularly for Continental account.

Although the Bank of England return shows a greater decrease in reserve than had been expected, there are no predictions of either scarce or dear money here unless there should spring up a strong American demand, which, in the words of The Statist, would be due only to the prosperity and not to the discredit of the United States.

SECURITIES ADVANCE IN PARIS.

Liquidation for September Accomplished Without Financial Stress.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The liquidation at the end of September was marked by no unusual financial tension. The general discount rate was lower than that of the bank, which during the week lost $20,000,000 gold, exported chiefly to Russia.

A slight timidity the first part of the week caused realizations which helped to assure the favorable outcome.

Moderate advances followed the liquidation Saturday. With very few exception securities were firm, with slowly increasing activity. Rio Tintos closed 25 points higher, at 1973.

MUST BUILD MORE STEEL PLANTS SOON

BUILDING AND ENLARGING

Both the United States Steel Corporation and Independents Are Going Ahead with Work.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 2.—September's test has demonstrated to the big steel-making companies that present facilities will not be sufficient to "carry the load" that is looked for in 1910 in the iron and steel trade. In consequence, hasty preparations are being made by the Steel Corporation and independent steel interests in the Pittsburg district for extensive enlargement of capacity before Spring.

Plans of construction work now under way in Steel Corporation mills are being altered so as to allow for the installation of additional capacity. Sites are being acquired by the Republic Iron and Steel Company, the Sharon Steel Hoop Company, the Standard Steel Car Company, and other independent interests for the immediate beginning of construction work that had not been on the programme for another year or eighteen months. With the steel mills already two or four months behind in deliveries during what is considered a mere "preliminary rush" to what is expected next year, the steel interests feel that the present output will be woefully insufficint to supply the market during 1910.

The Carnegie Steel Company, which a month ago announced the improvements at the Homestead plant completed for the present, will break ground this week for four additional open-hearth plants there. At the Ohio works of the Carnegie Company at Youngstown the open-hearth capacity is to be increased one-third at once. This improvement was not due, according to the corporation's programme as adopted last Spring, for another year.

The Republic Iron and Steel Company acquired a site last week at Youngstown for two additional blast furnaces and six open hearths, on which work is to begin immediately. The Sharon Steel Hoop Company also has announced plans for more blast furnace capacity, which will add a third to its output. All these improvements are in addition to the ones planned during the Summer, or now under way.

The most extensive enlargements probably will be in the plants of the Standard Steel Car Company, which has decided to go into the steel passenger car business, making a specialty of all-steel trolley cars. Sites for plants have been acquired within the past fortnight at Elmwood City and Newcastle, and the plans, to be announced shortly, will call for an expenditure of $3,000,000 in new construction and equipment.

The American Bridge Company is planning to build a central fabricating plant at Gary, which will take the place of the present plants at Detroit, Milwaukee, and Chicago. Seven years ago the American Bridge Company centralized all its plants in the Pittsburg district at the new town of Ambridge, on the Ohio River, where [illegible] costs were successfully reduced. The Eastern business of the company already is well centralized.

Nearly all of the Steel Corporation's 100,000-ton apportionment on the Pennsylvania Railroad's order of 350,000 tons order will come to the Carnegie mills at Pittsburg, the Chicago and Gary mills already having 500,000 tons on their books, and the Southern mills of the Tennessee Coal & Iron being comfortably occupied in getting out some 100.000 tons for export, part of which tonnage, it is said, was taken at a very low price in the face of strong competition. The Gary rail mills surprised the Steel Corporation authorities by rolling over 40,000 tons during the month of September.

As an outcome of the eight weeks' steady advance in pig iron the Steel Corporation announced price advances during the week in three finished product lines. Sheet steel, black, and galvanized, advanced $2 a ton, and tin plate was taken up $2, to the level established by the independent manufacturers a month ago. Galvanized wire advanced one point, or $2.85 a ton, and the National Tube Company on Friday sent out an announcement of $2 a ton increase in steel pipe and locomotive boiler tubes. These advances had been anticipated by the trade, and heavy buying was reported in the week prior to their announcement.

Pig iron more than held its own during the week. Of Bessemer, 15,000 tons were sold for this year's delivery at $18, valleys, and, after independent steel companies had covered 35,000 tons for next year's delivery at the same price, the valley furnace interests withdrew from the market at that figure and asked $18.50 for first quarter shipments.

Foundry No. 2 advanced to $16.75 and $17 for this year's delivery, several contracts being taken at that price of large tonnages running from November through the first half of 1910. Considerable basic iron could be had early in the week at $16.50, valleys, but the price stiffened by Saturday, running as high as $17 and $17.25 for first quarter. The available supply of basic and Bessemer for immediate delivery is very low.

Furnace interests are having trouble with their coke contracts for next year. Prompt furnace coke could not be bought last week under $2.65, and the ruling price was $2.75, Connellsville.

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Operations are to begin this week by the Calaveras Copper Company, recently organized in Delaware to take over the Union mines at Copperopolis, Cal., owned by the Ames Estate. The property is fully equipped for mining, and has about 10,000,000 tons of ore. The Consulting Engineer's estimate is that the production at present will be 22,000 pounds of copper daily, at a cost of less than eight cents delivered in New York City.

The oxide ore recently discovered in the Oliver shaft of Calumet and Arizona is one of the richest ever encountered in the district. Its extent is not yet ascertained.

A wing below the deepest opening in the Shannon mine has cut a high-grade ore body of sulphide averaging in some parts 15 per cent. and in others 35 per cent. copper. It is thought that this is a second enrichment zone.

The consolidation plan of Nevada-Utah and Ohio-Kentucky is arranged, and the first step of the new company—the Consolidated Pioche Mines Company—will be to erect a mill.

General Manager Wright says that the Miami deposit, so far as developed, is not less than 13,000,000 tons of ore. Production will not begin until the completion of the concentrator, about a year hence.

Assays of 17 per cent. copper have been taken from the north vein of the Ophir Mine, owned by the Butte Central.

Encouraging reports are made concerning the crosscuts which Adventure is running eastward from the Evergreen-Knowlton workings.

It is estimated that Isle Royale's production of refined copper last month will foot up about 100 tons in excess of the average of the more recent months. About 200,000 pounds of mass copper was taken out during the month.

LIBERIA NEEDS CAPITAL.

American Consul General Says the Little Republic Progresses, However.

On the Hamburg-American liner Graf Waldersee, which arrived yesterday from Hamburg, was Dr. Ernest Lyon, American Minister and resident Consul General at Monrovia, Liberia. He will be here two months, most of which time will be spent at his home at Baltimore.

"What Liberia needs," he said, "is American capital. Her debt is now about $1,000,000. It is a wonder that the little republic has succeeded as well as she has, for she must keep up with Sierra Leone, the British colony on the northwest, and Dakar, the German colony on the southeast. Her improvement is steady and the prospects for its continuation are good."

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Importers Are Held Liable for 20 Per Cent. Duty on Imitation Gems.

The Board of United States General Appraisers, in a decision promulgated yesterday, upholds the landing duty of 20 per cent. imposed on imitation precious stones, composed in chief value of paste. It was the contention of the Barber Jewelry Company that it could not be held liable for the higher duty, and that, as a matter of fact, the Government is entitled to a duty of only 10 per cent.

The importer's allegation was that the stones in question are not cut or set, and that as a consequence they should be allowed to enter as "precious stones not advanced in condition," with a tax of only 10 per cent. General Appraiser Sharretts, who writes the decision for the board, finds that the Government officers are correct in assessing the gems at the higher rate, and as a consequence the importer's contention for the lower rate is overruled.

Two decisions were handed down affecting claims made by Albert Lorsch & Co. The board grants a rate of 10 per cent. on certain precious stones, including agate and onyx stones intended for settings for jewelry. Other imitation precious stones are held to be properly assessed at the rate of 20 per cent.

Lorsch & Co. filed also another protest, which was overruled, dealing with a claim for a reduction in duty on strung imitation pearl beads. The board reversed Collector Loeb's classification of coral, onyx, cut cameo, and other articles intended for use as jewelry.

The Weekly Financial Review.

THE NEW YORK TIMES WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW for to-day tells comprehensively of the situation in the steel trade. An article is devoted to the discussion of talked-of dividend increases among the railroad companies. The decision by the authorities at Washington to make a charge on telegraphic transfers of gold from New York to San Francisco, in order to discourage Japan's inroads on our stores of bar gold, is the subject of another articles. "The Mathematics of Steady Savings" is a study of the growth of small savings under actual banking rules. The latest earnings of the railroads are given in THE REVIEW'S new earnings tables.

TERRITORY

The territory served comprises the communities of Hammond, West Hammond, Robertsdale, Whiting, East Chicago, Indiana Harbor, Gibson, Porter, Chesterton and Michigan City, with a combined population of about 100,000. It embraces the entire manufacturing district on the south shore of Lake Michigan, from the Illinois-Indiana State line on the west to Michigan City on the east, extending on both sides of the new city of GARY, a district destined to be the greatest manufacturing center of the United States.

Harbors at Indiana Harbor and Michigan City provide access to lake transportation, and fifteen main line railways traversing this territory, with seven belt line roads, provide rail transportation unequaled by any other section of the country.

Factories and industries already located in the territory are of sufficient size to furnish employment to over 35,000 men. This alone assures a great increase in the population, but other factories are in course of construction in these towns served by this Company, and the tremendous development taking place at GARY makes the prediction that the population served by this Company will at least double within the next five years a conservative one.

EARNINGS

Net Earnings	$227,369.87
Interest on Underlying Bonds	87,825.00
Surplus Earnings	$139,544.87
Interest on Present Issue of New Bonds	90,450.00
Surplus	$49,094.87

The earnings for these twelve months show an increase of 47.5 per cent. over the earnings for the twelve months ending August 31, 1908. This in spite of the fact that the Company is only now beginning to feel the benefit of the revival of business in the territory, and the increasing sales of gas and electricity brought about by present operating methods.

With the rapid increase in population and the business of the Company now taking place, it is not unreasonable to believe that this percentage of increase can at least be maintained for the next year. This would show for the twelve months ending August 31, 1910, an estimated surplus of approximately $118,000, or over 3% on the common stock, after paying all interest charges and full preferred dividends.

BUDGET HEARING TO-DAY.

Board of Estimate to Consider the Most Important Increases Asked.

In an attempt to awaken the interest of the public in the hearings which will be held by the Board of Estimate on the 1910 budget, commencing to-day, the Bureau of Municipal Research has issued another statement on the subject.

These sessions are held preliminary to the making up of the final budget by the board. The requests of the various city departments approximate $184,000,000. This year's budget was $156,000,000. It is hoped that the expenditures for next year may be kept down to $163,000,000.

According to the Bureau, among the most important increases requested which are to be considered to-day are the following:

Department	Increase Requested.
Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity	$1,127,000
Public Charities	1,246,000
Brooklyn and Queens Parks	289,000
Bronx Parks	433,000
Correction	104,000
Bellevue and Allied Hospitals	104,000
Bridges	224,000

"The Law Department wants only $16,000 more," continues the statement, "and the Board of Aldermen and City Clerk but $1,000 more. The most remarkable feature is that with a large budget of over $1,500,000 the Commissioner of Parks for Manhattan and Richmond wishes an increase of but $13,200."

There will be nine hearings, six for the heads of departments and three for the taxpayers. Citizens are not allowed to ask questions at the hearings for the officials except through the Mayor and the Controller, but their presence is welcome.

NO PUGET SOUND REPORTS.

St. Paul Not Compiling Monthly Statements for New Extension.

Reports current last week that the August earnings of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound, the Pacific Coast extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, would be made public in a few days overlooked the fact that the St. Paul management has not yet begun to compile monthly statements of the earnings of the Pacific Coast extension, nor are such reports being required by the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The commission's reason for not seeking such reports from the St. Paul's new line is understood to be that the commission regards this line as still in the formative stage, construction work not yet having been closed, although trains are now running the entire length of the extension.

The officers of the road know the car loadings on the line, but they do not, as a matter of fact, know what the earnings of this part of the system are, for the reason that the new road is not yet fully organized, and the usually monthly statements have not, so far, been made up. Commenting on this situation an official of the road said last week that the suggestions heard in some quarters, that the management of the St. Paul was disappointed over the earnings of the Pacific Coast extension, was manifestly absurd, for the very good reason, if for no other, that the management of the road does not yet know what the Pacific Coast extension's earnings are. If these be surmised from the day-to-day loadings on the line, he said, the showing, far from being unsatisfactory, is gratifying.

STATE TAX RECEIPTS UP.

Revenue for the Last Fiscal Year Shows Increase of $2,617,232.

ALBANY, Oct. 3.—State Controller Gaus collected in revenue in his five tax receiving bureaus during the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 the aggregate of $22,900,068, which shows a net gain over 1908 from the same sources of $2,617,232, when the gross was $20,282,836. The moneys received by the several bureaus were:

Stock transfer receipts:
1909	5,355,546
Collateral inheritance receipts:
1908	$5,523,858
1909	6,962,615
Increase	$1,438,756
Mortgage tax receipts:
1908	$1,666,527
1909	1,844,821
Increase	$178,294
Racing track receipts:
1908	$247,443
1909	65,166
Decrease	$182,277
Corporation tax receipts:
1908	$8,937,635

"The cause for the falling off in the revenue from racing associations," says Controller Gaus, "is due to the encatment of the anti-betting law, while for the smaller receipts under the corporation tax law there are two reasons. During the year credits have been allowed to the holders of State bonds upon which the rate of interest did not exceed 3 per cent., aggregating $208,098.31, which is $165,393.52 in excess of the credits allowed the preceding year. During the year 1908 in addition to the receipts regularly collected there was received from a transportation company, which was in the hands of a receiver, a tax upon gross receipts amounting to $188,463.87, which should have been paid during the year 1907.

"Deducting from the taxes of 1908 this tax which should have been paid in 1907, the normal receipts for that year would have been $8,749,171.37. Adding to the receipts of this year the allowances made in excess of those for 1908 to the bondholders and the normal receipts would have been $8,837,313.72, or the largest normal receipts ever collected from these sources in any one year."

WORK ON WESTCHESTER LINE.

Temporary Link Completed on the New Route to the East.

One stage in the construction of the New York, Westchester and Boston Railroad, the new line that is being built from the terminus of the subway and East Side elevated lines through the Bronx and Westchester county, has been finished with the completion of a temporary line of railway a mile and a half in length. This was built to facilitate the work of excavation which the road is carrying on in the Bronx.

The building of the concrete abutments for the bridge at Bronxdale Avenue is about half completed, and a gang of men is at work making a small rock cut a short distance north of this point. At 233d Street another outfit is busy putting in the concrete for the bridge at this point.

To-day and to-morrow are the first days of registration. If you do not register you cannot vote at the Nov. 2 election. A full list of places of registration in New York City will be found elsewhere in this issue of The New York Times.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The influence of the disturbance, which has been centered in the Pacific Coast region, is now felt as far east as the Middle Rockies, where light showers are reported. East of the mountains no material change in the weather has occurred, fair weather continuing in all sections, with the exception of scattered showers in the North Atlantic States.

SQUIRREL THE EXCUSE FOR MAN'S SUICIDE

Enraged Because Wife Wouldn't Cook It, Muller Shoots at Her and Kills Himself.

'TWAS DEAD ON ELEVATED

Special Policeman Found Body of Park Pet Where Trainmen Had Tossed It and Wanted It for Breakfast.

The chain of events which led directly to an attempted murder and the suicide of Edward F. Muller, a special policeman, in the Muller home at 31 Manhattan Street, had its beginning in the killing of a gray squirrel very early yesterday morning on the Sixth Avenue elevated railway. Somewhere along the elevated line south of 135th Street the squirrel's life was crushed out just after daybreak. The body was picked up by one of the guards and handed to a conductor. When the train on which this conductor was employed reached the 135th Street Station the body was thrown out.

Muller was employed at the 135th Street Station. He was just starting for home when the squirrel was thrown upon the platform. Muller pocketed the dead animal, intending to have it cooked by his wife. The special policeman lived with his wife, Mary, and a son, Henry, a lad of 17 years, in a small flat on the first floor of the Manhattan Street house.

Mrs. Muller and her son were up and stirring when the head of the family got home about 7:30 o'clock in the morning. Muller pulled the squirrel from his pocket and threw it upon the dining room table.

"Mary," he said, "I want you to cook this squirrel for my breakfast. It's been a long time since I tasted game."

Mrs. Muller protested. She told her husband that the animal had not been dead long enough to be eaten, and that anyhow she had made other arrangements for the morning meal. She concluded by saying that Park squirrels were not fit to eat at any time. There followed some harsh words between the man and wife.

Henry, the son, said nothing, for he knew from long experience that it was unwise to interfere when his mother and father quarreled. His father often grew violent at such times. Muller took off his uniform and got out a bottle of whisky. He had been getting out that bottle far too often of late, so says his wife.

While Muller sat and drank deeply from the bottle, his wife busied herself with the breakfast. And when it was ready she called her husband. Muller put away his bottle in the bedroom closet and entered the dining room. The odor of bacon and eggs and steaming coffee greeted him.

"Where is that squirrel?" he exclaimed, glancing over the table.

Mrs. Muller explained again that the squirrel would have to wait. What followed has been told many times by the special policeman's wife, for all yesterday she was interviewed at intervals by reporters and detectives from the West 125th Street Police Station. Muller swore at his wife, she declares, then rushed back to the bedroom. A moment later he again entered the dining room, brandishing a revolver.

"I'll do you up for this," he exclaimed. Walking close to his wife, he aimed hastily and fired. The flash from the weapon burned the top of Mrs. Muller's right shoulder and the bullet buried itself in the wall behind her. Henry, the son, who had just sat down at the table, overturned his chair and ran for the door leading into the hall. His mother followed and slammed the door shut. Then both ran into the street.

Just as they paused in their flight another shot was heard. It came from the dining room they had left. Mrs. Muller and her son wondered what it could mean. Neither supposed for a moment that the special policeman would kill himself. Henry ran to the police station, only a block away, while his mother stood there on the sidewalk. Neighbors crowded around and plied her with questions. Her dress at the shoulder was burning, and this the neighbors beat out quickly. They also tore the charred clothes away to see if the bullet had entered the flesh. It had not.

Soon Henry returned from the station, accompanied by Policeman Thomas Blake. They went on into the Muller flat, followed by Mrs. Muller. On the floor of the dining room lay Muller, dead. A bullet hole was in his right temple and his face was stained with blood and powder marks. His .38 calibre revolver lay near his outstretched hand.

On the kitchen table in the next room lay the little squirrel—innocent cause of it all. It was thrown out with the garbage later in the day, after Muller's body had been taken away to the Morgue.

Muller had threatened his wife many times before, she said yesterday after the tragedy. But she had never supposed that he would try to kill her. The son, Henry, thought differently, however, and had warned his mother.

"He was a good man in his work," said Mrs. Muller, between sobs, a few hours after they had taken the body of her husband away. "But he would not leave the drink alone of late. I begged him often to let it alone, but he would not keep away from the bottle. He never drank away from home, but always he kept his bottle here. He was a hot-tempered man, and I was afraid to throw the bottle away. He worked so hard all week handling the crowd on the elevated station that I guess he was keyed up pretty high.

"I noticed a wild look in his eyes this morning when he came in with the squirrel. I had seen that same wild look before in the last few weeks, but never so much as this morning. Often before, when we had quarreled, he said to me in a fit of rage, 'Mary, I will do you up some time,' but I always thought it was the liquor in him or else his hot-headed anger that made him say it. I didn't believe him. But my son kept telling me to look out, that he would sure enough try to do me up some time when I was least expecting it."

Mrs. Muller waved the ambulance surgeon away when he got to the house.

"There is nothing you can do here," she said. "My husband is dead long ago, and I am not hurt with the kind of wound you can heal."

FLEET SAILOR IN JAIL.

Charged with Attempted Burglary—Magistrate Believes His Denial.

Charles McClellan Davis, who said he was a sailor on the United States armored cruiser Montana, was sent to jail in default of $500 bail by Magistrate Cornell in the West Side Court yesterday on the charge that he had entered the home of Jacob Fowler at 519 West Thirtieth Street with intent to commit a burglary.

Davis said he had gone to a house in the rear of the Fowler home and that while there an attempt had been made to rob him and three sailors from the French flagship Justice, and that in making his escape he had to go through the rear yard of the Fowler place. He said he was intoxicated and remembered nothing about what had happened.

Magistrate Cornell was impressed with Davis's story and wanted to release him, but Fowler would not withdraw the charge. Magistrate Cornell told the sailor he believed his story and said he would do all in his power to assist him.

The Montana sails for Norfolk, Va., this morning.

REGRET PARKER'S LEAVING.

Brooklyn Pastor's Congregation Sorry to See Him Go.

At the close of the morning service at St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, in State Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, the curate, the Rev. Henry Blacklock, asked Vestryman John H. Carr to rise and read the letter of resignation of the Rev. Dr. Lindsay Parker, who has been pastor of the church for more than twenty-three years, and who has been forced to resign through ill health.

Although many members of the congregation had already read the letter earlier in the morning in THE TIMES, in which it was printed exclusively, the announcement was received with many manifestations of regret. The resignation was reluctantly accepted at a special vestry meeting last Wednesday. Another vestry meeting for further action has been called for next Friday night.

Curate Blacklock said last night that under Dr. Parker's pastorate the congregation has increased from 250 to 14,000. Once deeply in debt, the church now owns property valued at $350,000.

SAILORS IN THE PULPIT.

Men from the British and American Fleets Speak in Faith Church.

Sailors from the British and American fleets, now at anchor in the North River, spoke at last evening's service in Faith Presbyterian Church, 359 West Forty-eighth Street. All the British vessels and the Vermont and the Nebraska of the American ships were represented.

The platform had been decorated with the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes. On the platform with the minister, the Rev. Robert R. White, were seated Miss Annetta P. Jones, President of the World's Floating Christian Endeavor Union; Fred Bury, a signal man from the Inflexible, and E. R. Saunders, a fireman on the Vermont. The sailors had front seats. Among them was a Sergeant Major of marines from the Inflexible in a dazzling scarlet tunic bedizened with gold lace.

Fred Bury, who is Secretary of the Floating Endeavor, English Christian Union, said he would like to "remain in New York three months longer because of the hearty welcome we have received here."

Fireman Saunders and Miss Jones also spoke.

BAD MEN IN MEDICINE.

They Are Responsible for Christian Science, Dr. MacArthur Says.

In his sermon in Calvary Baptist Church last evening, the Rev. Dr. R. S. MacArthur especially addressed students in medicine, whose art, when rightly pursued, he said, gives them kinship with God as Creator, Preserver, and Redeemer.

Bad men, said Dr. MacArthur, ought not to be physicians. One reason why there had been a swinging away to certain phases of new thought had been because some physicians were gross and coarse and material. Such men were also largely responsible for Christian Science, for men and women were swinging away from these and seeking physicians of higher motives.

"Whoever denies the spiritual man," said Dr. MacArthur, "out to get out of the medical profession."

TEAR UP JERSEY WATER PIPES.

Commissioner Blocks Plan to Supply Water to Richmond.

In Jersey City yesterday President John J. Heavey of the Board of Street and Water Commissioners with 100 men went to the foot of Hatch Avenue and ripped out of the ground, parallel with the Morris and Essex Canal, 300 feet of thirty-inch water pipe that was laid to make a connection with the Bayonne City water pipe line, to supply water from the East Jersey Water Company's reservoirs at Boonton to Staten Island.

Under a decision of the United States Supreme Court no water can be supplied from one State to another. The East Jersey Company called upon the Jersey City police to stop the action of Commissioner Heavey and his men, but when Chief Monohan learned about the law he instructed about fifty policemen to protect the city's rights.

CHEROKEES ARE STARVING.

Several Thousand Lack Food as Result of Drought, Report Says.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 3.—John D. Benedict, Superintendent of Indian Schools, who returned last night from the Flint Hill district, reports that several thousand full-blood Cherokee Indians are facing starvation because of the unprecedented drought this year.

The Indians have scarcely anything to eat, and say they cannot send their children to school, because they have not money to buy them clothing.

Miss Harriman Not Engaged.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—The Herald is authorized to deny the reported engagement of Miss Mary Harriman, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman, to Robert W. Goelet.

IN NEW JERSEY.

While viewing the historical parade in New York on Saturday night Mrs. Henry Goulard of 117 Avenue A, Bayonne, was knocked from her place on a box and fell upon an iron picket fence. The sharp pointed pickets pierced her right arm, tearing open the ligaments. She is now dangerously ill at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Smith of Bayonne celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage last night. More than 175 guests were present. They have lived in Bayonne twenty-nine years.

The Woman's Political Study Club of Bayonne will hold its first meeting this afternoon. Mrs. William Bradford Du Bois, wife of a well-known writer on the single tax and other civic subjects, will read a paper on "City Government by Commission." At the next meeting, on Oct. 18, there will be a debate on "Shall Women Vote?" The affirmative side will be taken by Mrs. William Luce and Mrs. W. M. Wanters, the negative by Mrs. B. Hoagland and Mrs. J. Schlottman.

The fiftieth anniversary of Trinity Episcopal Church and the eleventh anniversary of the Sixth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Bayonne, were celebrated yesterday.

Sarah Staunton, aged 13, saw John Brodsky, a boy, riding past her home, at 625 Broadway, Bayonne, yesterday, on her bicycle, which had been stolen from the yard of her home on Friday. She chased Brodsky for two blocks, and, catching up with him, held fast to the handlebars and screamed until a policeman came along. Brodsky said he had bought the wheel from another boy for $1.50. He surrendered it to the girl and was released.

Charls W. Bell of Hackensack, who attained some prominence as receiver of the Traders' Paper Company, at Bogota, by clearing up his work with a big balance in the bank to the company's credit, has organized a paper company. He has purchased fifty acres of land at North Hackensack, and a plant to cost $150,000 is to be built at once. The land is near the Hackensack River, and includes docking privileges.

WOMAN WALTZES HER WAY TO JAIL

Elinor Beattie, Returning from England Under Arrest, Becomes Popular with the Passengers.

ACCUSED OF SILVER THEFT

Detective Also Brings Back from London as a Prisoner Adelbert T. Hoyt, Who Is Charged with Forgery.

Elinor Lorraine Beattie, accused of having stolen $1,500 worth of silverware from the Gorham Manufacturing Company, and Adelbert T. Hoyt, accused of having got $11,000 of a Harlem woman's money two years ago by forgery, were brought back to this city from London yesterday by Detective Bernard Flood of the District Attorney's office, on the White Star liner Baltic.

Flood went over to London about four months ago to bring back Miss Beattie, who had been arrested there through the Gorham Company's detectives. As he was waiting there while the woman's extradition proceedings were under way, he got word that Hoyt was wanted here for forgery. He found Hoyt and arrested him. The latter arrest occurred on Aug. 12, but Flood has been held in England all this time, he said yesterday, through the Beattie woman's vigorous fight against extradition.

When bringing back his prisoners, Detective Flood booked Hoyt under the modified name of A. d'Albert Hoyt, while Miss Beattie, whose case was so notorious that she could more easily have been identified by her fellow-passengers, was booked under an entirely different name. The result of Miss Beattie's incognito was that she became so popular with her fellow-passengers that she had several partners at the ship's dance.

Miss Beattie is a large, masculine-looking woman. She is said to have interested her fellow-passengers during the voyage by smoking cigarettes. She was met at the pier by her mother.

"Of course I don't fear anything from the courts," she said yesterday. "I am innocent of all wrongdoing, and when I heard I was wanted was more than willing to return."

When she said this Detective Flood, who was standing a few feet away, laughed heartily.

"Miss Beattie kept me in England since June by fighting extradition as hard as she could," he said.

The loss of silverware by the Gorham Company has given Miss Beattie international notoriety. A woman who said she was Mrs. Charles Stearns, wife of a former Attorney General of Rhode Island, rented a flat at 111 West 104th Street. This woman, according to the police version of the affair, was Miss Beattie. Mrs. Stearns, now Mme. Perugini, wife of the Italian Chargé d'Affaires at Peking, once was a patroness of Miss Beattie.

The bogus Mrs. Stearns ordered the Gorham Company to send to her some silverware to select from. The silverware, worth $1,500, the company says, was left with her over night. When the company's salesman called next day he found that the woman had departed, taking the silverware with her. A salesman at Gorham's happened to have drawn a caricature of the woman while she was ordering the silverware. This caricature was shown to an elevator boy in the apartment house. He identified the woman.

Detective Larkin, of the company, soon discovered that she had pawned the silver for about half its value in various Manhattan pawnshops, and had then boarded the Carmania and sailed for England. Miss Beattie was a passenger on that trip of the Carmania.

There was some rapid international cabling, and she was followed from the time she first set foot on the English pier. As none of the silver was in her possession and as there was no positive way in which to identify her, she was not arrested for several days, but she was held on a reported confession.

It was said on the pier yesterday that Miss Beattie had an interesting experience just before sailing on the Carmania last June to England. Detective Edward Mallon, of the Cunard Line, was standing on the White Star Line pier yesterday when Miss Beattie, accompanied by Hoyt and Detective Flood, walked down the gangplank.

"Why, there's the dressmaker's box woman," he exclaimed.

According to Detective Mallon, Miss Beattie, just before boarding the Carmania, went to a department store and ordered a $40 dress to be sent to her on board the ship. Just before the Carmania sailed the department store's boy appeared with the dress in a box. He gave it to Miss Beattie and asked for the $40. Miss Beattie, Detective Mallon said, told him she had already paid the money at the department store. There was quite an argument. Detective Mallon was called in to settle it. He decided in the boy's favor.

"Do you remember me?" asked the Cunard detective, stepping up to Miss Beattie yesterday, as she walked down the plank. At first she said she didn't, but subsequently said she did.

Hoyt was formerly a real estate dealer, with offices at 2,259 Broadway, this city. He was indicted for having forged the name of Mrs. Julia E. Porges of 430 West 116th Street, whose agent he was, to checks on the Chatham National Bank amounting to $11,000. Assistant District Attorney Turnbull learned last August that Hoyt was in London. Mr. Turnbull cabled to Flood in London to find Hoyt and arrest him. Flood picked up his man in the American Express Company offices at Haymarket, after being nearly run through the body, he says, with Hoyt's sword cane.

Both prisoners, pending examination yesterday, were locked up in the Tombs. Hoyt said yesterday that his arrest now for a two-year-old crime was a "shame." He said that in London he had been "earning an honest living."

Talking unofficially to newspaper men, Detective Flood said that the number of "high-class American crooks" who can be seen these days parading through the fashionable districts of London exceeds anything that Broadway has been able to display in that line, even in the town's palmiest days.

BOSS RULE HIT IN NEWARK.

Republican Three-Cornered Primary Fight Did It—Delegates Unpledged.

Complexity in Newark and Essex County political circles through the entry into the field of three candidates for the Republican County Chairmanship at the primaries last week was not entirely dissolved by the returns. The fact that many of the delegates are unpledged, combined with the fact that apparently no candidate has a safe majority of the County Committee, has given rise to the hope that boss rule in the county is at an end. While it is believed that Alfred N. Dalrymple, the present Chairman, will retain his office, Major Carl Lentz, one of his opponents, will be a member of the County Committee, and an element of opposition to the regular Republican machine.

From the latest estimates, the number of delegates pledged to each candidate is thought to be as follows: Major Lentz, from 50 to 60; Col. Austen Colgate, the "Progressive" Republican or "New Idea" candidate, from 70 to 80; and Chairman Dalrymple, in the neighborhood of 100.

There is an element of humor in the situation, in that Major Lentz, who for many years dominated the Republican machine in Essex, should through his opposition to the present leaders of the machine bring about an era of freedom from boss rule.

To-day and to-morrow are the first days of registration. If you do not register you cannot vote at the Nov. 2 election. A full list of places of registration in New York City will be found elsewhere in this issue of The New York Times.

IN IRONS, RINGS UP FARES.

Conductor, Handcuffed by a Playful Constable, Couldn't Be Freed.

There isn't much practice to be had in handling crooks in Leonia, N. J., these days, so Constable Bloscher thought he would practice up a little on the outside, to keep his hand in. Yesterday afternoon he went down to Fort Lee with handcuffs in his pocket. Coming back on the Hudson River Trolley Line he saw his chance.

Conductor Hill was counting change on the rear platform when—snap!—the handcuffs linked his wrists. Bloscher fell back shaking with laughter and slapping his leg. Every one in the car thought it cleverly done, and so did Hill. He, too, laughed.

Then Bloscher got out his key to free his prisoner. There was another snap. The head of the key was in the lock, the rest in Bloscher's hand.

"Look here, Bloscher" said Smith getting a bit hot, "this isn't funny. How am I going to do anything." Just then a passenger got on, and up went both Smith's hands to ring the bell. The passenger gave him a nickel. He managed to take it, but then she wanted a transfer. After twisting about for five minutes, while every one laughed, he gave her one. "You'll have to punch it yourself," he said, and she did punch it as directed, while the passengers nearly rolled off their seats.

So it was right along. But at Leonia Junction the joke was on the Constable.

"Here, Hill," he said, "I can't leave these handcuffs, and I'm late to supper now. My wife—"

"Well, I'm not off till we get back to Leonia," said Hill, cheering up. "You just come along."

Bloscher did, grumpily, and at Fort Lee the two routed out a locksmith, who, with a file, got Hill clear.

FEARED FATHER'S ANGER.

Daughter Told Police He Didn't Know She Was Using His Auto.

Policeman Mosher arrested early last night John Doty of 1,861 Broadway, who was driving an auto said to be the property of L. C. Raegner of 1,864 Broadway. Mr. Raegner was not in it. Mrs. Dorothy Matty of 251 West Eighty-seventh Street, who said she was his daughter, was a passenger, along with her baby and her brother. Mr. Doty said he was a merchant. Mosher ordered the machine driven from Broadway and 153d Street, where it had been caught after a chase, to the West 152d Street Police Station.

"Well, do drive me down to Eighty-seventh Street," said Mrs. Matty, "so that I can get some milk for baby."

Mosher couldn't do that. At the station house Mrs. Matty pleaded with Lieut. McCann to turn Doty loose, for, she said, her father didn't know that his automobile was in use, and she didn't want him to know. McCann told her that Mosher would have to be appealed to; that he had no alternative in the matter.

Once again Mrs. Matty tried her eloquence on Mosher. He wanted to know what would become of his job if he didn't do his duty. She said she knew Mayor McClellan, Herman Ridder, Judge Dugro, and that she would look after his job. Mosher wouldn't risk anything on her influence. She gave her household furniture to bail out Doty, and the car went on.

ESCAPED IN PAJAMAS.

Police Watch Out for a Man Escaped from the Island.

Supt. Stewart of the Metropolitan Hospital, on Blackwell's Island, telephoned to Police Headquarters last night that at 6 o'clock Ernest Schran, alias Jacob Jacobwitz, 15 years old, a prisoner transferred from Randall's Island for treatment, escaped from his keepers. He wore only pajamas. The police could find no trace of him at his home, 131 Cannon Street, and he had not been discovered on Blackwell's Island up to midnight. He could not have escaped to the mainland except by the official ferry, on which he would not have been admitted, or by swimming.

BAPTIZED IN PASSAIC RIVER.

Woman Becomes Ill After Immersion in the Cold Water.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 3.—Standing for half an hour up to his armpits in the cold water of the Passaic River this afternoon, the Rev. J. P. Blackledge of the Paterson Gospel Mission baptized by immersion eight women, two men, and two girls, and then led in the singing of the Doxology.

Mrs. Garet Leusten, one of the women baptized, became hysterical after she was led from the river, and medical aid was summoned. The ceremony was witnessed by about three thousand persons lined on both banks of the river, and a detail of police was on hand to maintain order. The candidates, dressed in white robes, were led, shivering, one by one into the river, and as he announced:

"I baptize thee in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost," the clergyman immersed the candidate.

The candidates were taken to tents, where they received dry clothing, and then joined in a tent meeting in charge of the Rev. S. Weldron, of the Coney Island Gospel Mission.

Dr. Wise Against Intermarriage.

The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise preached yesterday at the Free Synagogue in West Eighty-first Street on intermarriage, as suggested by Israel Zangwill's play, "The Melting Pot." Dr. Wise took most emphatic ground against the intermarriage of Jews and Christians, but took pains at the beginning to make it clear that he was not passing any censure upon Mr. Zangwill, than whom he said there was no more devoted servant of his people to-day.

ASTROLOGER'S WIFE SUES MISS GAZZAM

Mrs. Clark Wants $150,000 from Heiress to $3,000,000 for Winning Husband's Love.

REFUSED TO GIVE HIM UP

Miss Gazzam, Mrs. Clark Declares, Said She Would Have Her Husband "If It Cost Forty Lives."

The circumstances regarding the disappearance of Miss Antoinette Gazzam, the young woman who lives on a large estate bequeathed her by her mother at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, and the details of the young woman's friendship for Marshall Clark, a real estate dealer of Chicago, who is also an astrologer and clairvoyant, were made public for the first time yesterday by Frank Comerford, a lawyer of Chicago, who is in this city in connection with the one-hundred-and-fifty-thousand-dollar suit for the alienation of her husband's affections which Mrs. Clark has brought against Miss Gazzam.

The suit was begun in July last, and it will soon come up in the Supreme Court here. To fight the suit, Miss Gazzam has retained an imposing array of legal talent, both here and in Chicago. Among her lawyers are De Lancey Nicoll, Frederic P. Bellamy, ex-Judge Van Amee, Col. James Hamilton Lewis, and P. J. O'Shea of Chicago. Mr. Bellamy has long been the Gazzam family lawyer.

Miss Gazzam, by the will of her mother, who died about three years ago, came into a fortune of about $3,000,000. The Gazzam with the understanding that, upon comprises several hundred acres on the side of Storm King Mountain, near Cornwall, was left to the daughter by Mrs. Gazzar with the understanding that, upon the daughter's death, it should go to Dr. J. A. McCorkle of 149 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, who was the Gazzam family physician.

According to Lawyer Comerford, Miss Gazzam's disappearance is due entirely to her desire to keep out of public notice until the alienation suit has been disposed of. He says her whereabouts is known to her lawyers, who are in consultation with her from time to time.

As evidence in the pending suit, Lawyer Comerford has a large bundle of affidavits which set forth how Marshall Clark, the astrologer and psychic disciple, met Miss Gazzam in Los Angeles and how the young woman fell under his influence. In the presence of Mrs. Clark, who arrived in New York this week, Lawyer Comerford, in his rooms at Kean's chop house in West Thirty-sixth Street, showed the reporters his affidavits and discussed the case at length.

"Mrs. Marshall Clark," he said, "is a member of the Crane family of Saginaw, Mich. She is a sister of Judge Crane of that city, and three of her brothers are well-known lawyers there. She married Clark on March 24, 1903, in the Methodist Episcopal Church in West Twenty-third Street, this city. After their marriage the couple traveled extensively, making a tour of the world and journeying all over the United States. They finally settled in Chicago. At the time of his marriage Clark was in the real estate business in this city at 72 West Thirty-fifth Street. Early in the present year the Clarks moved to Los Angeles, where Clark continued his real estate business and kept up his psychic readings. On March 24, 1909, a young woman of good appearance registered at the Lankershim Hotel, Los Angeles, as Miss Elizabeth Mazzag, which is Gazzam spelled backward. This young woman, who Mrs. Clark learned later was really Miss Gazzam, was also a student of psychology, and in this way she met Mr. Clark. The two became friends at once."

Mrs. Clark, who is a good-looking, well-dressed woman of about 30 years, took up the lawyer's narrative and continued: "I went to my husband's office on April 20 last and found him there with Miss Gazzam. When I upbraided him he drew a revolver and threatened to shoot me. I was only saved by the timely intervention of the Rev. William Francis Arland, a Baptist clergyman of Los Angeles, who called at the office. He made my husband put up his pistol. Mr. Clark and I since our marriage had been very happy together, and after this episode his manner underwent a complete change.

"I found that Miss Gazzam had moved to the Zelda apartments and I went to see her. I told her that Mr. Clark was married, and she said she knew all about it. She said Mr. Clark was her affinity in body, soul and spirit and that she was not going to give him up. I told her that she was breaking my heart and that I was weeping tears of blood, but she said she didn't care for my breaking heart; that she had had everything she wanted all her life and was going to have my husband if it cost my life and forty more."

Lawyer Comerford said that in July last he had a long talk with Miss Gazzam.

"When I told her that it wasn't right for her to continue her relations with Clark," said the lawyer, "she replied that the marriage law was but a contract and that all contracts were tainted with commercialism. She said the religious form of marriage was but an empty ceremony which didn't mean anything. Real marriage she declared to be a union of heart and soul, and that in this sense she considered she and Clark were already married."

Mrs. Clark's New York attorney is Samuel Bell Thomas of 20 Broadway.

Caught in Shaft Explosion—Mine Still Burning.

ROSLYN, Wash., Oct. 3.—Fifteen men were killed and several seriously injured in an explosion in a shaft of the Northwestern Improvement Company's mine here this afternoon.

When the explosion occurred a column of fire was thrown hundreds of feet in the air, igniting the shaft plant and adjoining buildings. Under the intense heat the hoist of the shaft crumbled and fell. Cinders were blown in all directions, several buildings in parts of the little mining town taking fire. The citizens were unable to extinguish the fires and the Roslyn Fire Department was called out.

The mine in the neighborhood of the shaft was burning fiercely late to-night, flames shooting up from the shaft nearly 100 feet into the air. The electric pumps which supply the town of Roslyn with water were cut off and the water in the city was very nearly exhausted. It was reported that the shaft was caving in and that other explosions might occur at any moment.

Rescue parties will be sent into the mine from the slope connecting the shaft as soon as it is safe for men to approach.

STARVING ESKIMO EATS CHILD.

Others of Tribe Attack Him, but He Escapes to Wilderness.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Oct. 3.—The Hudson Bay mounted police report the cannibalism of a starving Eskimo, in dispatches brought by the Hudson Bay Company's steamer Adventure, which arrived here to-day with the crew of the lost Dundee whaler Paradox.

The Eskimo's fishing and hunting season had been a failure, and, driven mad by hunger, he cut the throat of one of his children and ate the little victim. When the man's neighbors learned of this they attacked him. The outcast fled to the shelter of his igloo and beat off all assaults, shooting down several of the attacking party and escaping into the wilderness. Whether he succeeded in reaching some remote settlement where his crime was unknown, or whether he succumbed to starvation, is not known.

The Paradox, one of the fleet of Dundee whalers, met the fate of her companion ship, Snow Drop, when she was crunched in the merciless jaws of the ice floes off Baffin Land early in August a year ago. The crew, with scanty provisions, made their perilous way over the broken ice toward the mainland, and were picked up by the Hudson Bay Company's steamer Pelican, which took them to Fort Churchill, where they remained until the arrival of the Adventure on her regular Fall trip.

The Adventure also brought several missionaries, surveyors, and prospectors from the Northwest country.

A FIRE HEROINE HERSELF.

Daughter of Originator of "Fighting the Flames" Saves Her Mother.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Oct. 3.—Miss Marguerite McCarthy, daughter of Charles McCarthy, originator of "Fighting the Flames" at Coney Island, aged 18, proved a heroine and brave fire fighter in a blaze at 3 o'clock this morning that left only the chimney of their house at Stone Church, near here, standing. She and her mother were asleep on the second floor and were the only occupants of the house. They did not discover the fire until the flames had crept almost up to their room and cut off all escape except by the second story.

In her night dress the girl, who is athletic, lost no time in crawling out of the second-story window and shinning down a balcony pole. Rushing for a ladder in the back yard, she soon had it in place up to the window where her mother was waiting, almost smothered from the smoke and ready to jump. Grabbing her with one arm, the girl carried her down the ladder to safety.

With difficulty the girl was finally able to arouse some neighbors and an alarm was sounded, which brought the Navesink fire company to the scene. By the time they arrived the house was like a roaring furnace, and although the firemen put up a hard fight they were unable to save anything.
